Technical High School • Chicago, Illinois

With Eyes on the Future . . .

Because of the realization that the world of tomorrow is being built in the schools of today, we dedicate this book to those students who, combining the work of their hands with the achievement of their minds, are preparing for their technological needs of the future.

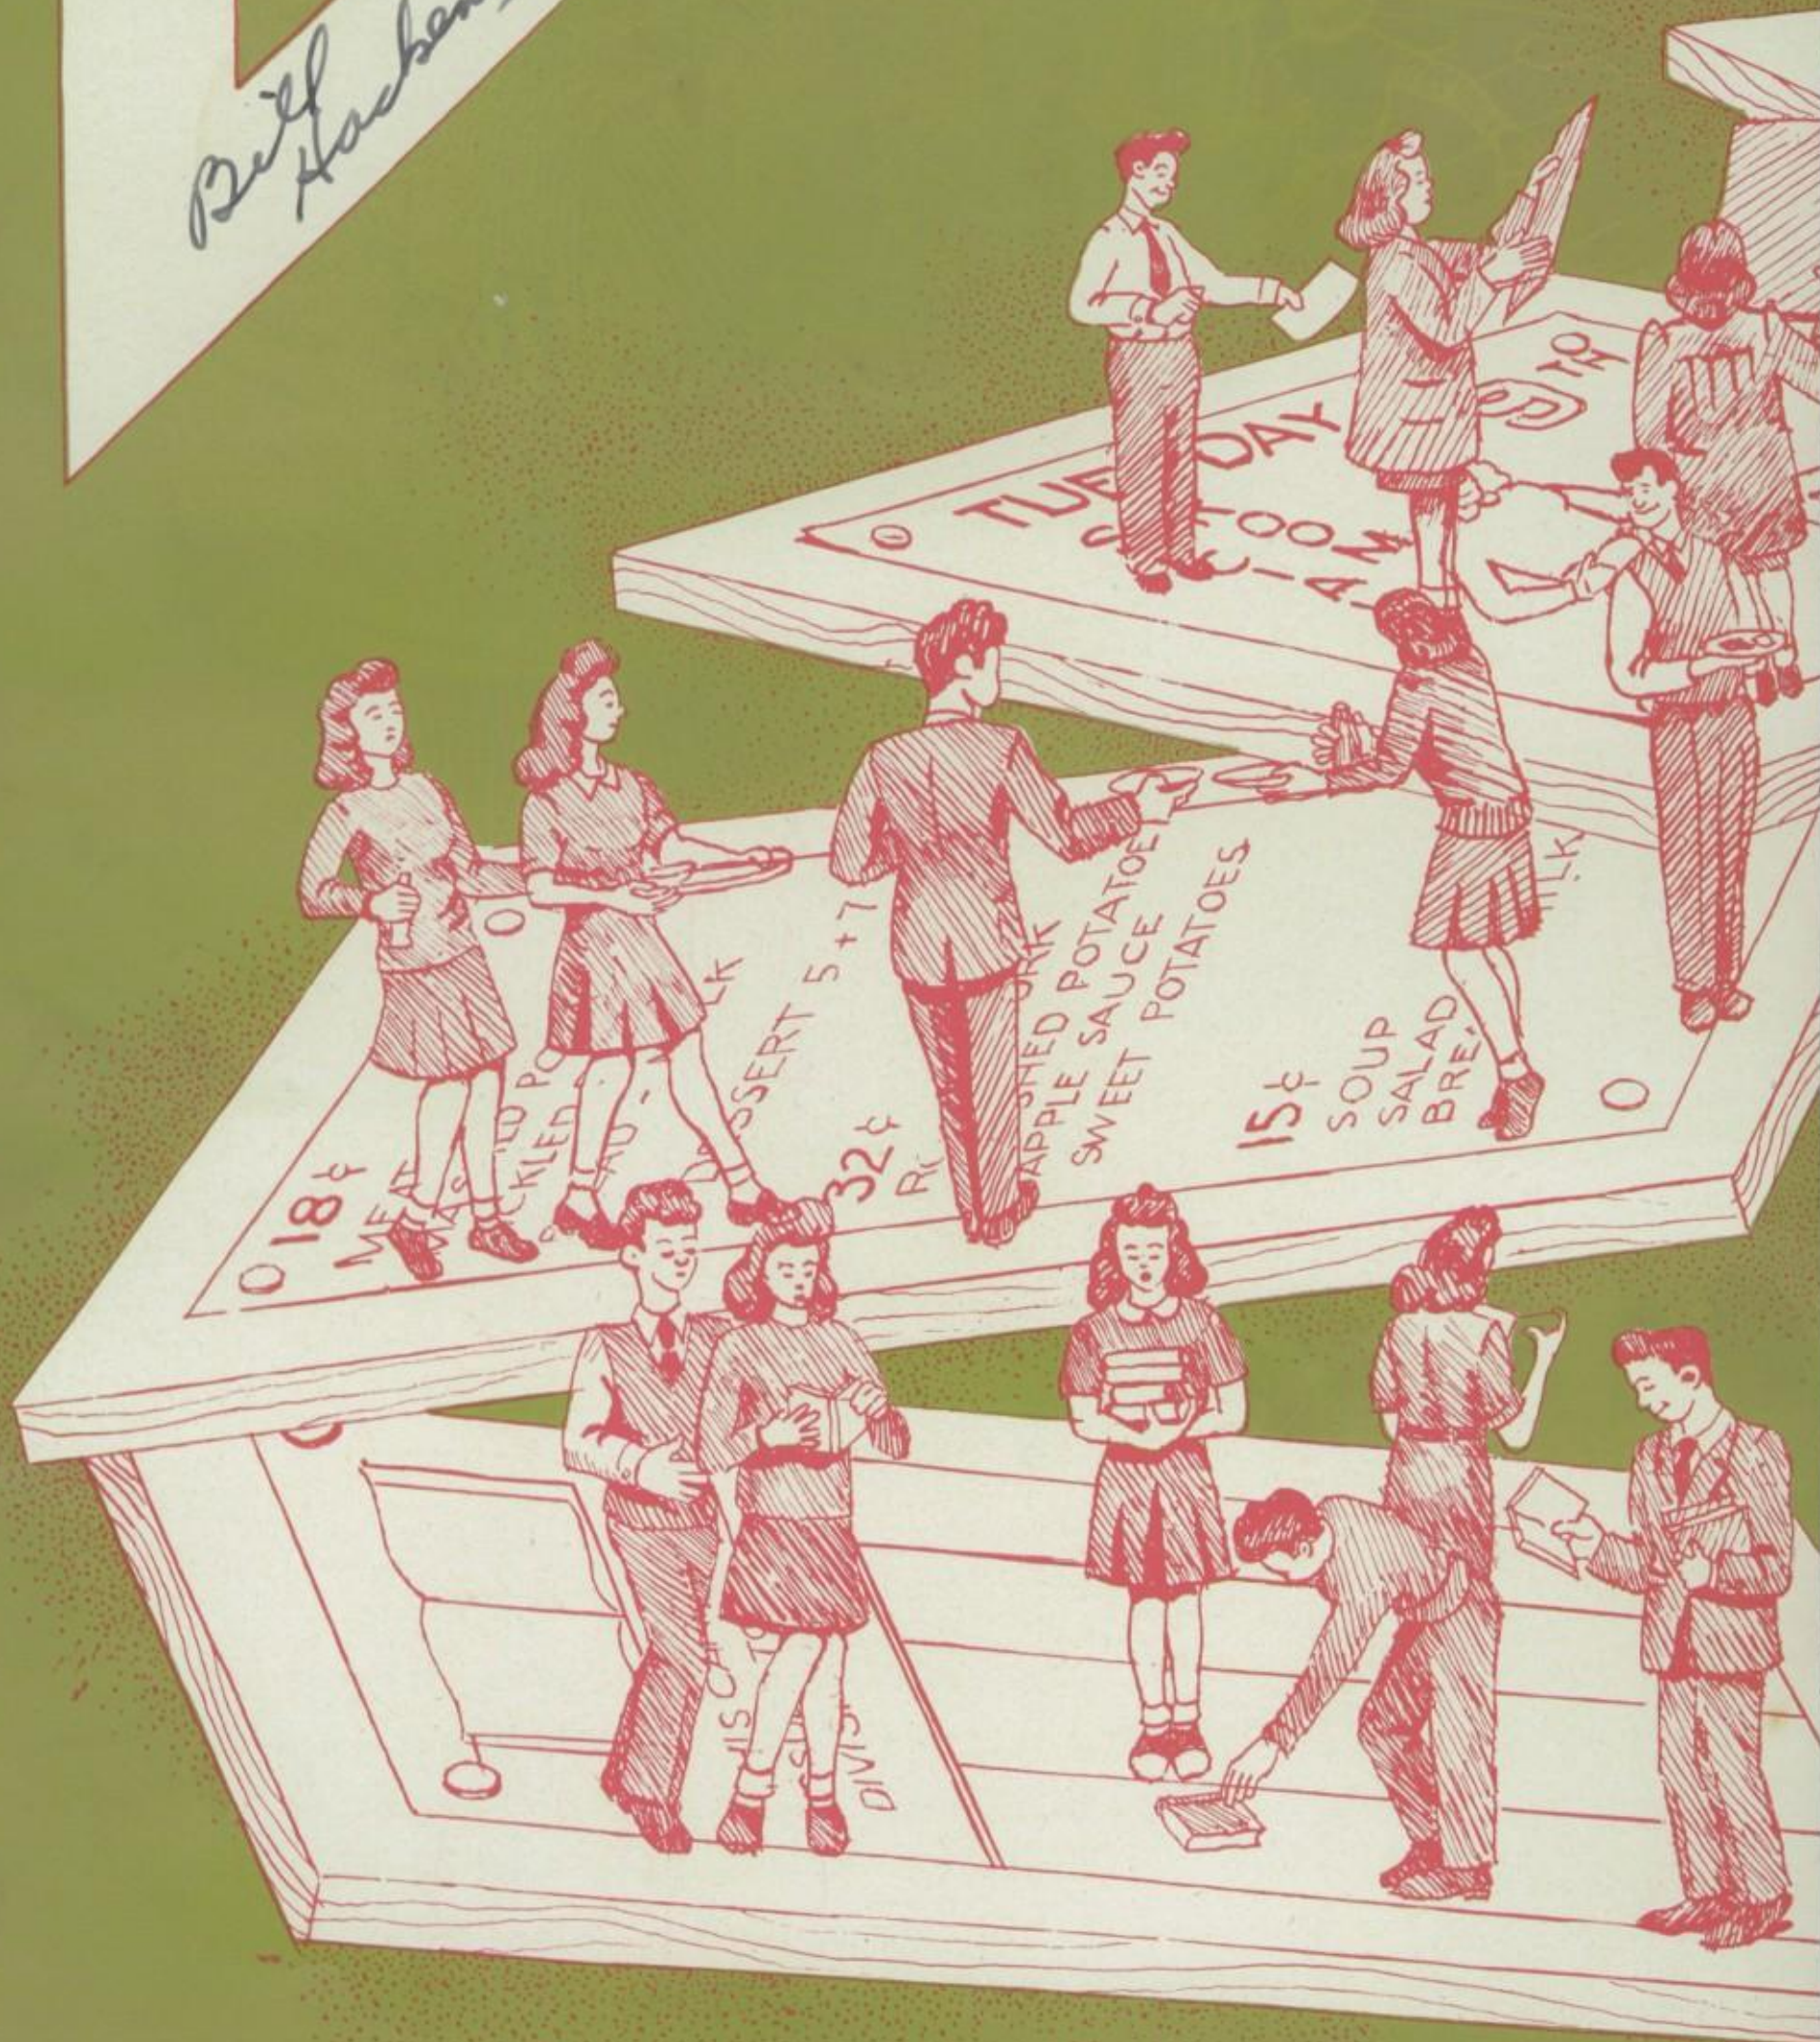

AT Lindblom

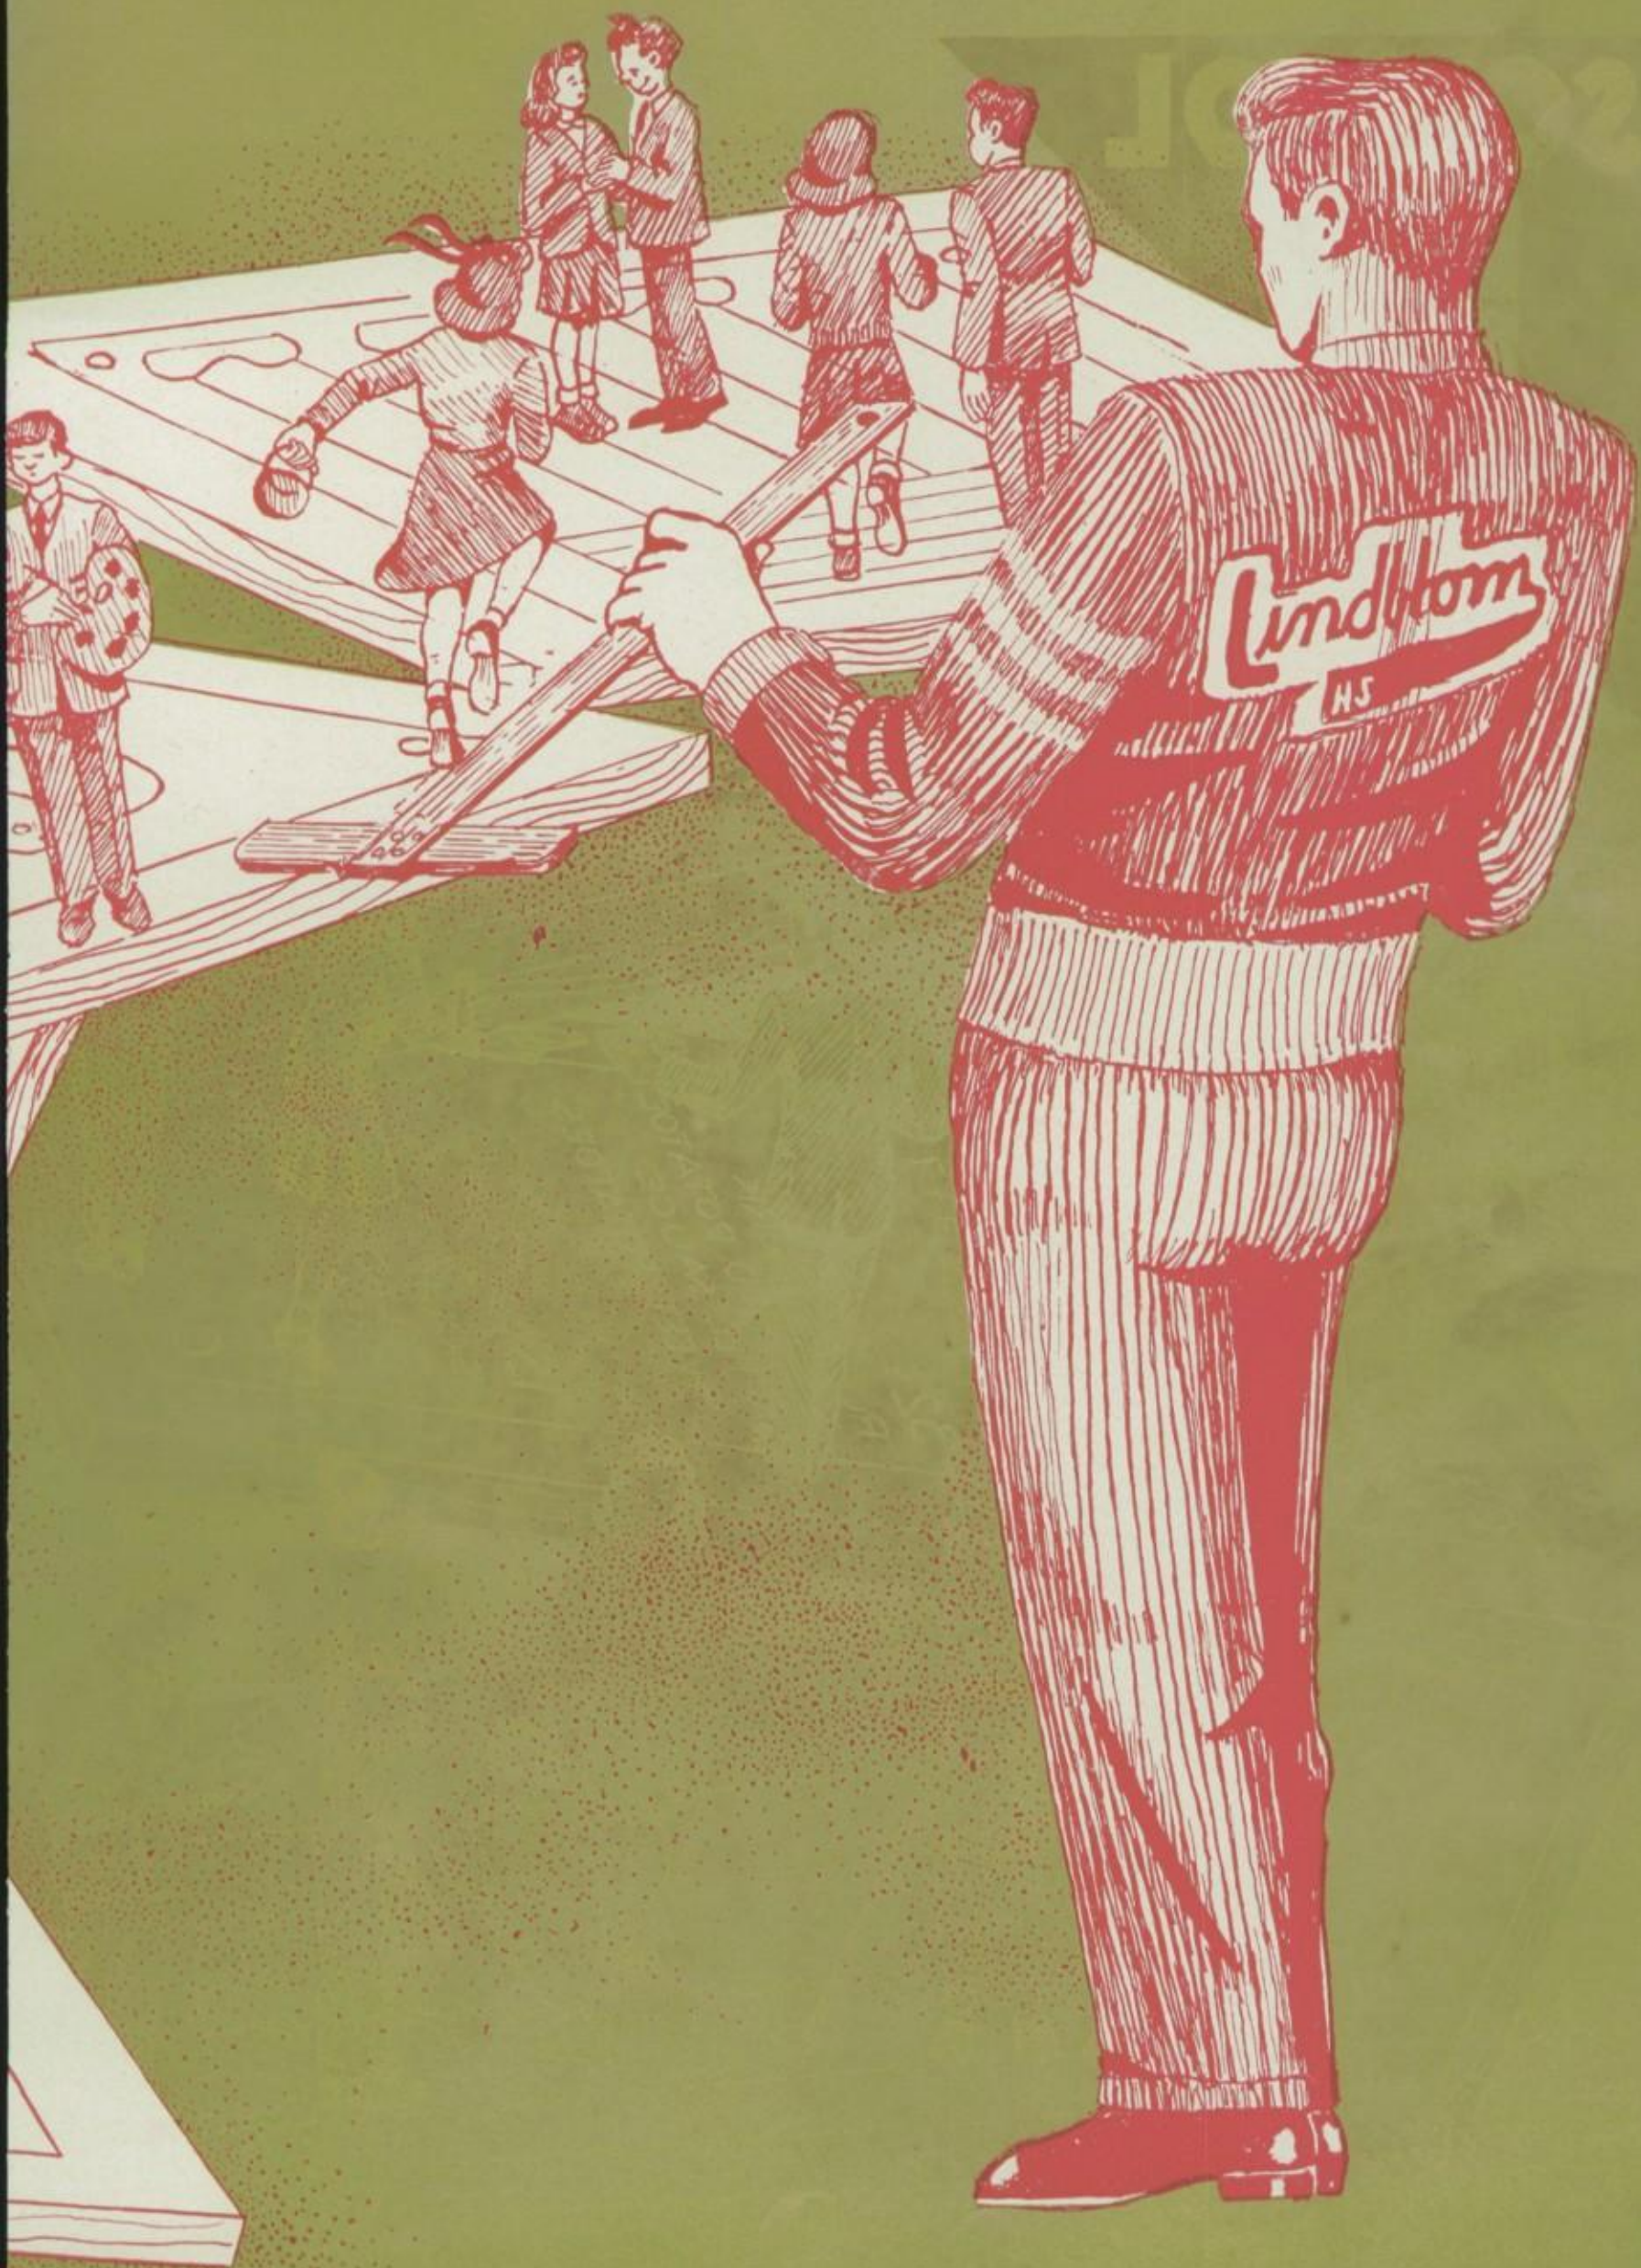

"Life itself is its own unceasing interest." At Lindblom in addition to the numerous activities about which our Eagle is moulded, the student life provides interest in itself. The seemingly unimportant events which occur daily in classes and friendships which are made during one's high school career both play a major role in making high school life successful. Sports events, pep meetings, and various clubs and organizations all reflect the exuberance and industry of the students which is so much a part of school life.

Bill Hasbendorf

Mr. Palmer has long been a favorite of students and teachers alike because of his genuine concern for their interests. By his skill in student adjustment and his genial manner, students know they can always look to him for friendly guidance. His enthusiasm for sports and other things of concern to the student body has shown them that he has their best interests at heart.

Assisting Mr. Palmer in the various administrative duties which arise is the ever efficient and helpful Miss Genevieve Sullivan. Because she, too, is greatly interested in the trials and tribulations of the students at Lindblom, she does her very best to see that they receive every possible consideration.

Into the capable and waiting hands of Miss Robin come many of the youngsters who some day will become excellent citizens and integral parts of Lindblom. Miss Robin gives them a fine background for the years of learning and pleasure awaiting them in Lindblom.

Mr. Harry F. Yates
Principal of Lindblom Technical High School

Congratulations are in order, as Superintendent of Schools, Dr. William H. Johnson, admires one of the Achievement L Cups awarded to three of our outstanding students. Chester Giermak was the representative of the boys, and Jean Ciszewski and Gwen Motley were co-winners among the girls.

School Executives Honor Lindblomites

Assistant Superintendent Mr. Philip L. McNamee, in charge of the technical work of the Chicago High Schools, is deeply concerned with the manual accomplishments of students. He is talking with Dolores Riley, winner of the Typing Contest and John Prkut, who is exhibiting his model tank.

Mr. George F. Cassell, District Superintendent in charge of high schools, shows keen interest in the brilliant art work of James Abramic and the oratorical victories of Isobel Glick.

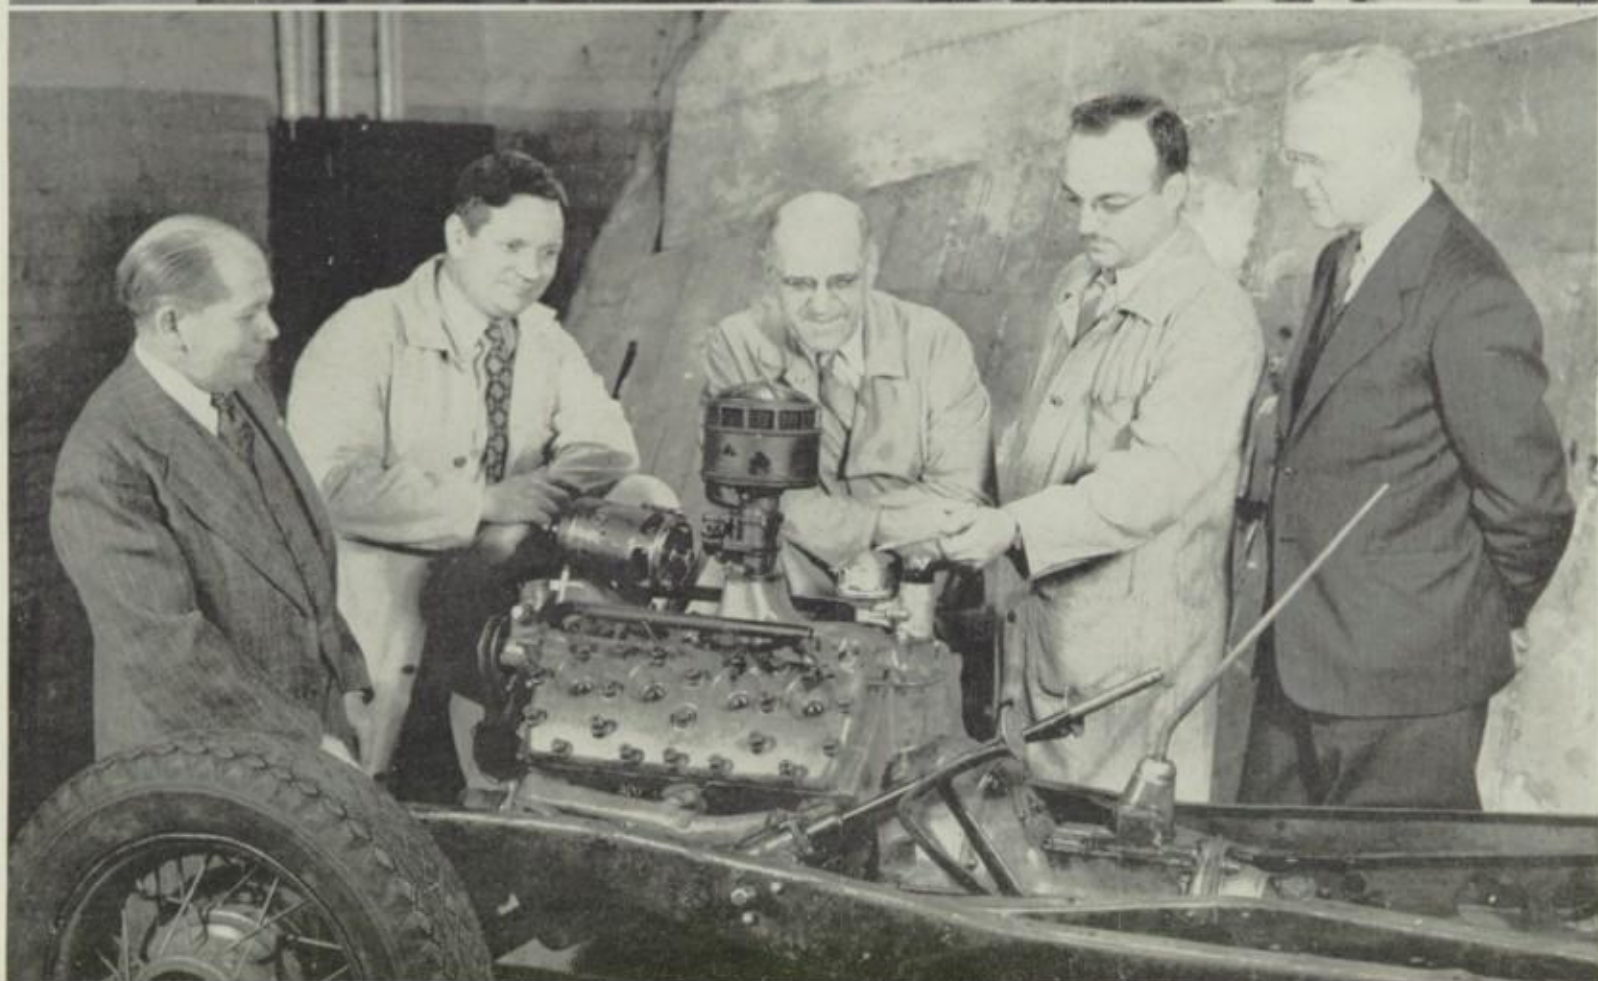

Mr. Henry H. Hagen, Superintendent of District Four, whose office is located here at Lindblom, has always been interested in the school's activities. His doors are ever open wide to the student with a problem. Here he is consulting with Richard Navarra of the Eagle staff.

Faculty-Technical Department

Mr. Freese, chairman, Mr. Brennen, Mr. Pilditch, Mr. J. Anderson, Mr. Aiken, Mr. Blood.

Mr. Moehle, Mr. O. Anderson, Mr. Kulle, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Olsen.

The busy scene shown at the left is typical of the bustle and industry which pervades the wood shop during class periods.

Children's toys provide engrossing subject matter for the use of fine tools in order to turn out a finished product.

Power sawing is a simple, yet essential operation, of which every wood-shop boy must have first-hand knowledge.

Lathe work is also taught in the wood shop and many beautiful objects are turned out by the boys as projects.

To the boy taking a technical course, the wood shop is an important stepping stone in his technical achievement. Here he is taught the fundamental principals of woodworking, and while receiving these all-important instructions produces many useful objects, ranging from shields to tie-racks.

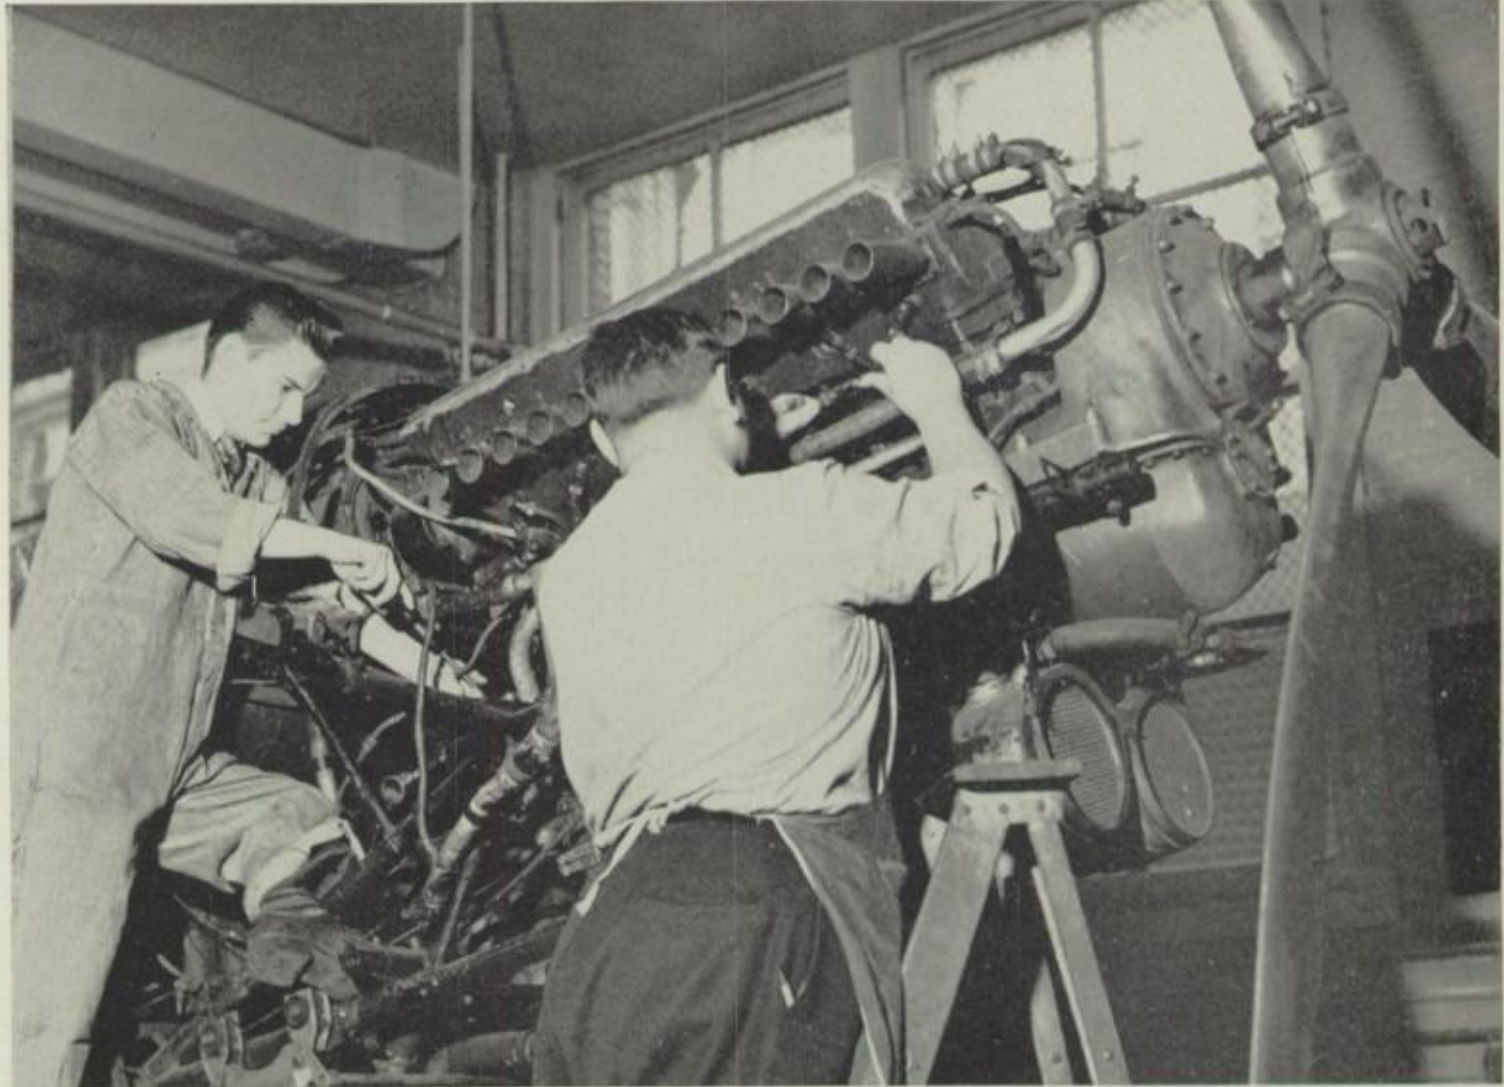

"Contact! Turn 'er over!"

With these words the engine of the airplane in our auto shop starts to roar.

Carefully, under the hands of skilled boys, it is warmed up to test its efficiency.

After this, the plane is disassembled, and a new group of students come in to rebuild it.

Probing the mysteries of the radial engine, the boys discover the sources of that fantastic power which takes the plane into the air.

By actual contact with the engine of the plane, these boys are trained much more thoroughly than ever they could be through mere textbooks.

My! Such a blasting that singes our tender skin.
Could it be from the boiler room or the engine room? No.
It is just the foundry shop. The heat comes from the melting furnaces.
The hurrying and scurrying of the boys, with the thudding of the rammer, and the sizzling and sparking of poured aluminum give ample proof that it is a busy and important shop.

A group of students look on as a finished mold is removed with the use of tongs.

Pounding the sand thoroughly to insure a good project, the boy shows an experienced hand in using the rammer.

Simulating actual conditions encountered in industry, these technical boys near the completion of the job as they pour the mold.

Setting type is tedious work but valuable to the student who wishes to make a career of printing.

To make a page of printing as a work of art is a difficult task but one which the craftsman must master.

Actual printing introduces the print-shop student to the intricacies of inking, paper cutting and the press itself.

Print-shop stands as one among the many shops which train boys so that they can, on completion of their high-school course, very soon obtain a specialized position outside of school. The boys are trained in all phases of the printing industry, such as linotype operation, hand typesetting, operation of presses and composition of pages.

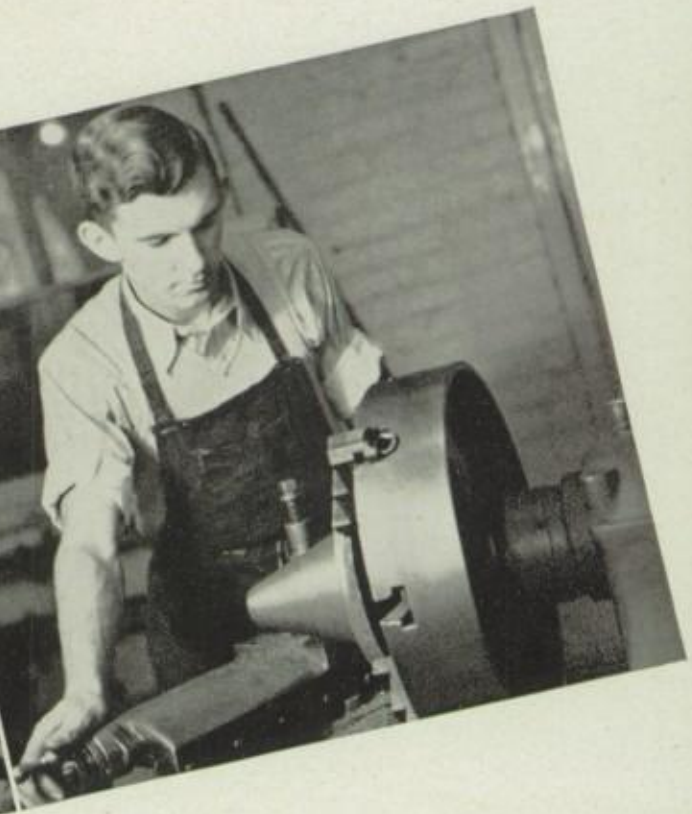

Standing by the evenly arranged machines amid the whirling of machine belts, eager students proudly turn out shiny metal projects.

Using the milling machine which the boys themselves have built, a boy mills a rough project of irregular shape.

Cutting a gear on a milling machine, a boy is given some expert advice on turning out a better project.

Carefully executing the cutting of a cone on one of the lathes, the boy realizes the necessity of producing accurate projects.

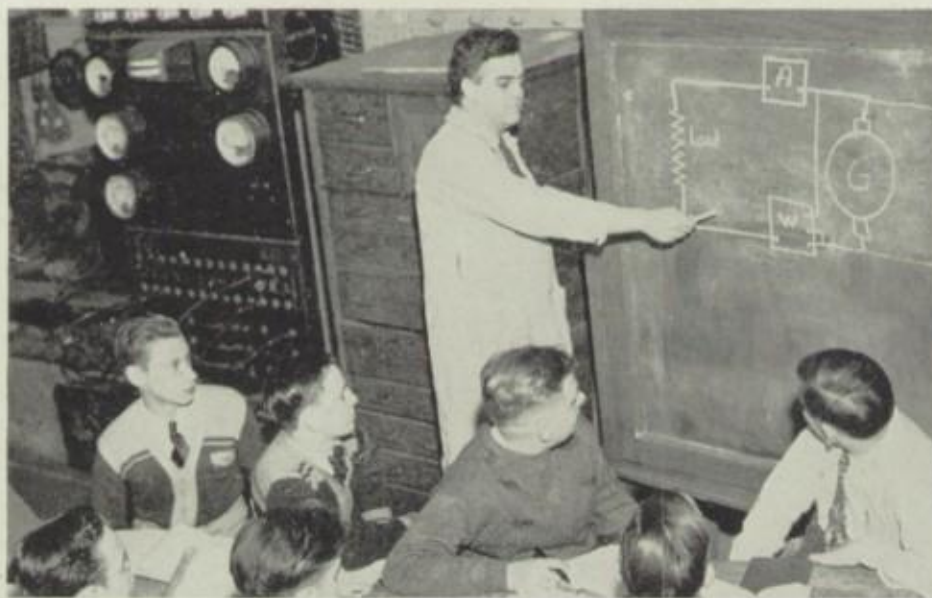

The humming of belts and flywheels give evidence that machine shop is a productive shop. As someone jumps out of the way of flying steel, we arrive at the conclusion that it is a safe shop. Seriously though, the strictest regulations governing safety are observed in machine shop. Besides running the machines, the problem of servicing them and understanding their mechanics must be met. In accordance with these problems the boys receive theory training concerning the solving of industrial problems.

Electric shop is one of Lindblom's most instructive and unique shops. Here the boys learn how to operate electrical appliances by actually taking them apart and building them over again.

They conduct experiments with modern tools in wiring intricate bell circuits, repairing light fixtures, sockets, and doing other useful tasks.

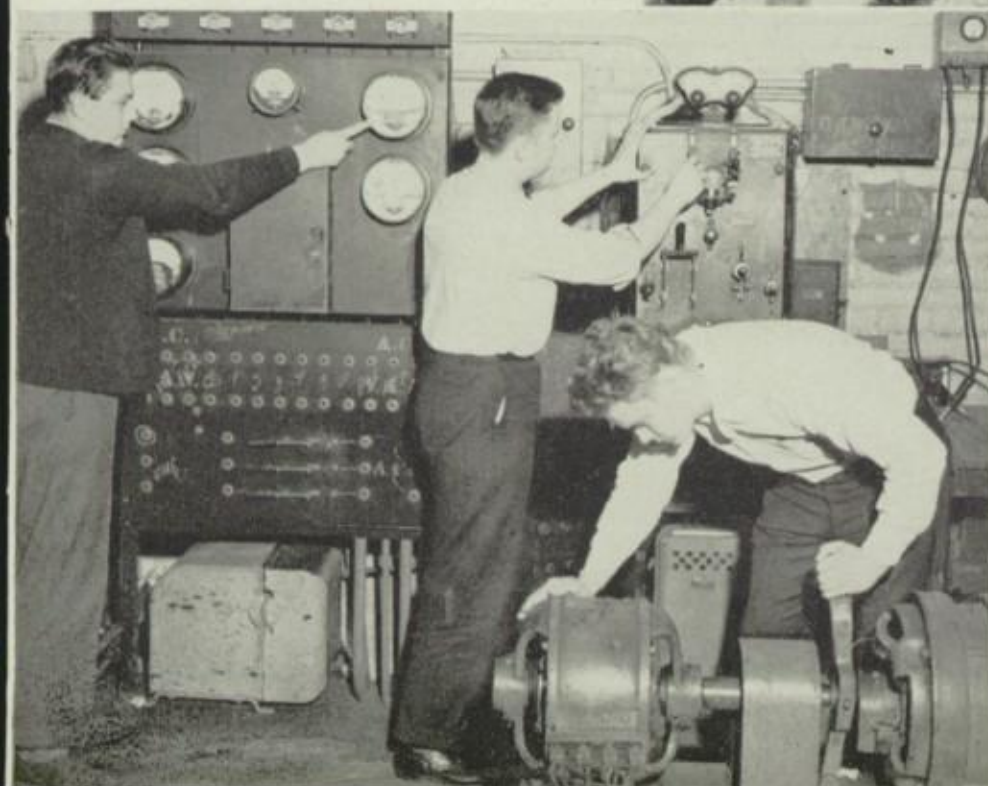

This shop may also help you to select a vocation for later years.

Diagrams of intricate circuits drawn by the teacher help to illustrate and make clearer the more difficult parts of the course.

Assembly and repair of generators and motors are two of the many instructive and interesting topics included in the course.

How to read complicated dials, which switch to pull, and the operation of motors are all part of the electrical course.

When a visitor enters one of our many shops, he is reminded of the strains of the Anvil Chorus and also the words of the Village Blacksmith. Here the heated iron and steel are placed atop the anvils, where they are hammered into the desired shape. Here also are the young men who will make the instruments of steel in various industries. Their strong hands recall the line "The smith, a mighty man is he, with large and sinewy hands." It is here that many of tomorrow's industrialists will receive their first training.

Heating the metal to the point where it can be bent in the coal forges is the task of this student.

Work with the vises is essential to the careful student who wishes an all-around knowledge of the subject.

Bending the heated metal through the use of hammers brings the students closer to the properties and actions of hot metal.

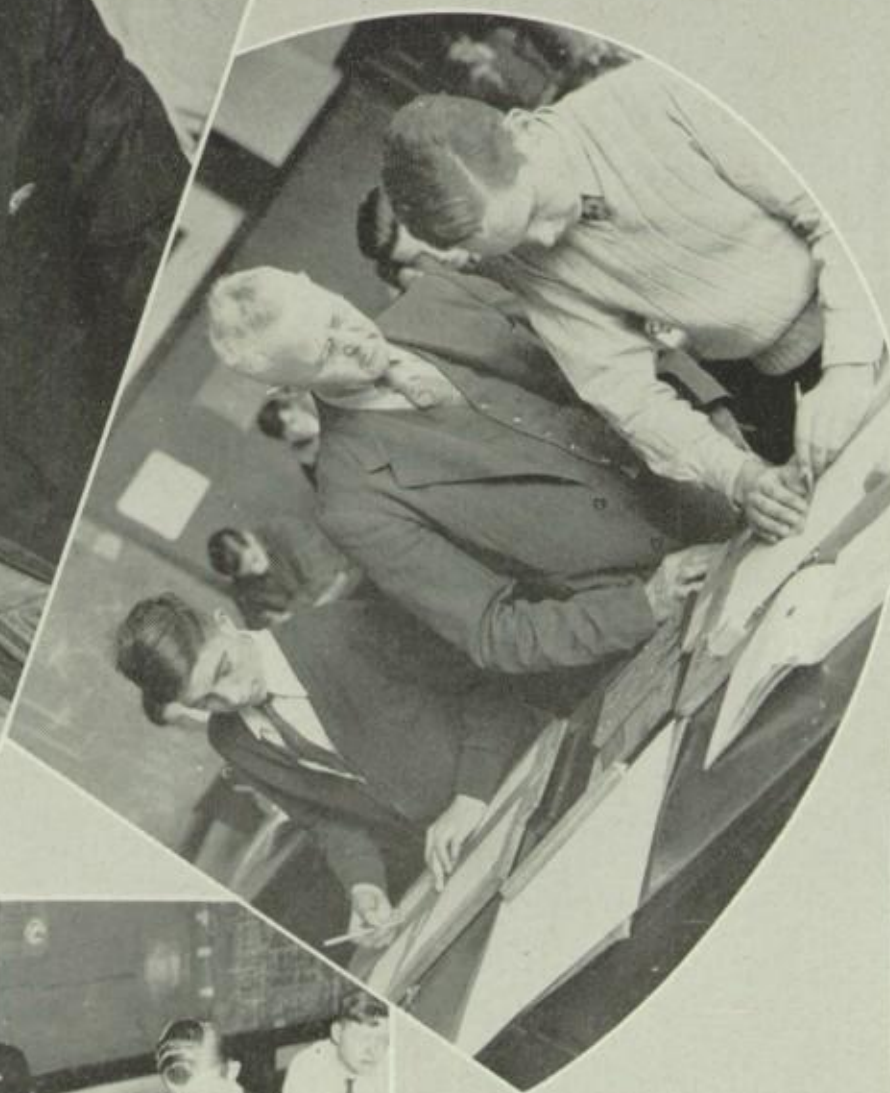

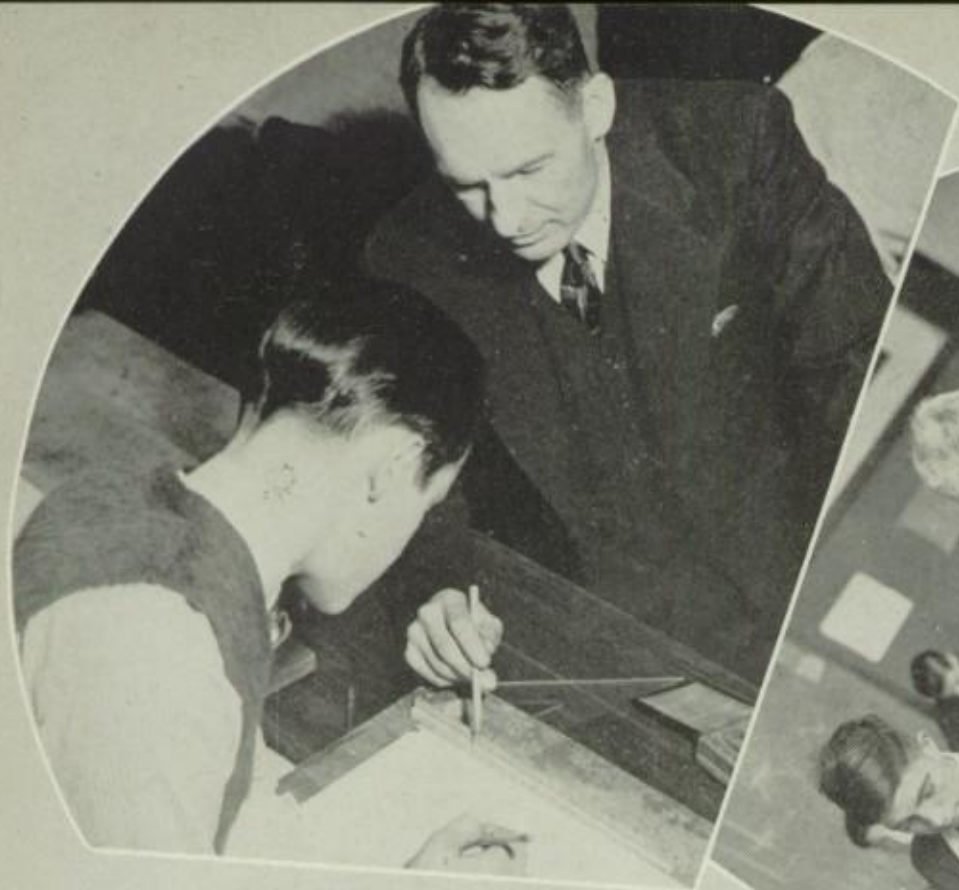

The drill press offers the student an effective and quick method of accomplishing a job which otherwise it might be impossible to do.

These planes will help our armed forces learn how to recognize both allied and enemy planes in the battle zones.

Ceramics is the art of making pottery and any other article which might be moulded, in this case according to the idea of the student.

The use of the jig-saw offers the student a chance to do some original and intricate work with wood.

The whirl of the drill press and the persistent chug of the jig saw give the atmosphere of a busy shop. Attentive boys eagerly listen and earnestly accept every word of advice the instructor has to give. They realize that the demand for skilled labor is greater than ever. It is here, in this shop, that they learn the fundamentals of shop work, and the principals and uses of tools.

In the silence of a mechanical drawing room, a boy's problems in his work are met and solved by co-operation of student and teacher.

Under instruction the students' weak points are strengthened and many valuable short cuts are learned.

By solving practical problems and applying them in their drawings, the boys acquire experience which will be useful later.

Quietly, the future world planners and draftsmen prepare for the future. All construction work must be first planned and put on paper. Here the students learn the basic requirements before they can accept the trying responsibilities of experienced engineers.

It is important for every business place to keep records of their assets and liabilities; for that reason bookkeepers are trained to keep accurate accounts of all business transactions made by the concern. Lindblom offers a course in bookkeeping which covers thoroughly every detail of the complicated journals, ledgers, and P. and L. statements so essential to being a good bookkeeper.

Profit and loss, all the detailed items of daily business, furnish the lesson for the young bookkeeper.

Neatness in daily routine and competence in office work go hand in hand to make the finished bookkeeper.

Bookkeeping has many of the characteristics of pure mathematics, but also has a most practical aspect in modern business.

To solve arithmetical problems pertaining to business is the aim of calculating. In the course, students learn to achieve skill and speed in the operation of calculating machines, and have opportunities to learn business methods which lead to rapid advancement.

Correct posture and hand position when operating the adding machines, as well as how to use them, are parts of the course.

Long columns of figures hold no worries to these calculating students as they, without a mistake, add them up.

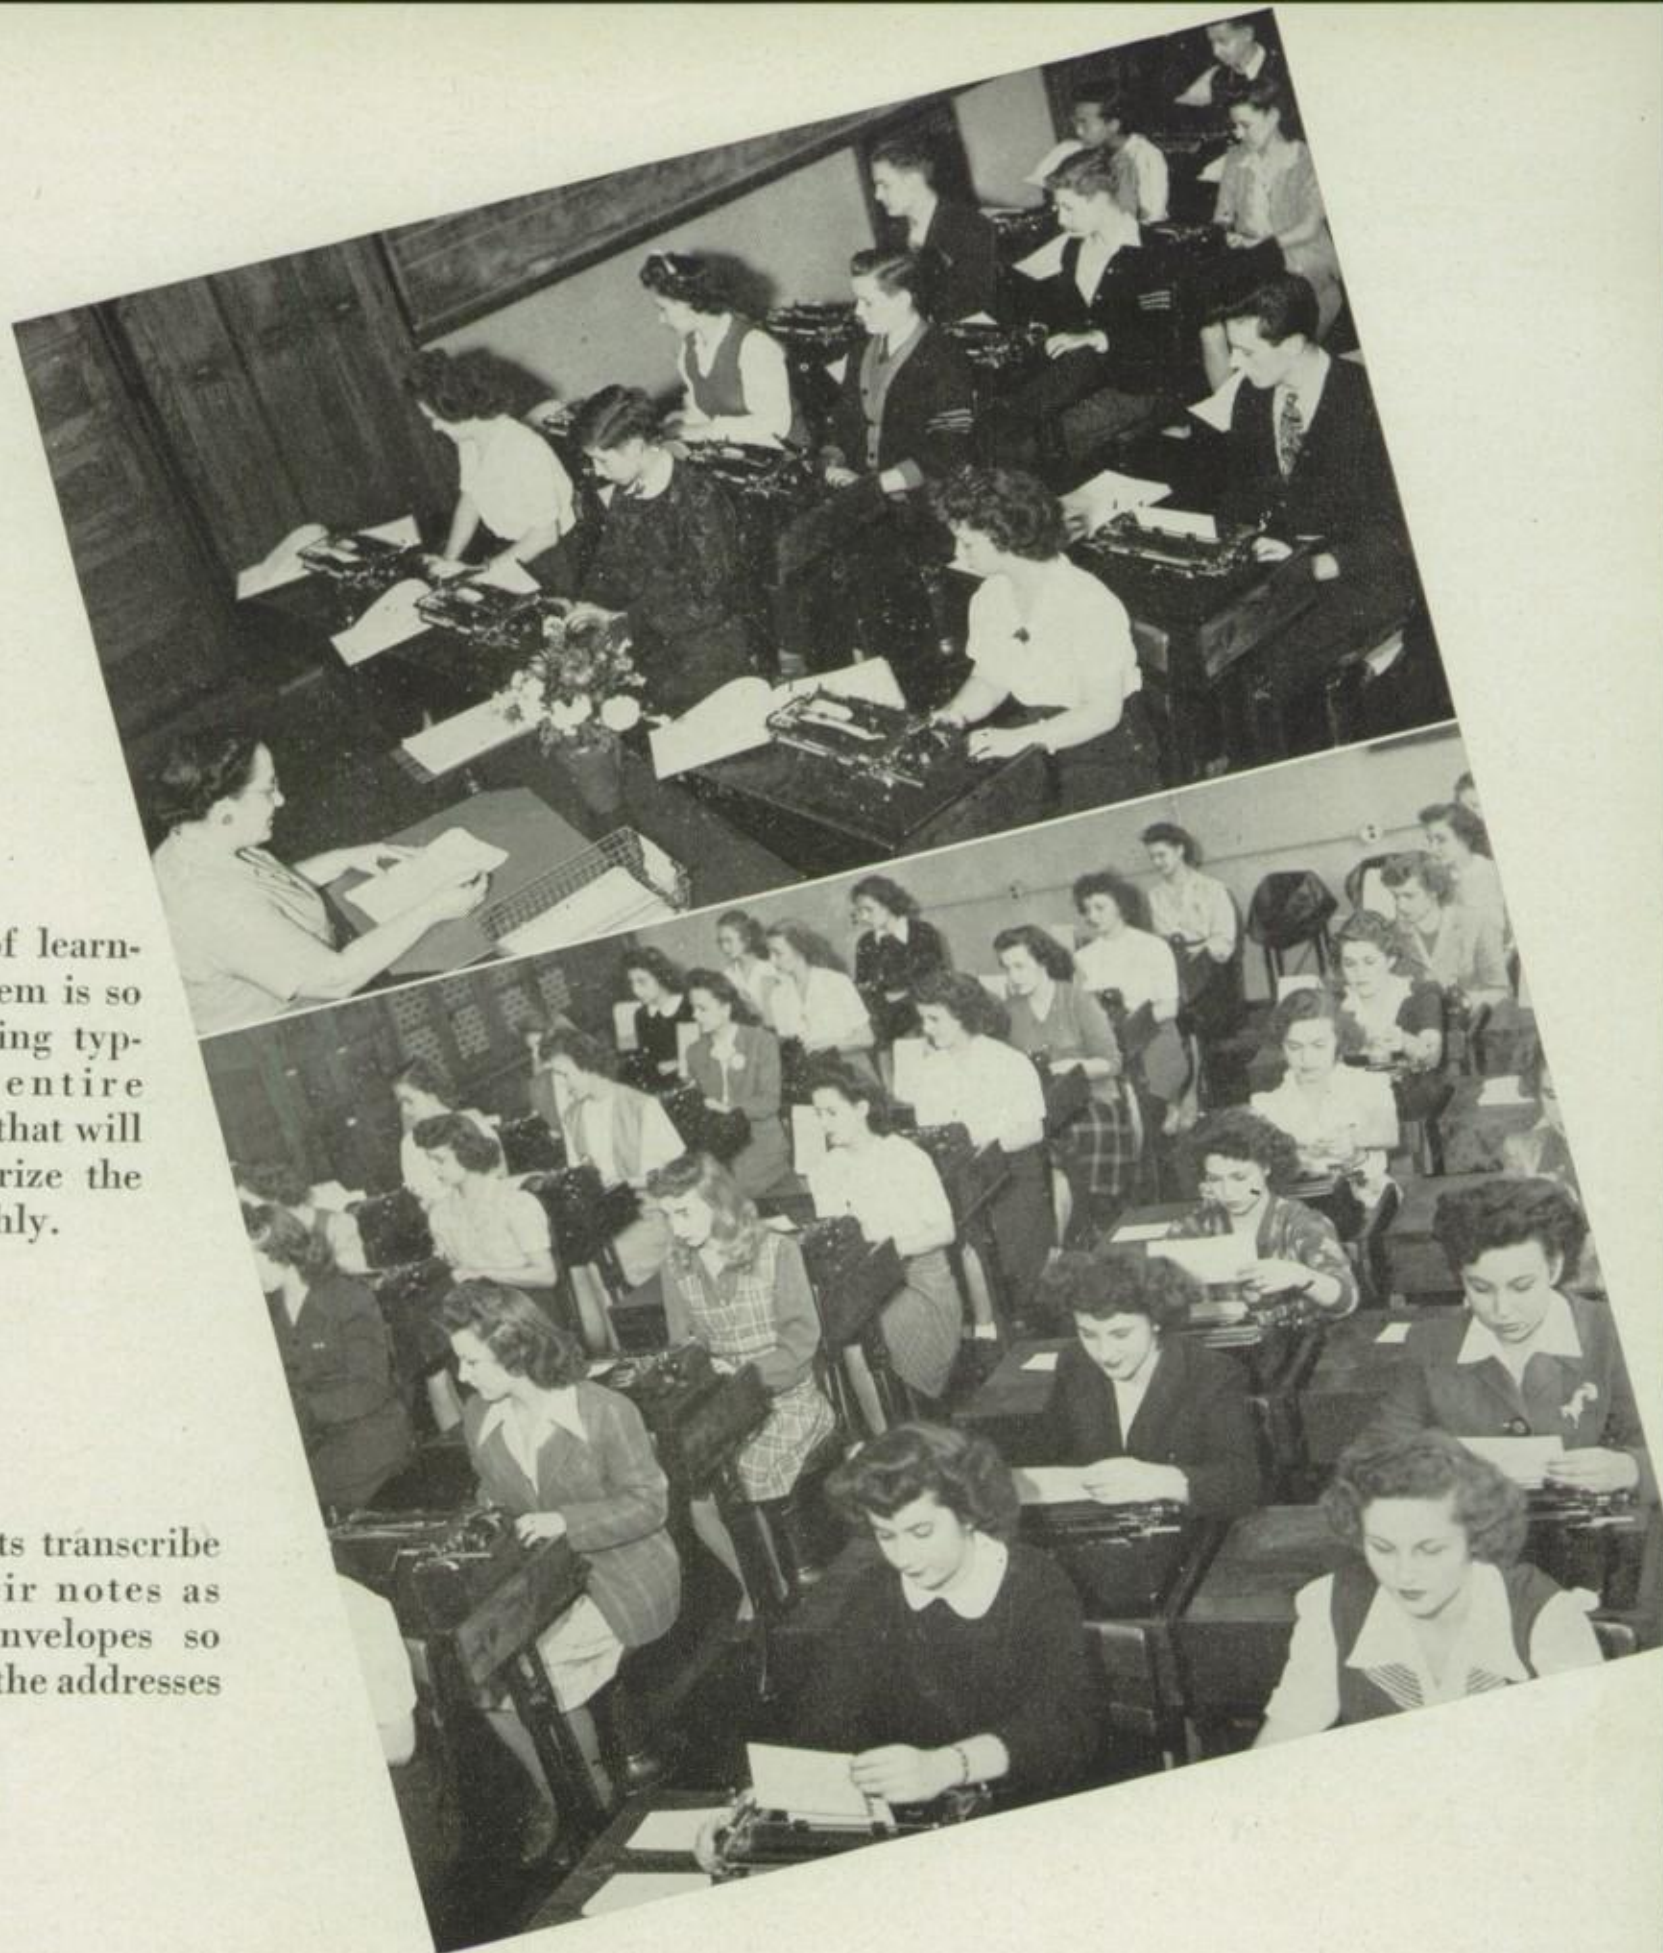

Small classes provide the students with greater and more personal attention from the teacher as well as better class feeling.

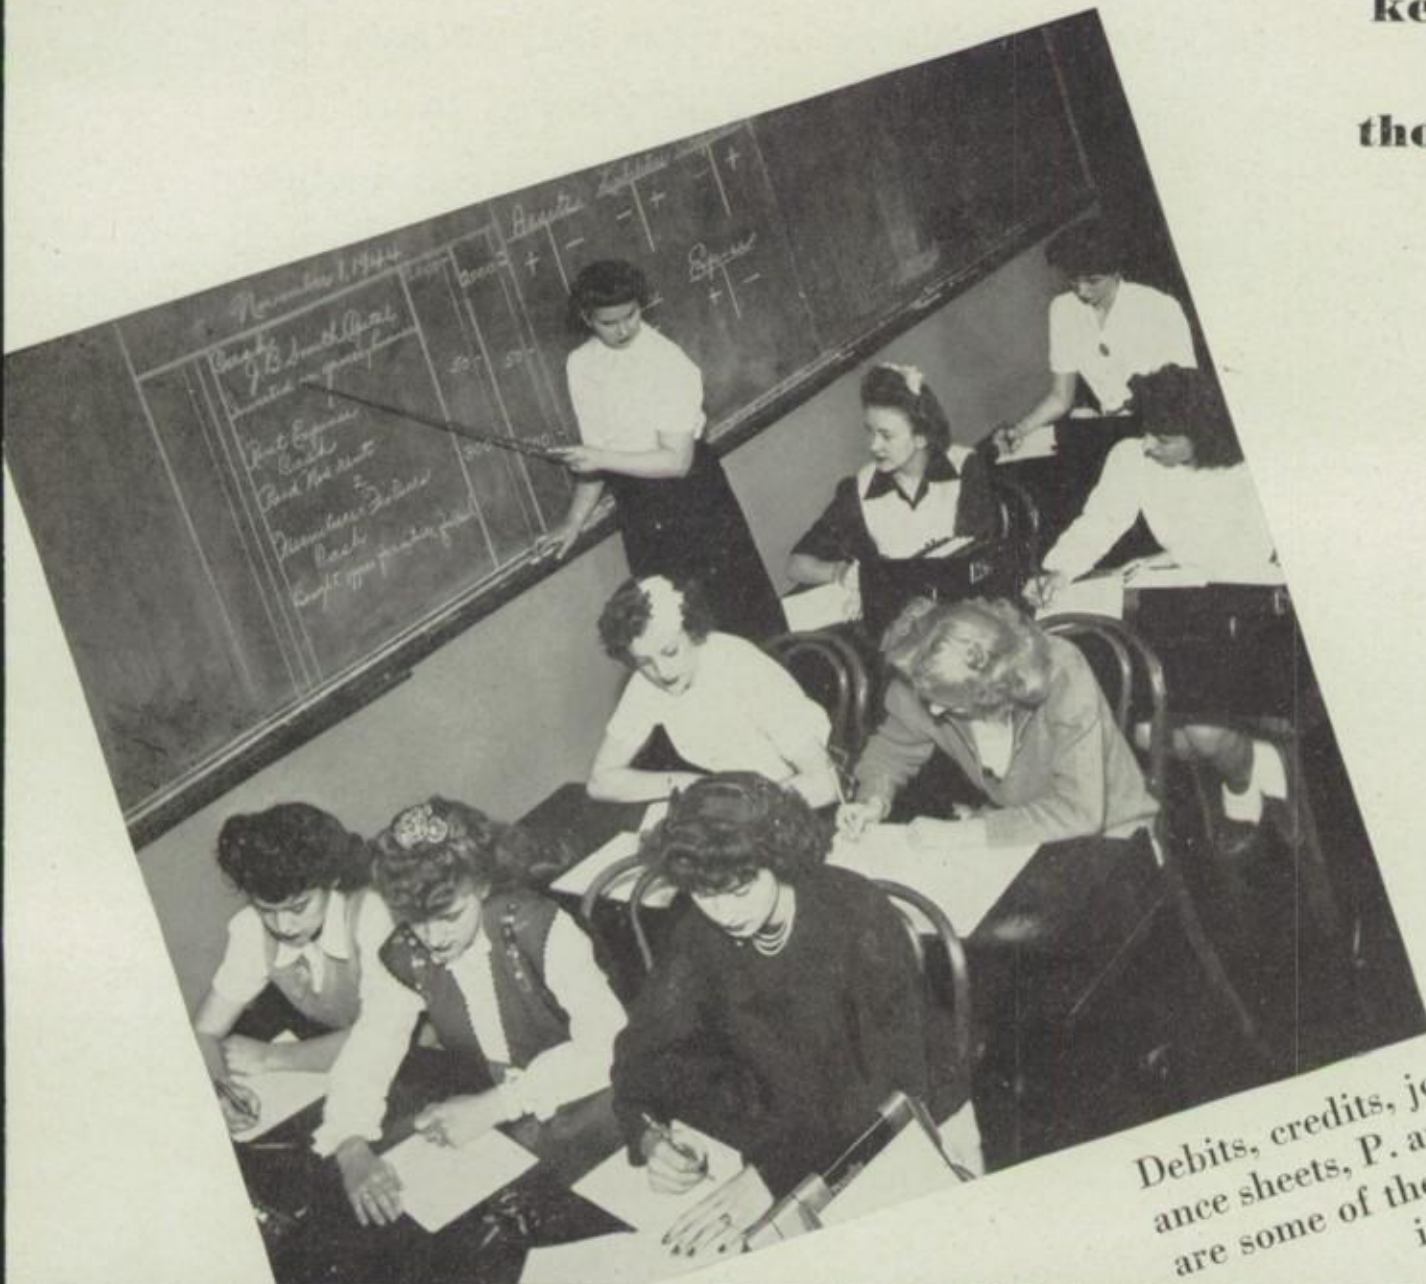

The importance of learning the touch system is so great that beginning typists spend the entire semester on drills that will help them memorize the keyboard thoroughly.

Some of the typists transcribe letters from their notes as others roll in envelopes so that they can type the addresses on them.

The operation of a typewriter is a mystery to new Lindblomites, but this is soon remedied after a student gains entrance into a typing class. The preliminary exercises are soon mastered and the now limber fingers of a new-born typist are ready to type out complicated business letters. Typing is enjoyable, as well as educational, and the experience proves invaluable to the future stenographer.

Bookkeepers are in great demand today, and many a career is established among the students who learn daily to keep books and accounts neat and accurate. Our bookkeeping classes give the student thorough instruction, and start many
on the road to success.

Debits, credits, journals, ledgers, work sheets, balance sheets, P. and L. statements and trial balances are some of the few things the study of bookkeeping involves.

If you have a desire to enter the commercial field as either a comptometer operator or as an accountant, bookkeeping will supply you with ample training.

Office practice classes prepare young people of today to be the office workers of tomorrow. Students are taught all the finer details of filing and dictaphone work. The work is very interesting and important to the student who is looking eagerly toward a business career.

The students in office practice learn to mimeograph and to use the ditto machine as capably and as skillfully as any well-trained clerk.

Besides mimeographing, office practice includes typing, the different methods of filing, shorthand, dictaphone work, the uses of calculating machines, and clerical practice in general.

Learning to do filing calls for correct and competent work and the exercise of care and attention to detail.

Winners of the typing contests at Lindblom are in fact expert typists. They are chosen from among the winners of the various typing classes, by the process of elimination. These students have acquired rapidity and dexterity, as well as accuracy in their typing and are excellent models for beginning typists.

Fingers fly over the keyboard when these girls type, for they were chosen after a number of tests as the fastest typists at Lindblom.

Knowledge of the keyboard, good posture, and rhythm in typing are three of the chief factors in making a fast and accurate typist.

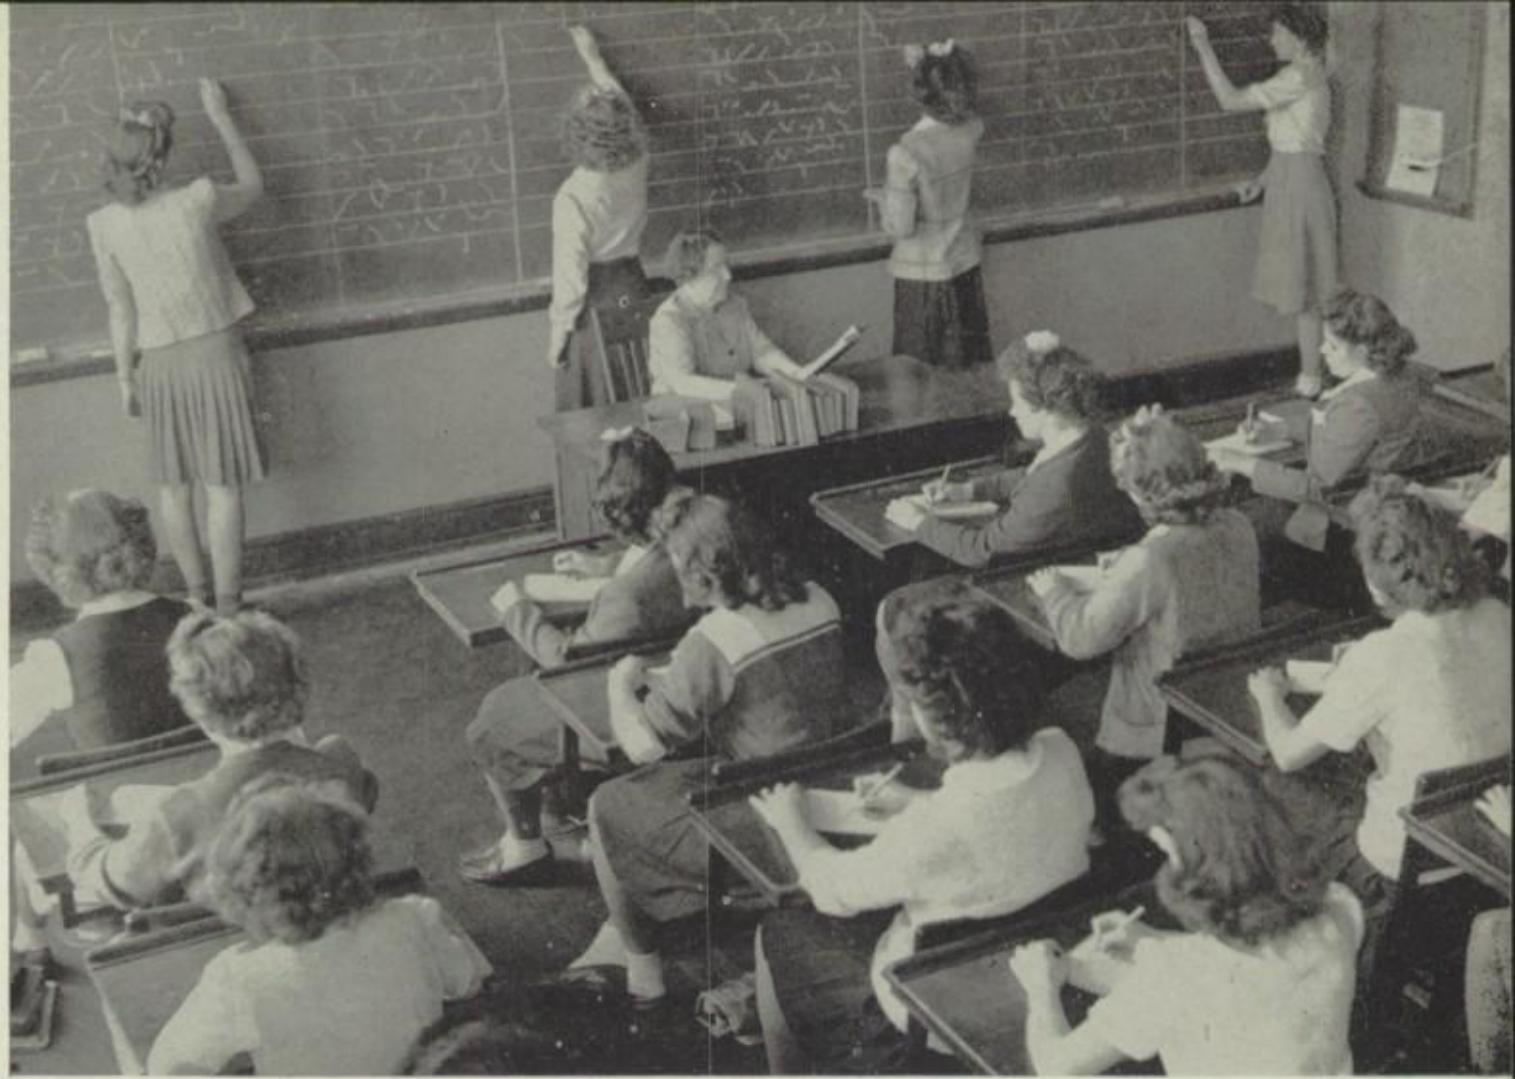

There are many opportunities in the business world for these students, as the need for stenographers is becoming greater every day as the war effort increases.

A few vital pointers on the keyboard help these students acquire a better typing technique, which will enable them to become more efficient typists.

Looking to the future, the girls in the stenographic classes spend many weary hours studying vowels and struggling with short forms. Two very important things which they must learn are position and correct strokings. The hours of study and home work seem long, and dictation much too rapid but, upon completion, pupils face the business world with confidence.

While the teacher rapidly dictates a letter, these advanced commercial students take down every word in efficient shorthand.

Speed is essential in all business. Therefore, girls able to take dictation will find little trouble in obtaining positions in these fast moving times. In another commercial subject, geography, students acquire the ability to locate strange places, which is also a business asset.

Students who will be the potential business leaders of tomorrow's world, learn the fundamental steps to success, under the watchful eyes of our commercial teachers. They are constantly brought into contact with problems in business and thus will be able to cope with them properly at a future date. These Lindblomites shall rise quickly as leaders in the world of commercial affairs.

High-school commercial law classes do not produce lawyers, but valuable class sessions sometimes include a mock trial.

While these students are not playing the stock market, it is advisable for them to know and understand its workings.

The first step in a commercial course is the learning of fundamentals in office work. This furnishes the foundation for efficient secretarial work.

Wrapping a package neatly, tying it securely, and addressing it clearly is demonstrated by girls from the business training class.

Did you ever notice some poor scholar laboriously trying to write a letter or possibly putting his papers in some sort of order? Probably this student was a pupil of business training. Among the many things taught in this subject are the proper way to write letters and filing. The pupil is also given a general idea of business life and how to cope with problems of the commercial world.

The exciting saga of our country's geography is told more efficiently through the use of maps showing our nation in its entirety.

With individual globes the geography students acquaint themselves with such romantic places as Zanzibar, Madagascar, Malay, and Timbuctoo.

Have you ever heard of Nyassa or Aden or Soruth? Any of our geography students could find these countries in a few minutes.
Due to the fact that the present war is discussed to a great extent, the students have become better acquainted with the countries that have been of paramount importance in the fulfillment of our war achievements, and also familiar with those areas in which our men are now fighting.

Mouths fairly water as these cooking students watch with anticipation, not all concealed, the frosting of a cake, a class product.

Rolling pins work in unison as class members work at the production of a tasty bit of pastry.

Into the oven goes some mysterious concoction, to come out a masterpiece of cookery, and an appetizing dish for these culinary experts.

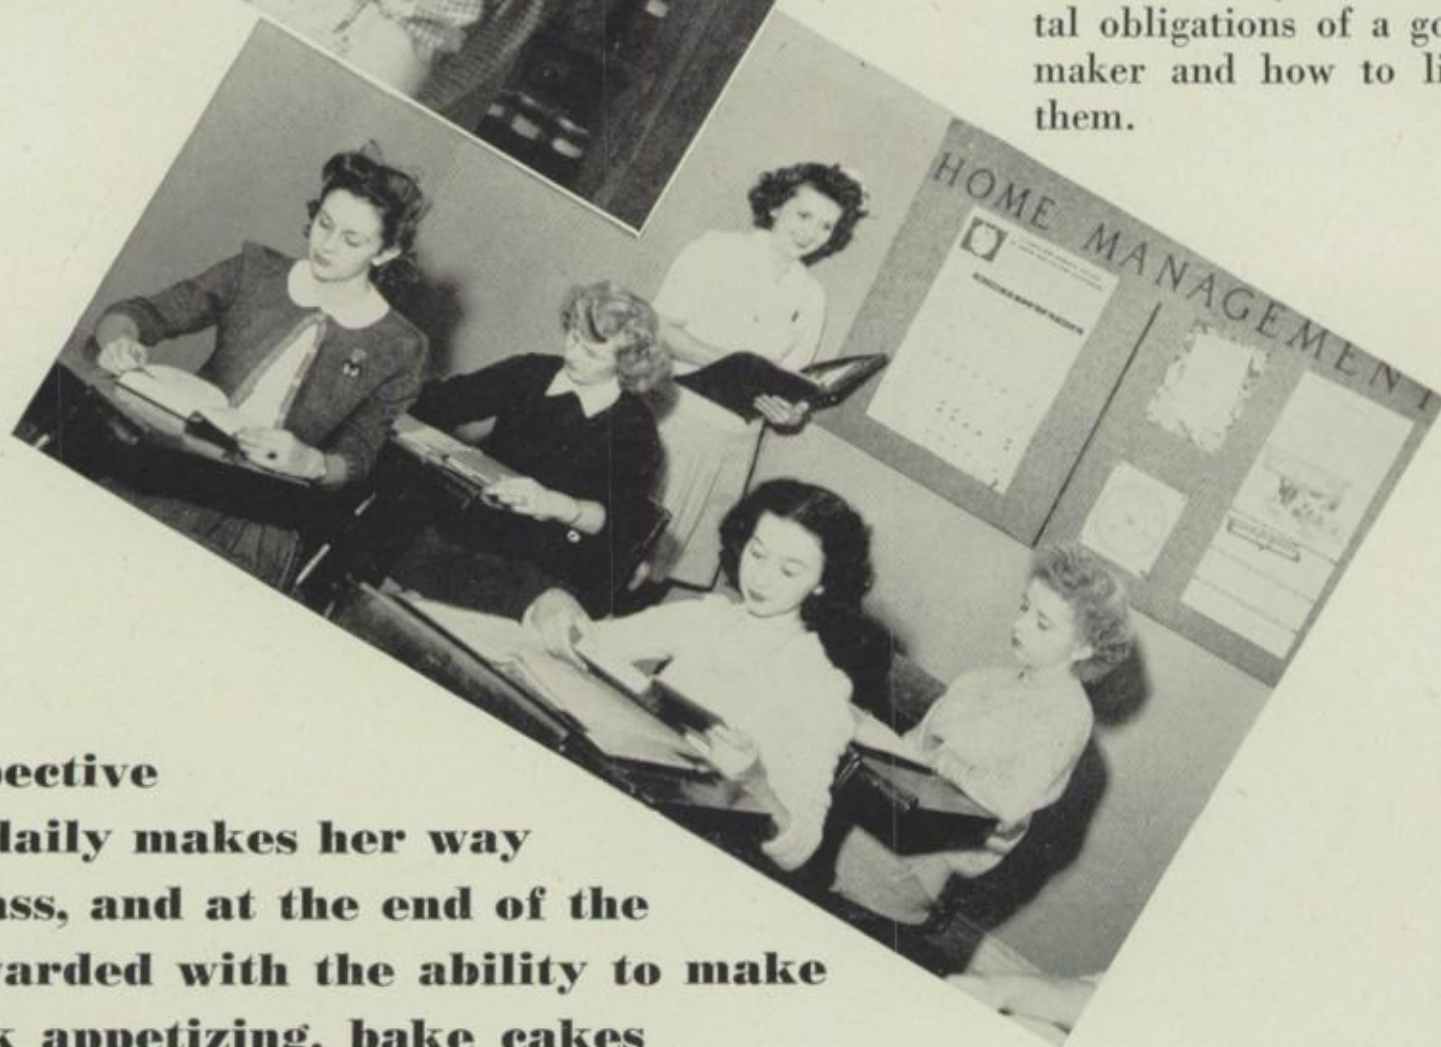

With a minimum of culinary casualties, the students in Lindblom's cooking classes whip up many tasty menus. Hard effort really goes into this cooking because the girls have to consume their own concoctions. Here they learn to spot a choice piece of meat and to plan and cook meals supplying all the necessary calories, vitamins and minerals required in a healthful diet.

Mmmmmm . . . Just like mother makes, or perhaps even better, are these delectable-looking preserves which line the shelves in the cooking room.

Home management, as its name implies, teaches the members of the class many of the fundamental obligations of a good homemaker and how to live up to them.

Many a prospective homemaker daily makes her way to a foods class, and at the end of the course is rewarded with the ability to make leftovers look appetizing, bake cakes and pies of the finest quality, and prepare foods for canning. The girls are also taught how to prepare the ideal meal, both nutritious and tempting to the eye, and patriotic, too, for not a bit of food is wasted.

Needles, spools of thread, straight pins, thimbles, tape measures, and pin cushions are a few of the many tools required in making a dress.

To learn to make one's clothes brings satisfaction to any young girl, and to learn to care for them is an even greater achievement.

At Lindblom an extensive clothing course is offered to all those who are interested. It takes firm perseverance for the beginner to conquer the mysteries of a complicated pattern, but after tedious work they are rewarded with gratifying results.

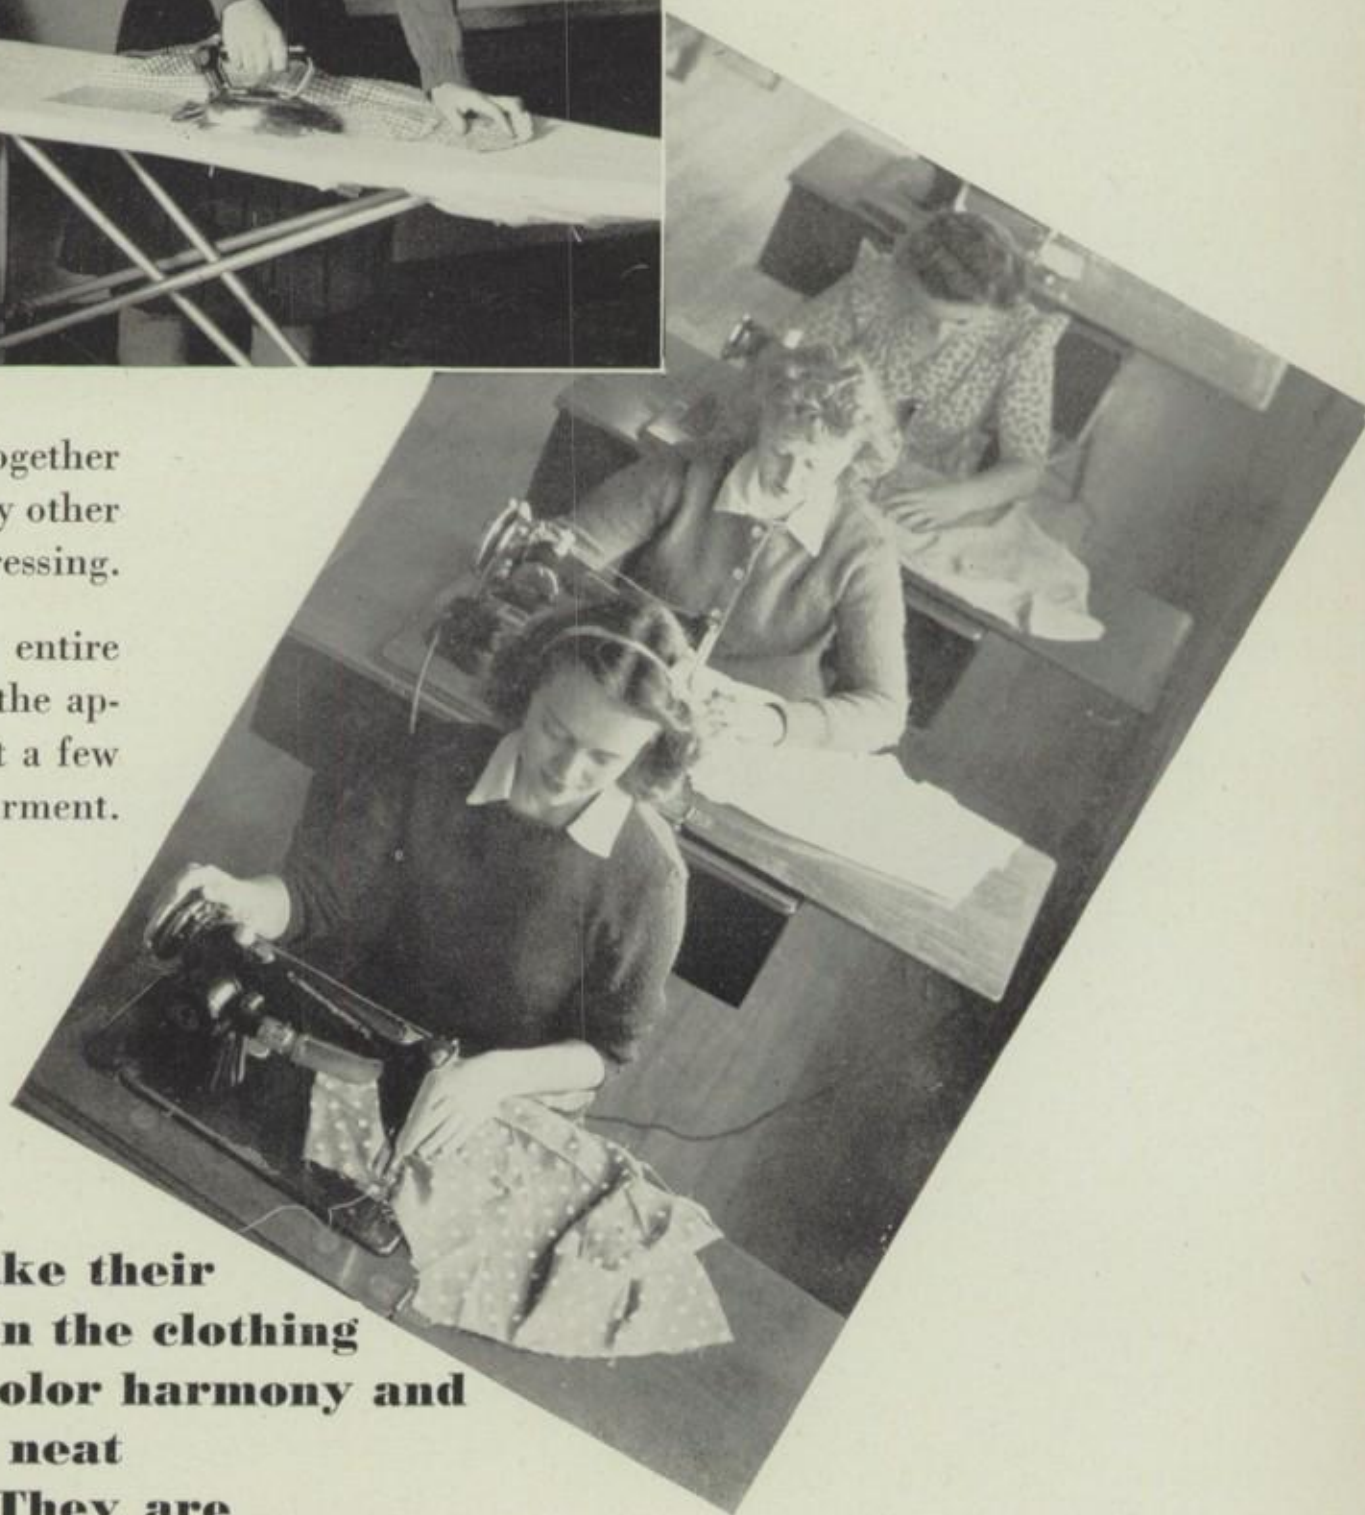

Cutting out a complex pattern is merely the first step in the intricate art of making a dress.

Along with the actual putting together of the parts of a garment, go many other activities, such as basting and pressing.

This shows the climax of the entire project, the putting together of the apparently meaningless pieces, just a few steps short of the completed garment.

Besides learning to make their own clothing, the students in the clothing classes study color harmony and learn the value of a neat personal appearance. They are taught to obtain longer wear for personal apparel through correct methods of mending, washing, and ironing garments. Upon the completion of this interesting course, students are able to make and select economical clothing in good taste.

Since the correct care of an invalid is almost essential for a speedy recovery, a practical course in home nursing and first-aid is very valuable.

To be the perfect hostess is the aim of every girl, and those in home management have learned that they can fulfill that ambition.

The gracious hostess whose dinners are masterpieces and whose hospitality is boundless does not come by her skill mysteriously. It is really the product of excellent teaching and interest on the part of teachers, and hard work, and study by the student. At Lindblom the advance classes in home management are varied in order to include such subjects as diet, care of children, family manners, home-nursing, budgets, in fact, practically everything that a good housewife should know in order to run a home efficiently.

Producing delicate transparencies is one of the many interesting projects taken up by general art classes. They are usually made around Christmas.

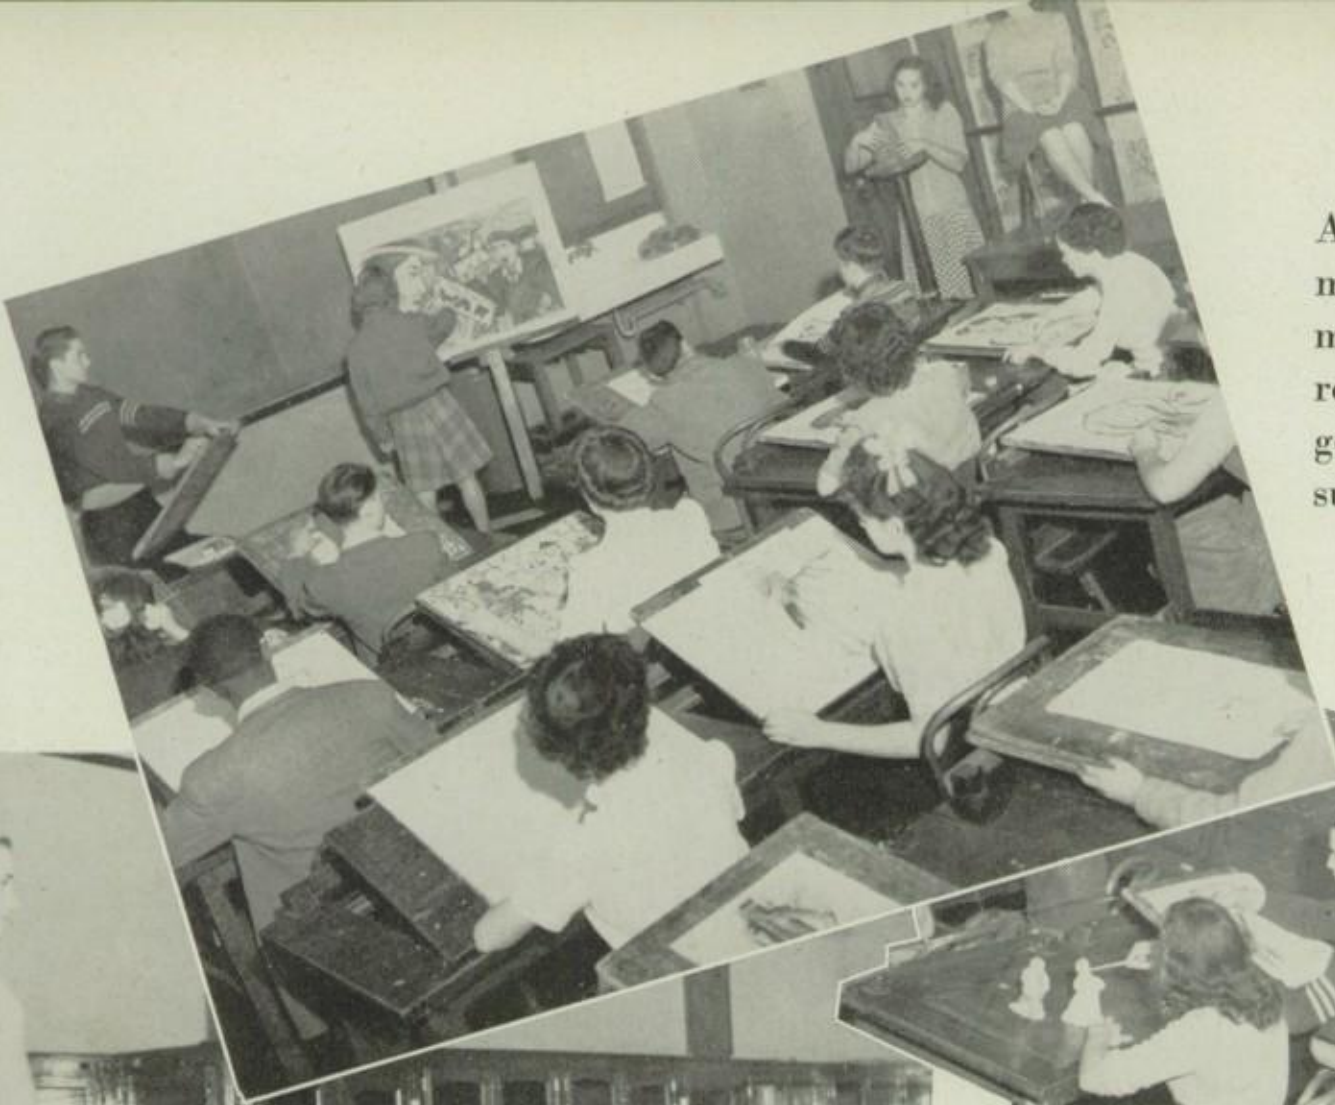

The photograph, showing a composite aspect of classes at work, illustrates the interest which the students have for their work. Richly colored transparencies hang in the windows. Resembling stained glass, these transparencies brought Christmas closer to our boys, as they were shipped to the service men's centers and Hines hospital.

At the left is what an engraver would call a photomontage, and has for its subject those projects taken up in general art.

A year of art is a requirement at Lindblom, but many students find they really enjoy drawing and go on to take it as a major subject.

Having a model to sketch from helps these students to catch the grace, poise, and beauty in the figure.

The students find the art instructors always ready and willing to give helpful and constructive criticism to assist the student in improving his picture.

Dust, chalk, and paint smeared fingers are the grief of every art student, but multicolored hands are justified by the results obtained. With paints, brushes, and a bit of ingenuity they make the beautiful paintings which give color and warmth to Lindblom's third floor corridors. Through art, one of the universal languages taught in every school today, the pupil learns color valuation, harmony, appreciation of the great masters, and enjoyment of life to the fullest extent, thus setting higher standards of living.

Work is pleasure when it holds the interest of the worker as in our Arts and Crafts classes.

The future sculptress molds the shapeless clay into an article both beautiful and useful in the Art Major classes at Lindblom.

The Arts and Crafts class produces many very cunning, realistic, articles; the result of hard work and experienced instruction.

Costume design, taken by many girls as an aid to fashionable dress, is built up to be a valuable course at Lindblom.

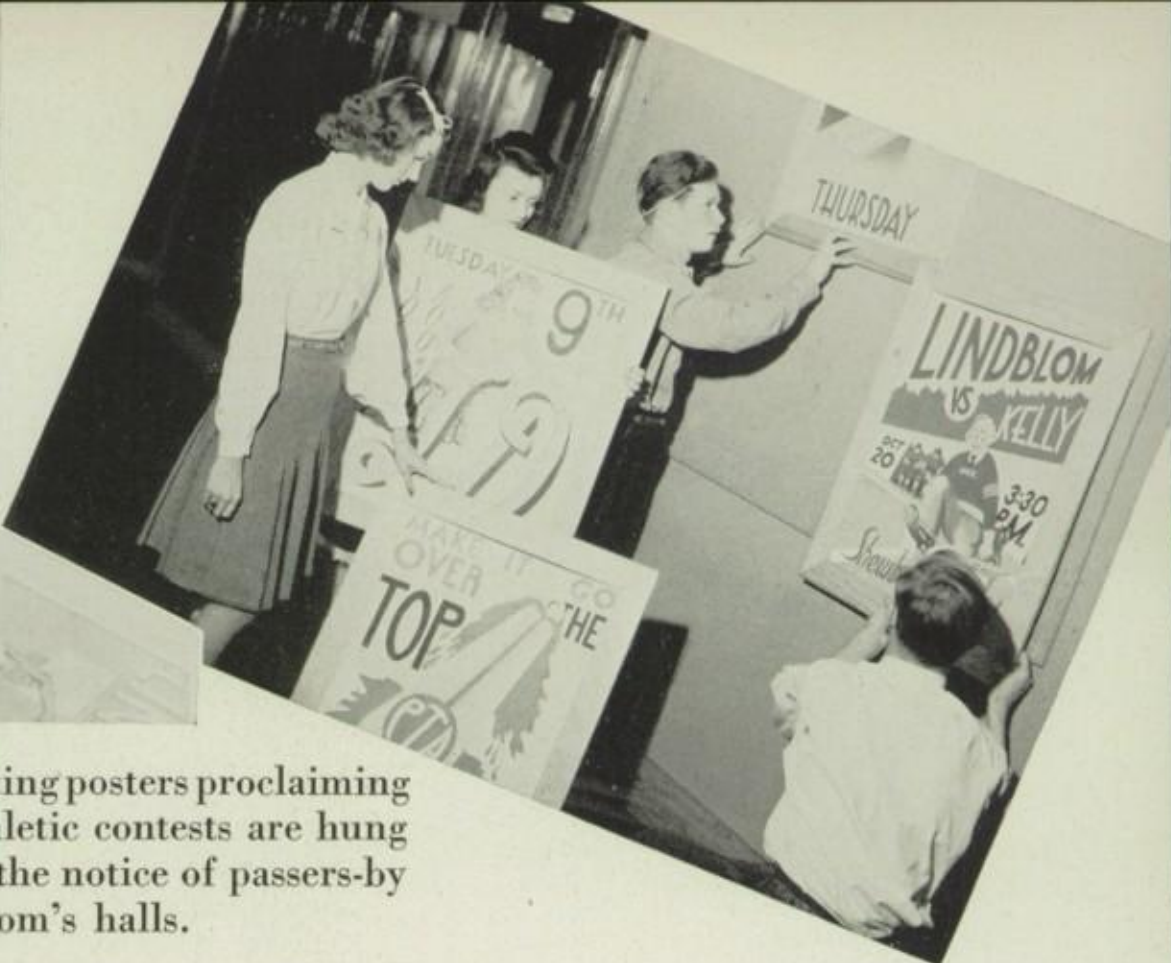

Bright colors bring life to pictures of many different compositions. As the photographs indicate, the art classes offer a wide field of choices ranging from clay modeling, fashion designing, and figure drawing, to poster designing.

Essentially, art is divided principally into two fields; commercial and fine art. It is in these classes that the students learn the differences between the two divisions, and where budding artists arrive at chances of determining their careers.

A veteran artist of the Poster Class transfers the finished poster to a Silk Screen Process stencil from which will be printed myriad copies.

Eye-arresting posters proclaiming future athletic contests are hung to attract the notice of passers-by in Lindblom's halls.

Art has played a major part in making Lindblom what she is today. Through the efforts of the poster classes Lindblom's productions and activities are well advertised.

The art department offers an opportunity for general education through an understanding of theory.

By this development of the sense of beauty, one's mind is enriched by all about him and one develops an appreciation for the beautiful. A great service has been rendered to Lindblom by the members of the art classes.

Bright posters are created in Lindblom's poster class by students taking an Art Major in hopes of continuing in Art as a career.

The stencil shown below in the making, has been placed in the screen, inked, and the copies are being pressed out.

Voices rise in melodius chorus as students are taught elementary harmony and intonation, not from books, but by actual singing.

Students are introduced to the language of music via blackboard talks by the instructor in charge of the class.

Music, the universal language, is taught at Lindblom in addition to the more prosaic languages of Spanish and Latin. Though a required subject for all students with a general course, music soon becomes a favorite with all because of the interesting nature of the course and the lasting value of the knowledge gained.

Various channels are used to make music a fascinating subject, and the radio is one popular means of bringing worth-while music to the student.

Music students frequently have the opportunity to display their talents to fellow classmates in shows which are participated in by the entire music class.

Our music department offers many recordings of fine music for its students, through which they learn the fundamentals of music appreciation.

An important and pleasurable part of music class time is devoted to singing, which is occasionally accompanied by a student playing a musical instrument.

To give the student a musical background, many phases of engrossing study are presented.
Here he may listen to the works of Bach or perhaps sing his own interpretation of a musical composition.
Thus a year of music gives the talented student a foundation for further work and a cultural background for the ordinary pupil.

Students are introduced to instruments of the orchestra by actually hearing and seeing them played upon by members of instrumental groups.

Lindblom's music department has at its disposal a huge library of sheet music and therefore a corps of librarians is necessary also.

Students practice musical notation and how to make staves, clef signs, and other symbols connected with music to perfect sight-reading techniques.

The absorbing tales of the lives of great composers and artists, form an engrossing part of Music Class curriculum.

Wagner, Tschaikowsky, and Mozart are not just names to Lindblom music students, for in the music classes compositions of these world renowned composers are played and eagerly listened to with fervent enthusiasm.

To enable a student to listen to and enjoy good music was the purpose behind making music a required subject at Lindblom.

Some members of the class examine items of interest on the class bulletin board, while others are busy at their desks.

Gaily decorated bulletin boards placed in the English classrooms inform the students of current events, vocations, best sellers, and various other items of interest. Objects posted are recent and up to date; thus an occasional glance gives the student a summary of what is going on about him.

Students examine some new material just posted on the bulletin board in their English classroom.

Grammar! Grammar! It is me, or it is I? Words so easy to say, but so hard to write correctly are explained to all Lindblomites by smiling, gracious English teachers. Every student is required to take three years of this essential subject. Besides being taught correct usage, students are presented with much of the best in literature.

Not all is learned from books. The English department has at its disposal many albums of recordings from famous plays such as Hamlet and Macbeth.

An interesting English class project is the maintenance of a magazine rack. Here students have at their finger tips material from all of the popular magazines of the day.

Various clubs have been formed in English classes to promote interest in outside reading and to provide students with well-written books.

Several special groups have started small book clubs. After finishing their homework, these scholars spend their leisure time with a "best seller." Certain committees are then formed to review latest books and periodicals and to report on them to the class. Many informal discussions are then started, which not only make English interesting, but are also a benefit to the pupil.

If you enjoy writing stories or have dreams of some day becoming a journalist, you can substitute a course in journalism for your fifth semester of English.

Students combine study and pleasure by writing a V-Mail letter and find that it is an excellent way to spend an English period.

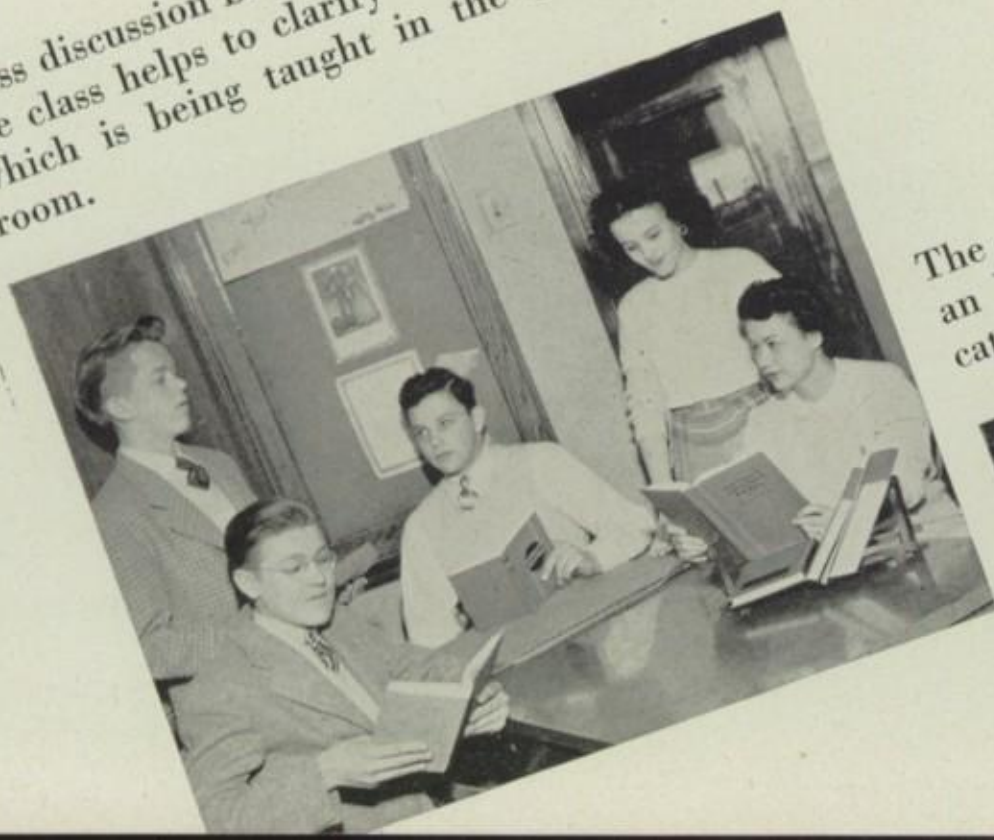

English, the one subject of sufficient importance to be required for all students for three years, is given full emphasis at Lindblom. The principles of writing and speaking our language are studied by all students, for they know that in order to be successful in any enterprise the ability to write and speak the language with skill is of paramount importance.

The world of radio with its interest to all is an open book to these students of the public speaking class.

Take it away! With these words the public speaking class starts another one of those near-professional performances for which they are gaining a reputation at Lindblom. This group did especially fine work in the Pep Meetings and in the Armistice Day program.

Class discussion between members of the class helps to clarify the subject which is being taught in the class room.

The easiest way to select a book for an English report is via the card catalog in Lindblom's library.

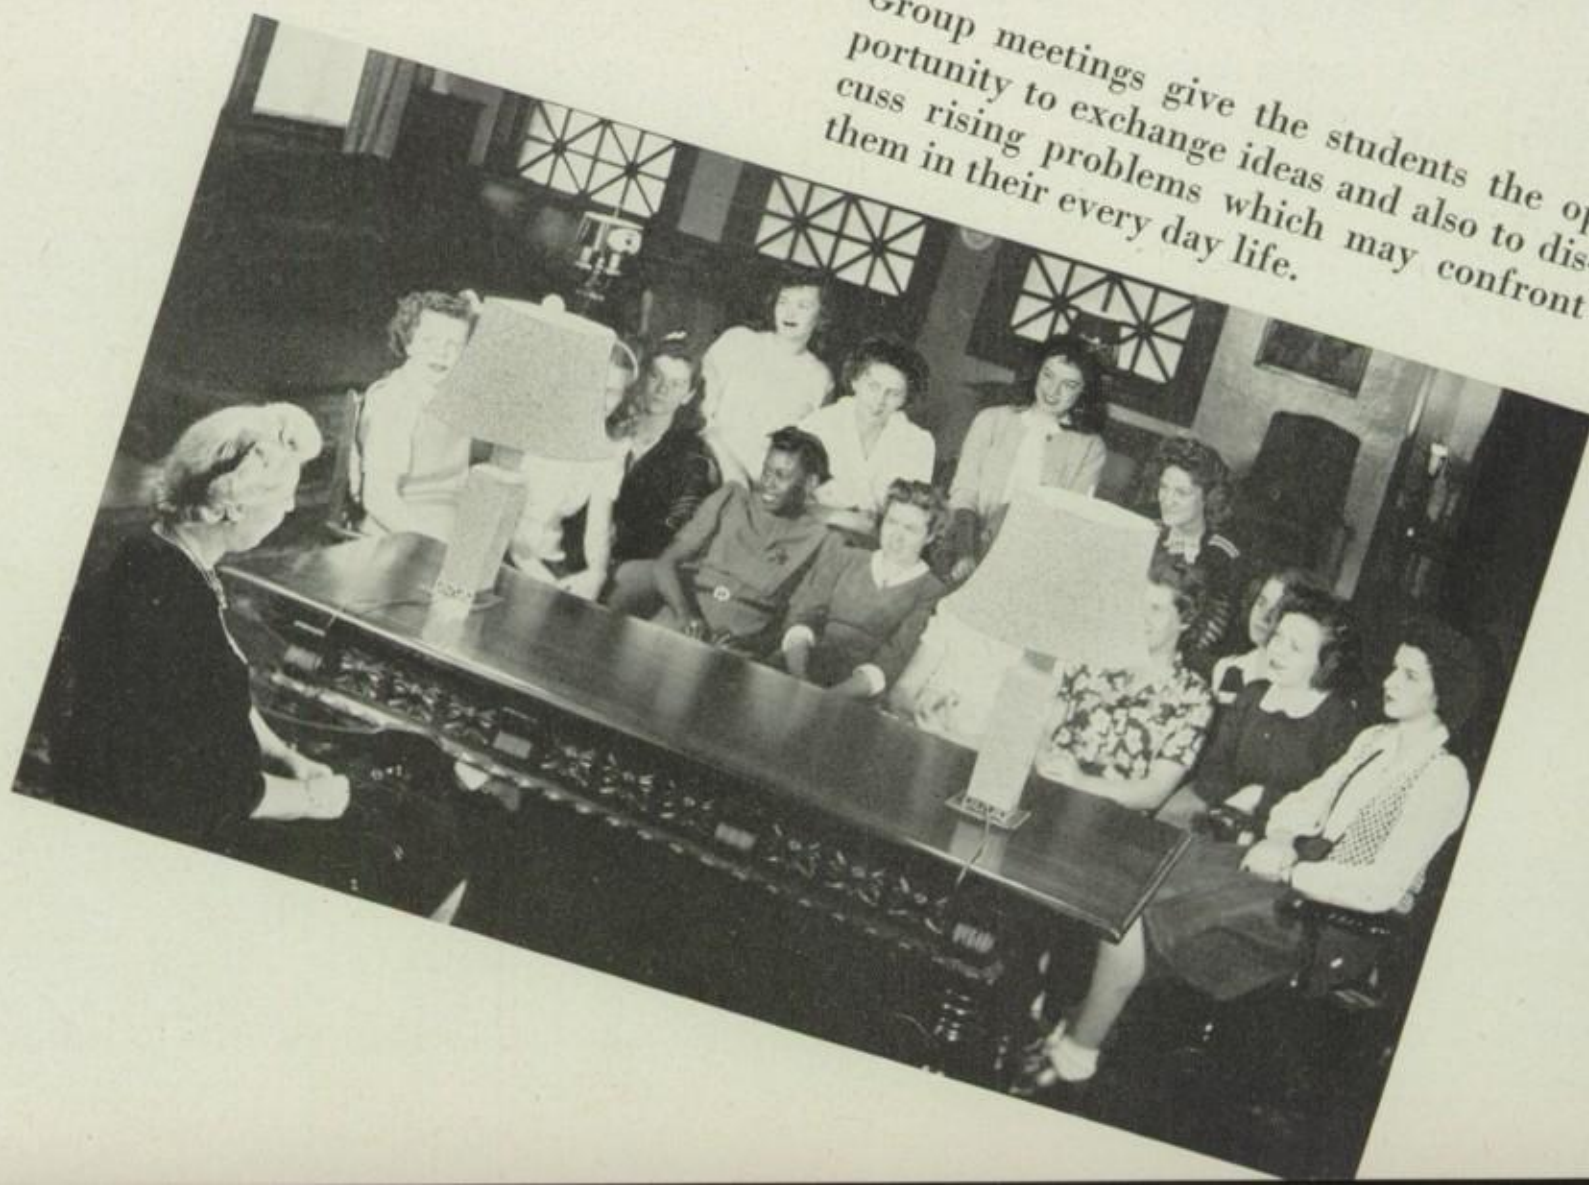

Among the many things done by students toward the war effort, the collecting of books, an accomplishment of the English department, holds a place of definite significance.

Though English is primarily the study of our language, it is also varied to include other projects of value and interest to the students. Collection of books for servicemen provides a worth-while activity, as do group meetings which discuss current problems in an informal, friendly manner.

Group meetings give the students the opportunity to exchange ideas and also to discuss rising problems which may confront them in their every day life.

Symbolic of the good neighbor policy is the meeting of this Spanish speaking Latin American girl and English speaking North American boy in Lindblom's melting pot.

An interesting addition to Lindblom's student body was a young Latin American girl, who added a great deal of zest to the Spanish class in which she was enrolled. The fluency with which she was able to speak Spanish was extremely fascinating to the members of the class. The class, in turn, reciprocated with practical lessons in manners and customs of the United States.

This war has taught us the importance of closer relations with the American republics. A knowledge of their language is therefore becoming more valuable.

The schools in the United States are urging the students to speak, read, and write the Spanish language.

They realize that the knowledge of Spanish will help to cement friendship between the United States and the countries of South America.

This gaily clad group of Spanish students are representing the colorful costumes which are so symbolic of Spain.

Foreign language is swiftly gaining importance, for in order to realize our plans for a global peace the people in all nations must be able to understand one another.

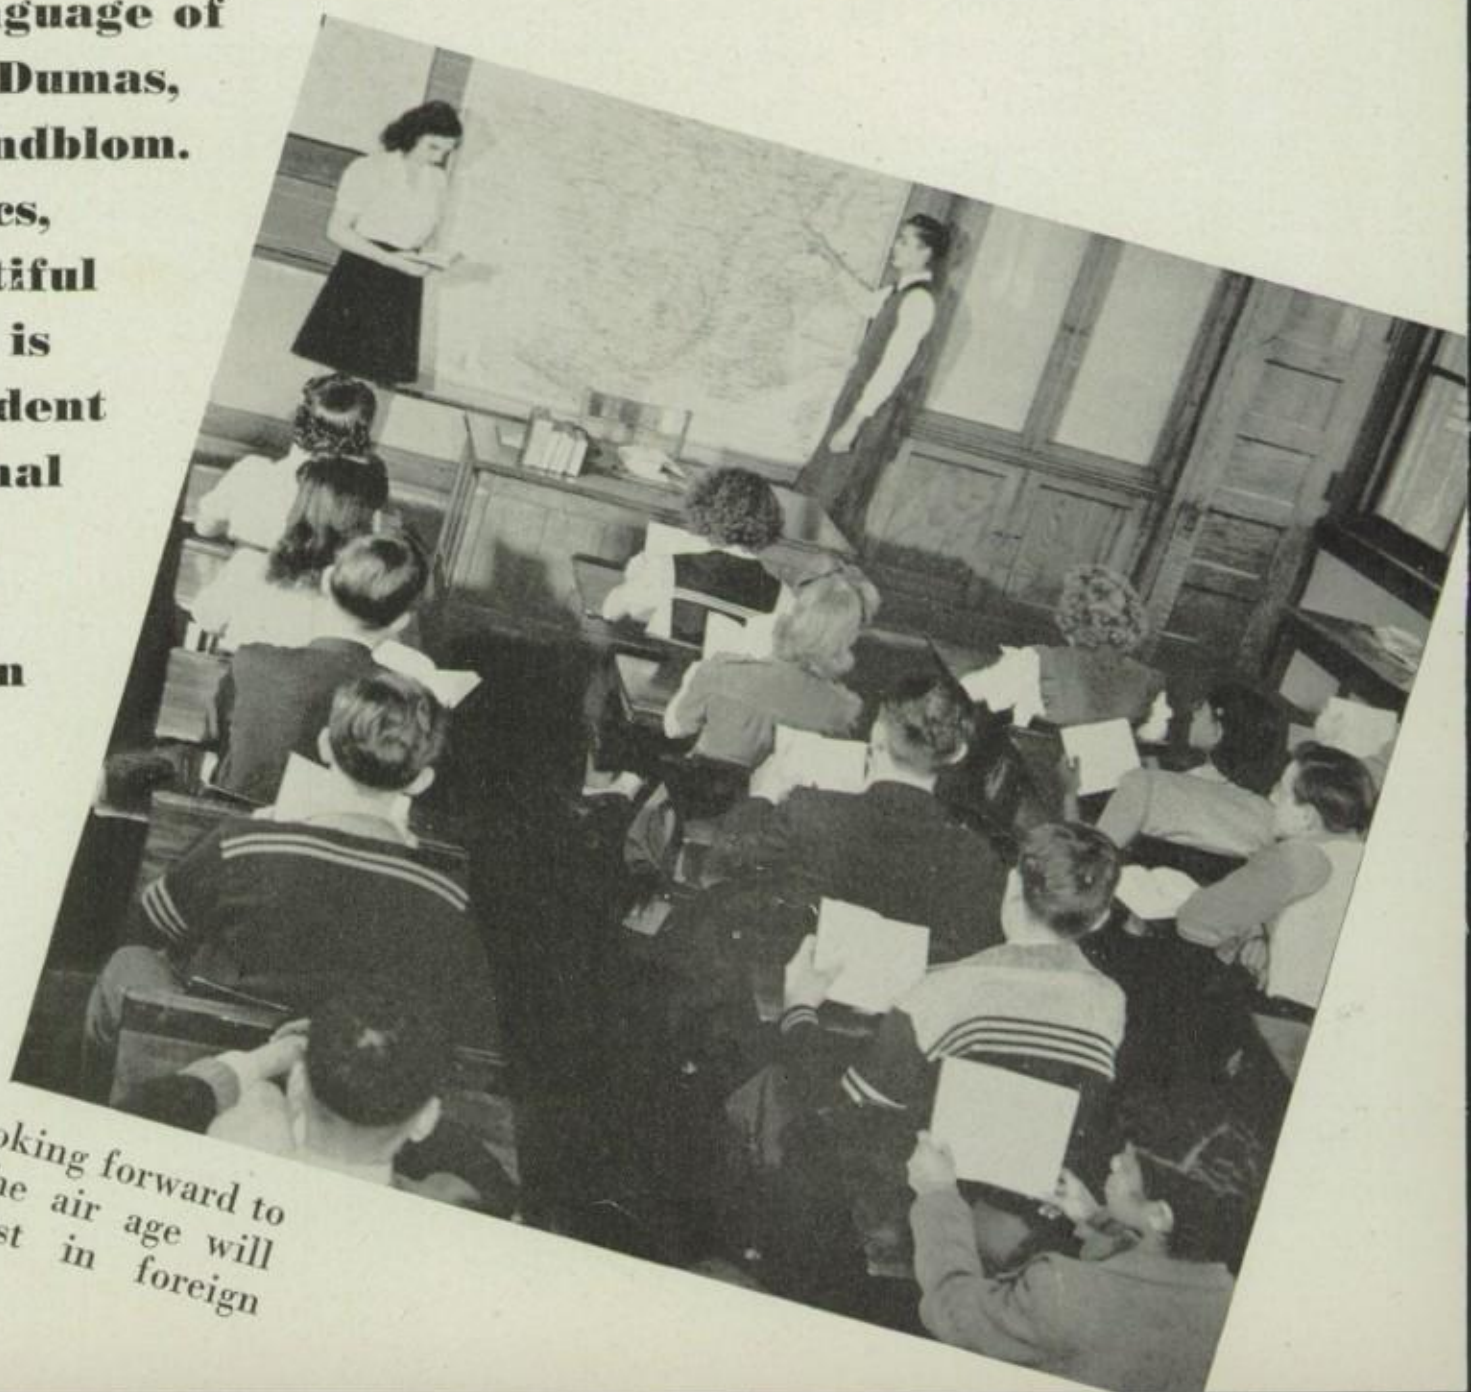

The pictures and maps that bedeck most of the language class rooms give the pupils a better idea of how the people live in France and Spain.

French, the language of Pasteur, Hugo, and Dumas, is also taught at Lindblom.

Through phonetics, this, the most beautiful of all tongues, is brought to the student in all its original lustre. Not only is grammar taught, but instruction is also given in the customs, music, and lore of France.

Most of these students are looking forward to the post-war future when the air age will greatly increase the interest in foreign language.

The language department uses many devices to make the study of Latin more valuable to all who take part in the lesson.

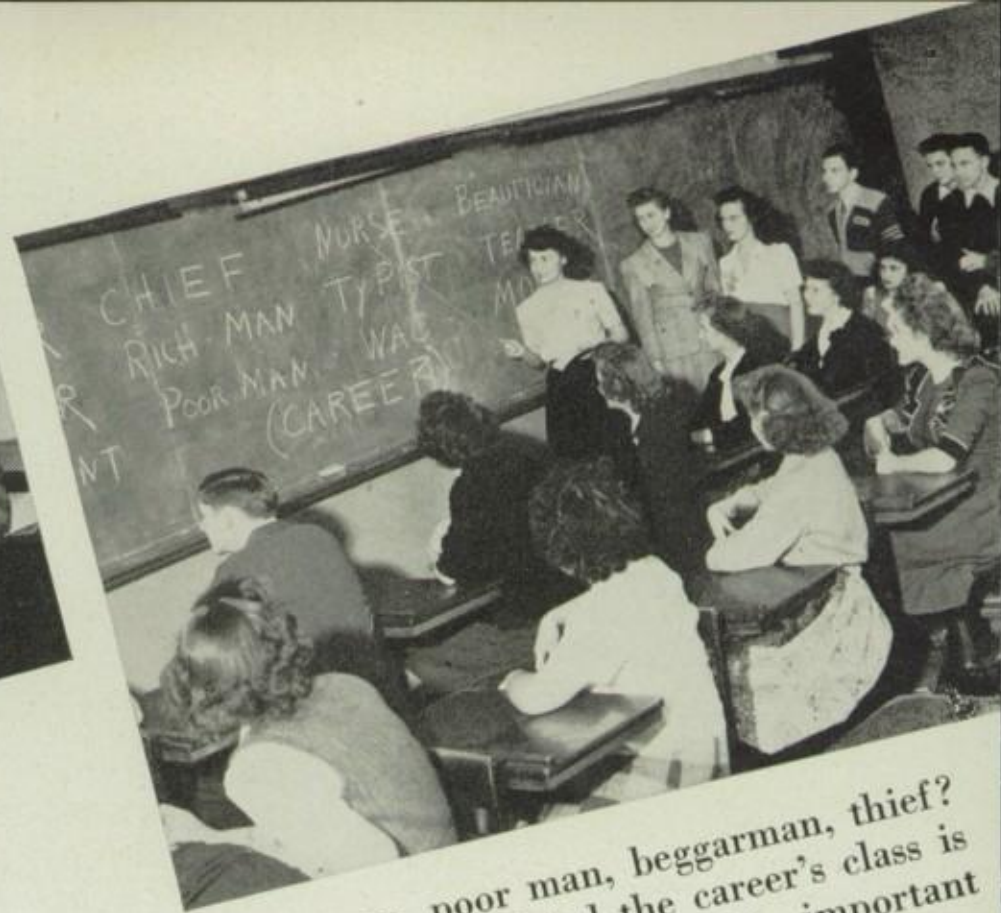

Text-books, maps, oral and written work, both on paper and the board, help to instruct and entertain.

The war has taught us the importance of closer relations with our fellow countries, and the best way of being acquainted is through knowing their languages. So in Lindblom's Spanish and French classes, speech has been greatly emphasized. Knowledge of these languages is thus becoming more valuable. The language of the ancient Romans, Latin, is studied today not only because it is mother to French, Spanish, and Italian, but because it forms the basis of our English words.

The study of wall maps illustrating historical events lends interest to the history course as it is taught at Lindblom.

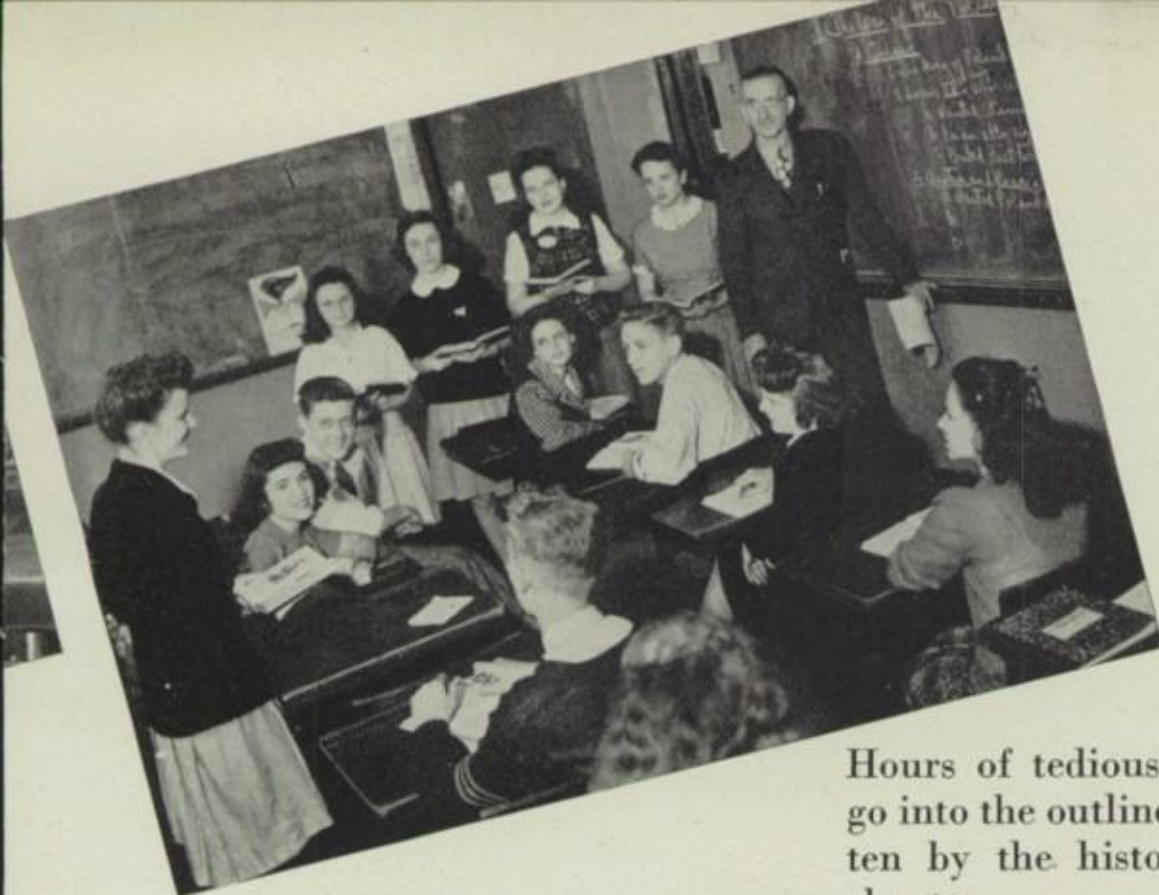

Rich man, poor man, beggarman, thief? The purpose behind the career's class is to help students decide this important question.

To train students to live in a democratic society is the function of the social studies. The members of the department guide the students toward the better fulfillment of their roles as citizens, and teach them to evaluate the social forces at work in the world in which we live.

To teach students the locations of the American historical shrines is one aim of the history course which is given at Lindblom.

To the student undecided about his vocation, the careers classes offer a course which assists him in arriving at the profession of his choice.

Hours of tedious, brain racking work go into the outlines which must be written by the history students on each chapter.

History is one of the most interesting subjects taught at Lindblom, for it relates, in an attractive manner, the situations and problems that had to be faced by the countries of the other hemisphere as well as our own.

Maps and outlines constitute the principle forms of study, and help the students to understand the formation and growth of the influential countries of today.

A news summary and a discussion of the current events of the day lend an interesting note to the beginning of a period of history.

The chance to delve into the constructive lives of such famous men as Caesar, Charlemagne, and Benjamin Franklin is offered to the students through interesting history classes.

Also presented is the opportunity to discuss the advancement of the world, from the early days up to the present time, its people, and their advancing civilization.

The study of maps and charts graphically illustrates to the student the subject matter taught in the history classroom.

The moving picture, as it is very popular, is widely used for educational purposes in both history and geography classes.

Tracing the route of some great explorer or following the world's great sea-lanes of war and peace help visualize the march of history.

United States history and civics are two of the most important courses required at Lindblom.

The history acquaints the student with the past of our great country, and civics prepares him today for the future when he must take his place as an active citizen.

It would be difficult either to study or understand civics or history without the use of such visual aids as maps and globes.

Deep thinking, careful work, and formal explanation constitute the essentials of the work on the many practical trig problems used in industry.

The quiz master makes vain attempts to stump his students, but they have been well-taught and answer all questions expertly.

Secretly planning to repudiate Einstein's theories, these quiz kids of trigonometry take their work seriously. Trigonometry is from all points of view an advanced subject, as it comprises an application of algebra and geometry. Without trigonometry many departments of industry would be greatly handicapped.
In addition to its civilian uses it is of the greatest possible use in the military services.

After receiving instructions in the effects of air speed, wind direction, and wind velocity, pre-flight students become acquainted with the use of the wind triangle. Mock flight lessons help the students to become more familiar with airplane controls, terminology and a smattering of theory of flight.

In the Post-War World Aviation will play a major part, thus opening many careers to youths now of high school age. To help students at Lindblom choose the particular branch of this field which they wish to enter, the school offers a course in this subject.
In order that the students may see all phases of the work, the course is varied to such widely diverse subjects as meteorology, radio, and theory of flight.

The most advanced science course offered at Lindblom, chemistry, is a subject whose knowledge is daily absorbed by many upper classmen. Because of the laboratory experiments, which follow classroom lectures, the student soon becomes familiar with chemical apparatus, rules of safety, and laboratory procedure.

Among the routine experiments performed by the students, the distillation of water, which to the layman seems quite complicated, is the most common. Illustrated below is one of the average experiments performed in the chem lab, that of collecting oxygen by means of heating KClO_3 .

Nauseating stenches rise from behind closed doors as Lindblom's future chemists probe the combustible properties of sulfur. In addition to laboratory experiments, chemistry students learn many of the ninety-two elements, their properties, valences,
and allotropes.
From these classrooms will emerge tomorrow's scientific geniuses.

The electrolysis of water and the preparation of hydrogen are the two experiments so intently regarded by the students.

The writing on the blackboard may look like an algebra problem, but any chemistry student may easily see that it is a simple chemical equation.

General science covers an immense field, from the vastness of the solar system to the minuteness of the amoeba.

One of the more personal objects under observation is the human body itself, with special study of the skeleton.

General science is one of the most interesting and informative courses required at Lindblom. The student has a chance to study everything from astronomy to zoology. This broad field enables the student to come in contact with most of the important phases of science, and therefore increases his general outlook on life.
During war-time, in which science is playing such a tremendous part, these classes take on added importance.

From the intent look on the faces of these students, it can easily be seen that an extremely fascinating experiment is being performed.

Physics is a vast subject into which the high school course does not delve too deeply, but the many experiments are always interesting and profitable.

To students well-trained in biology, physics comes as a further step in the fascinating study of the mystery of life which is a part of science. Though not dealing strictly with life, nevertheless, the forces which affect life are discussed thoroughly.
The particular branches of this subject with which physics deals is the study, primarily, of matter, and specifically, of mechanics, heat, sound, and electricity.

Through the use of the biology laboratory the student gains knowledge from actual experimentation and also supplements his textbook learning.

The biology student is intrigued by the charts on the walls of the laboratory and by the various mounted specimens of zoological life.

Biology, strictly speaking, is the science which deals with the origin and life history of plants and animals. Charts, museum studies, live specimens, and fine microscopes are used to enable the student to grasp the subject matter more efficiently and to make his study more enjoyable. It is through biology that the student becomes better acquainted with life and the living plants and animals which surround us in our world.

The physics lab is popular because it affords new interests, individual experimentation, and always something new, whether it is finding the velocity of a bullet or applying Archimedes principal.

Independence reigns supreme in the laboratory. What is accomplished and how well is dependent on the individual student, a challenge that is accepted with eagerness and determination.

Newton, Galileo, and Boyle:
these are just a few of the famous names with which a student becomes acquainted when commencing a physics course. These courses are divided into five main subjects, mechanics, heat, electricity, sound, and light. A course in physics will prove invaluable to the student who plans to become a scientist and is useful to the layman, too, for the practical knowledge which it contains.

The future of Chicago as an air terminal is discussed by the pre-flight students with the help of the globe.

A study of air travel routes on the globe appears to have the complete attention of these pre-flight students. They also study airplane structure, aerodynamics, engine operation, and aircraft observation. To aid in aircraft recognition, diagrams and silhouettes are made. The construction of the parts of a plane is studied by the student under the supervision of a skilled instructor.

A study of the rib construction of an airplane wing is included as part of the pre-flight course.

A small model of a steam engine enables the students to see and understand the working of the principles which govern the use of steam as a motive power.

Whether it be studying the heavens or learning the cycle of a piston, the freshman expresses keen interest in prodding the depths of this great field.

Now, with almost the whole world at war, the science courses in every school have become essential in the course of study of all students.

In a general science class the student receives a brief but accurate sample of the most significant scientific facts. The work in science classes is interesting, informative, and useful. The student feels that his time is being used to the best advantage when he can so easily obtain such valuable information.

The growing room—here biology students may further their knowledge of botany. It has proved of invaluable service to the school.

The mystery of life is not only a timely subject, but one that makes biology interesting. The atmosphere of the biology lab is such that it encourages learning. The study of things about him expands the pupil's education, immeasurably. By studying, one better prepares himself for life and for his role as a useful member of society.

The use of the microscope is somewhat new to most biology students, and they thrill to the exploration of new worlds through this amazing instrument.

Though they emit many grunts and groans, the boys realize the necessity of calisthenics to toughen them up for the military life that is imminent.

One, two, three, four! Groans and moans ensue as muscles bulge to the bursting point. In securing sound health in mind and body for Uncle Sam, the boys go through their vigorous calisthenics with enthusiasm. Tug-of-war, basketball, and racing rank high in the boys' opinions.

Climbing the rope up to the track is one of the essential ways by which the fellows develop massive muscles and gain increasing strength.

The tug-of-war is a conditioning exercise that is well-liked by the boys, due to the competitive element.

Over at Hubbard branch, the fellows are subjected to the same program that has been put into effect at the main building.

Calisthenics is said to be a system of light gym exercises, but the fellows, heedless of definition, work earnestly at this exercise.

In compliance with our country's request, Lindblom offers sturdy youth. The satisfaction of development drives them on as they jump over hurdles and slither up and down ropes like experienced performers, but there is more than that to physical education. Here the boys exhibit their skill in first-aid.

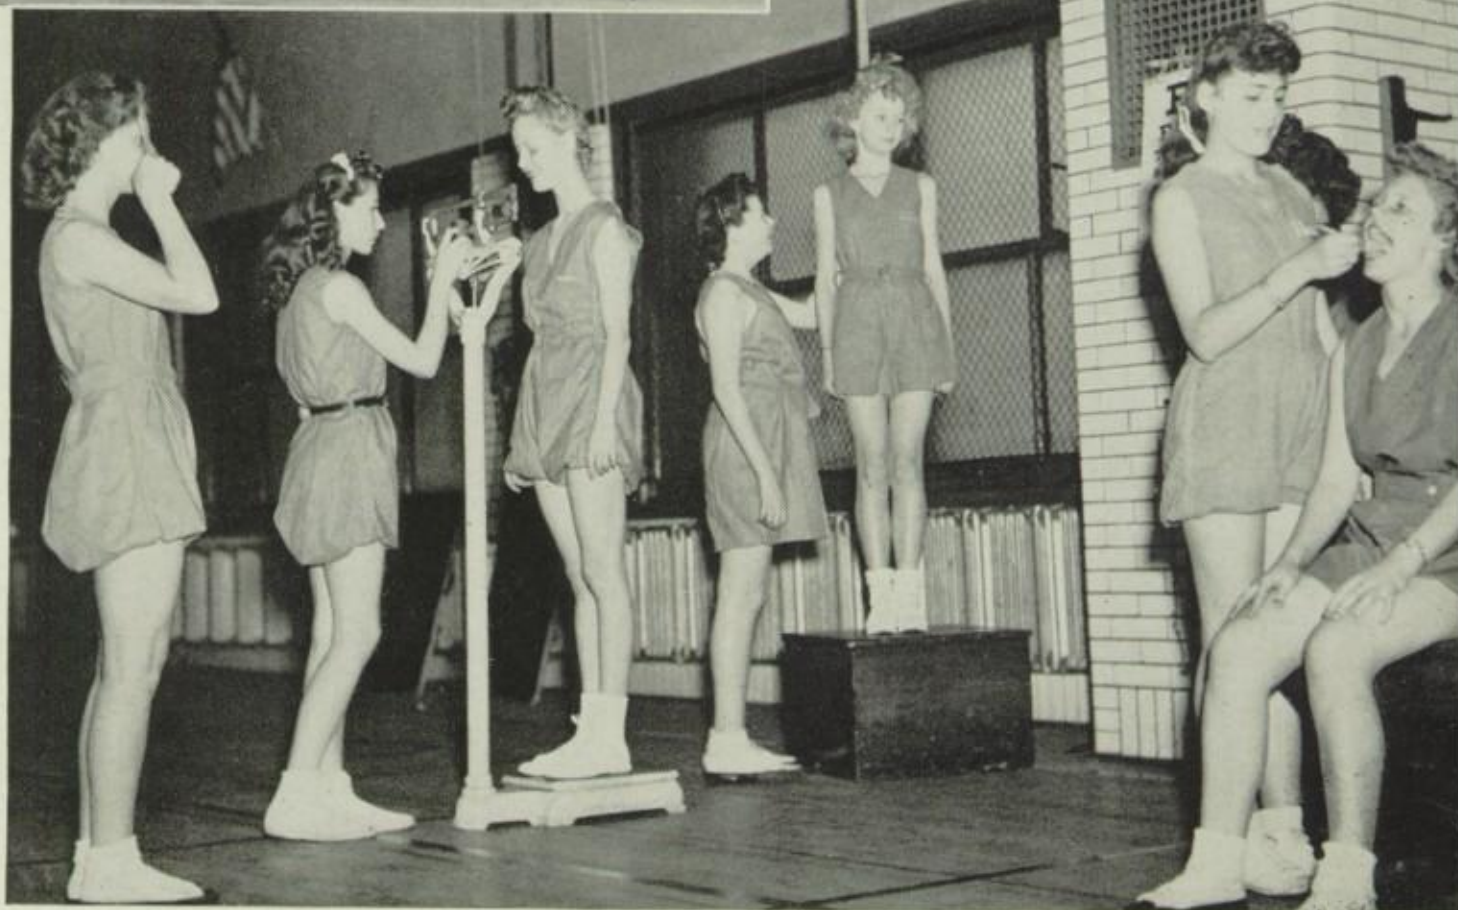

First-aid, a subject with which every student must be acquainted, is taught, along with other important health essentials to all of the boys.

The girls are given certain stunts which they must perform. Here a girl executes a perfect cart wheel as a leader stands by to credit her for it.

Medical exams given in the school gym to all freshmen help insure their health and encourage them to correct any defects which they may have.

The word stunt is from the German word stunde, meaning lesson. These stunts are essentially lessons in self-control and coordination which are required for every Lindblom girl. The girls' gym department also requires that each freshman girl undergo a thorough medical examination, fulfilling one of Hippocrates' life-long dreams, that of economical and skillful medical attention for everyone.

"One, two, three," rolls continuously forth as a group of girls are put through a gym period of calisthenics.

Calisthenics — "A system of light gym exercises, adapted to the promotion of health and cultivation of gracefulness" — t h u s says Webster's dictionary.

The girls' gym classes are giving the fellows a little competition on push-ups. It looks simple, but have you ever tried it?

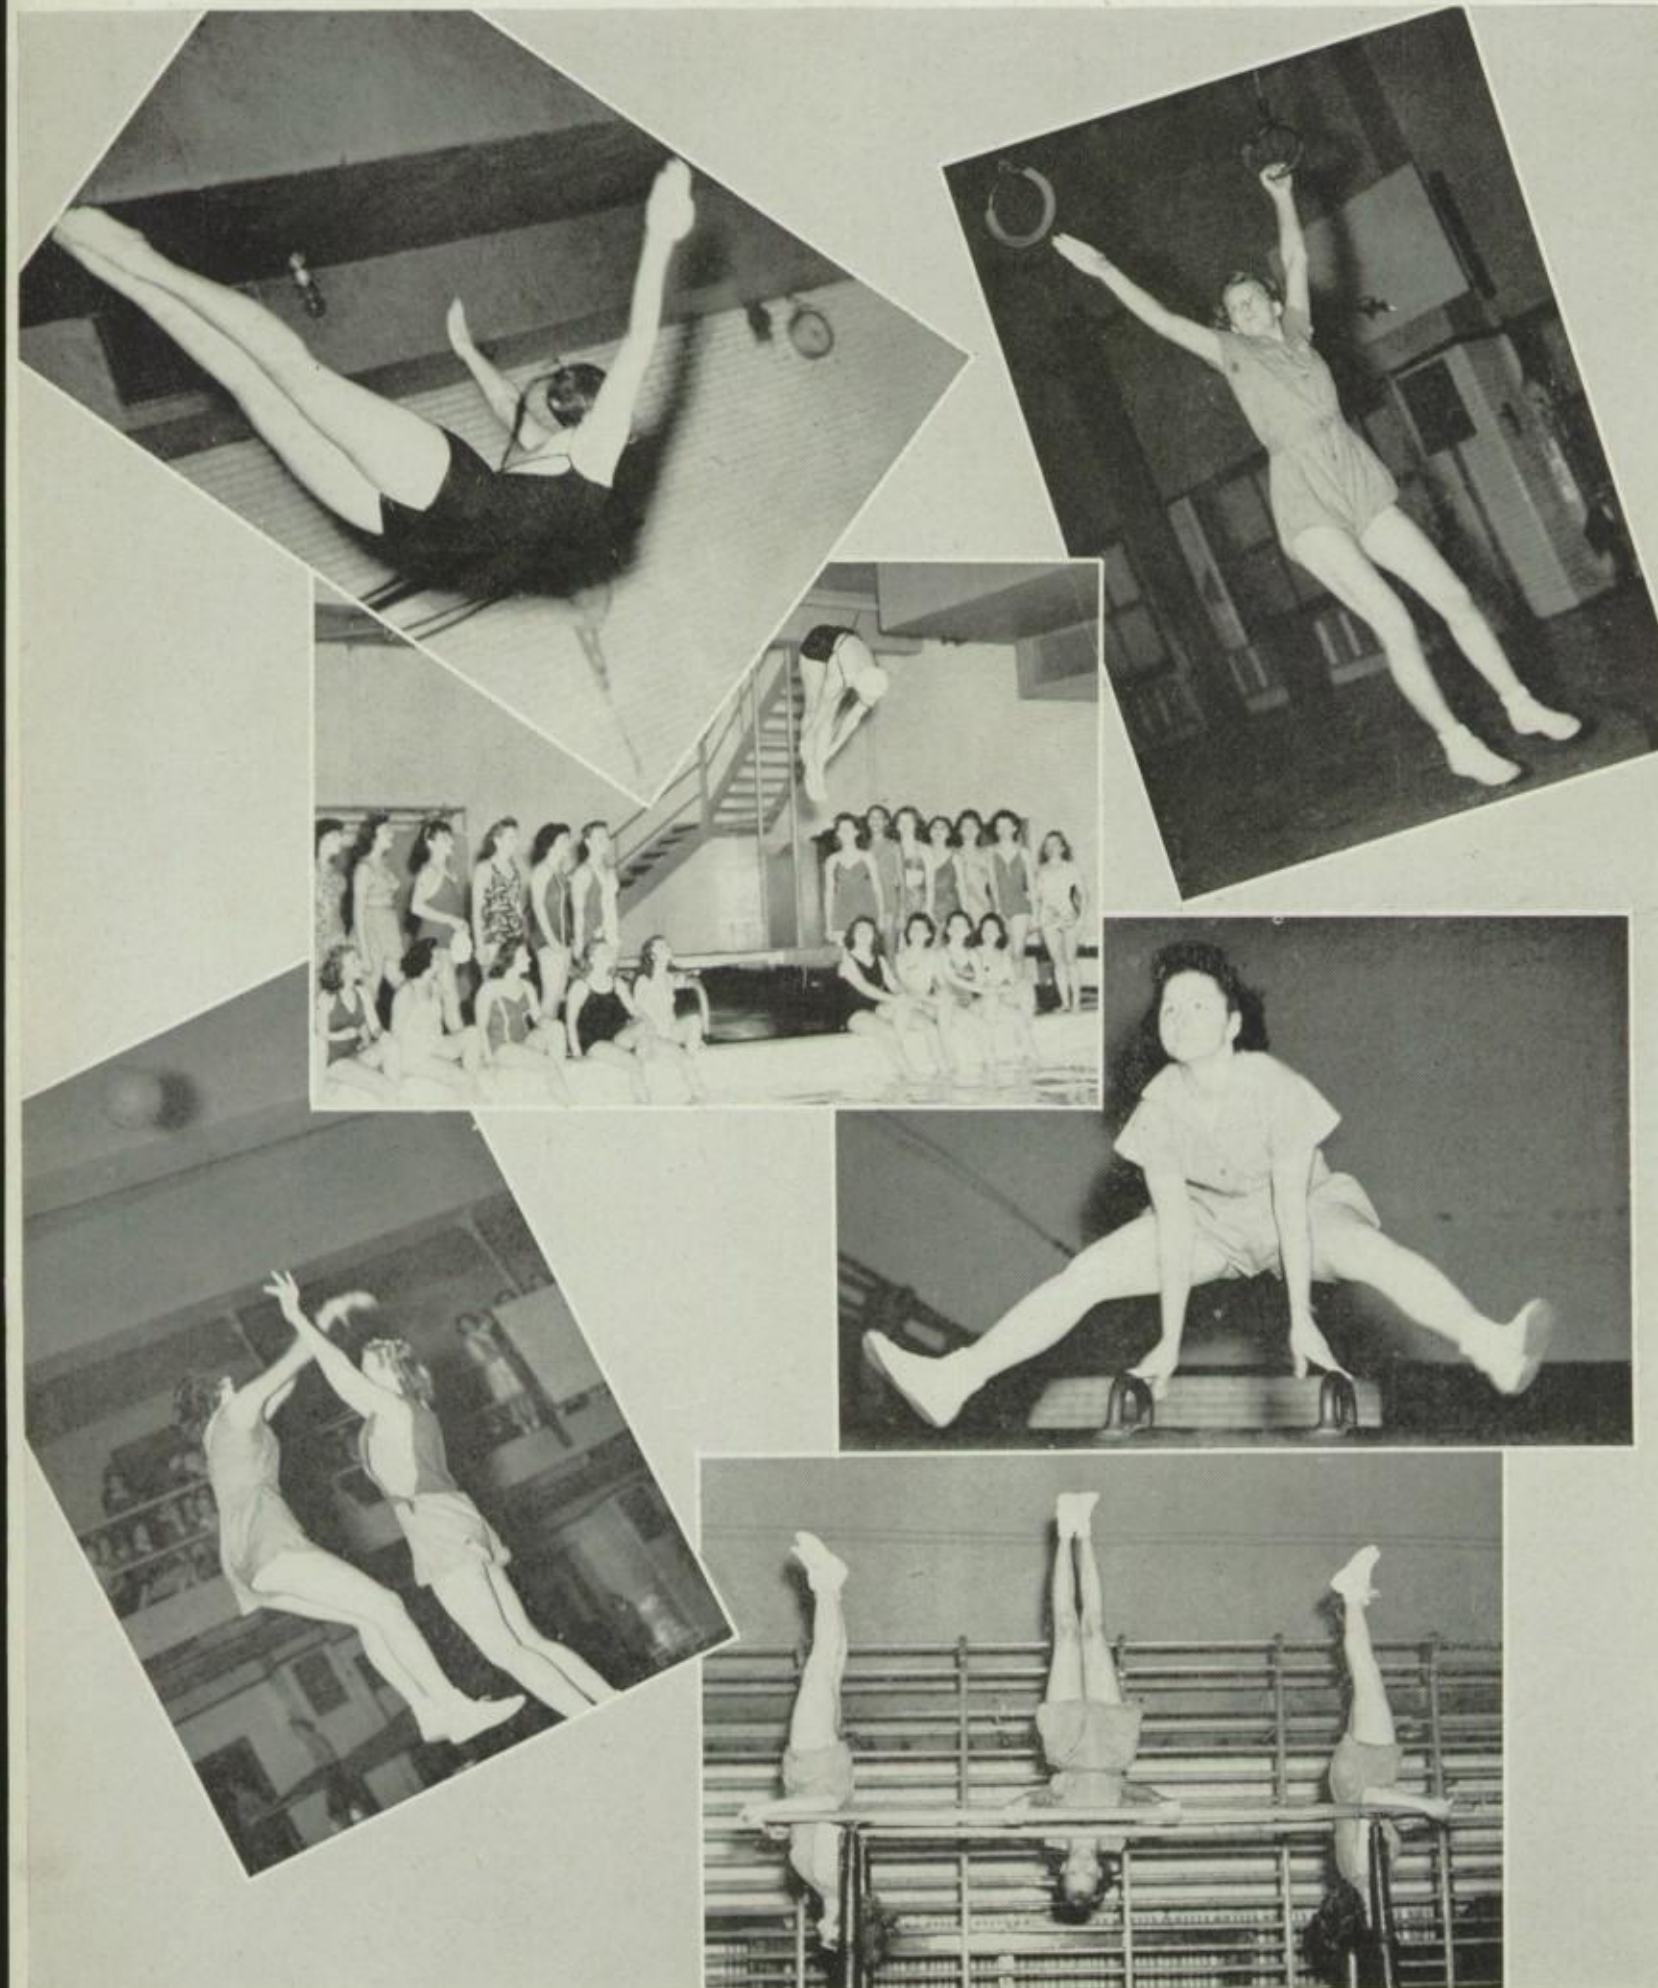

Taking its cue from Uncle Sam, who has achieved such striking results through daily calisthenics for soldiers' physical fitness, the girls' gym department has found these simple, effective exercises easily worth the time spent, and will find them worth far more in years of vigorous well-being.

America, engaged in a desperate struggle for her existence, has found that good health cannot be over-emphasized.

Gym classes attempt to develop strength, quickness and endurance in the youth of today. These girls so trained are preparing for the future, realistically.

Realizing that active sports help achieve the ancient's goal of a sound mind in a sound body, Lindblom girls concentrate on these stunts and games designed especially for muscle development, co-ordination, posture, and fun. While enjoying themselves, they develop healthy bodies and alert minds that they may better serve their country and prepare themselves for a better world.

Careful to get an accurate cut, the boy operates the jig-saw with a skilled hand. The jig-saw is a valued tool in any wood shop and is noted for its maneuverability in cutting thin pieces of wood.

Industrial arts offers the fields of woodwork, printing, metal work and ceramics. Here a boy engaged in ceramics dexterously shapes a bowl which will later be painted in bright colors.

Learning the types and uses of tools, these boys put their shop knowledge to practical application. Using the tools about which they have learned, the boys make practical projects which give them the experience needed in advance shops. Here an advanced student is given the privilege of doing metal work on the lathe, which usually consists in making ash trays or bowls.

Here a boy works on the wood lathe, being careful to work the wood into the proper shape. When the desired shape is reached, the project is smoothed and rounded.
The jaws of the Gordon printing press yawn hungrily as it continues to devour more paper. Controlling the press entirely by himself, the boy can produce as many prints as are desired.

The librarian and her student assistants check books for the many students who throng Lindblom's library every day to select books, do reference work, and read.

"What's a good book that's fast reading? I've got to make a book report tomorrow." This is one of the many questions asked of the library staff, who are always ready to help a student in distress. In Lindblom's library, students may obtain books of all types from the lightest of fiction to Shakespeare and philosophy, for the shelves are crammed with volumes to suit everyone. The library is also a never-ending source of valuable reference material for both teachers and students alike.

Round About Lindblom

Miss Crisman and Mrs. Malloy are the teachers in charge of the Adjustment Office; Mr. Rupprecht is the Vocational Placement Counselor.

The purpose of the Attendance Office, under the direction of Mr. Bach, Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. Connolly, Mrs. Atkinson, and Mr. Shore, is to cut down tardinesses and absences.

The girls' rest room has been under the supervision of the matron, Mrs. Finlay, since the building was opened. Here one finds comfort and quiet and kindly assistance.

This chart shows just how far each division has gone toward Berlin. Every colored square represents the purchase of a War Bond.

Valuable service to Lindblom is rendered by the clerks. Among their many duties are the handling of incoming and outgoing mail, answering phone calls and aiding visitors.

Dispensing of supplies is not an easy job, but a hard and necessary one. Mr. Brazil, well-qualified for his work, handles his job expeditiously and efficiently.

Seniors

About to don his cap and gown, each senior contemplates the day when he will lay down his school-books and go out into the world. Some will conclude their education at colleges, others will work in war plants, while still others will put on the uniform of khaki or navy blue in answer to their country's call.

LINDBLOM'S TRIBUTE OF LOVE

*Clear against the sun-set heaven,
In the hope-filled west,
Rise thy stately walls, O Lindblom, Halls with beauty blessed,
Born of love thy valiant spirit
Purged with flaming truth,
Consecrating to man's service
Sturdy eager youth.*

*Shrouded in the shades of ev'ning Touched with morning light,
Proudly stands thy royal eagle,
Wings wide-spread for flight;
Symbol bold of steadfast courage,
Of enduring might!
So thy sons go forth to vanquish
In the strength of right.*

Final Refrain:

*Gladly lift we now our voices
Thy dear name to sing;
To thy shrine of truth and beauty
Loving tribute bring.*

ACTIVITIES

The Eagle Staff

Under the guidance of Miss Carrie L. George, faculty sponsor, and Mr. Victor C. Mills, business advisor, successor to Mr. Shore, who resigned after sixteen years of successful service, Eagle staffers were able to survive the months of strenuous work which were put into the compiling of our illustrious Eagle.

Naturally, the Eagle, being the most important publication at Lindblom, is eagerly awaited by the student body. Impatient students are quickly appeased when the Eagle is distributed. The anxious populace thumb through the pages in frantic search of their pictures. Classes are forgotten as the elaborate layouts are scrawled with appropriate sayings. In the meantime, the staffers breathe sighs of relief at seeing their masterpiece safely published, and then turn to page through the book in search of their articles which the editors have so mercilessly massacred.

"I don't like it—reject it . . . Get to work!" These immortal words of our co-editors-in-chief, Betty Thomsen and Louis Schauer can be heard echoing throughout the Eagle office urging the staffers on to greater heights of journalistic achievements.

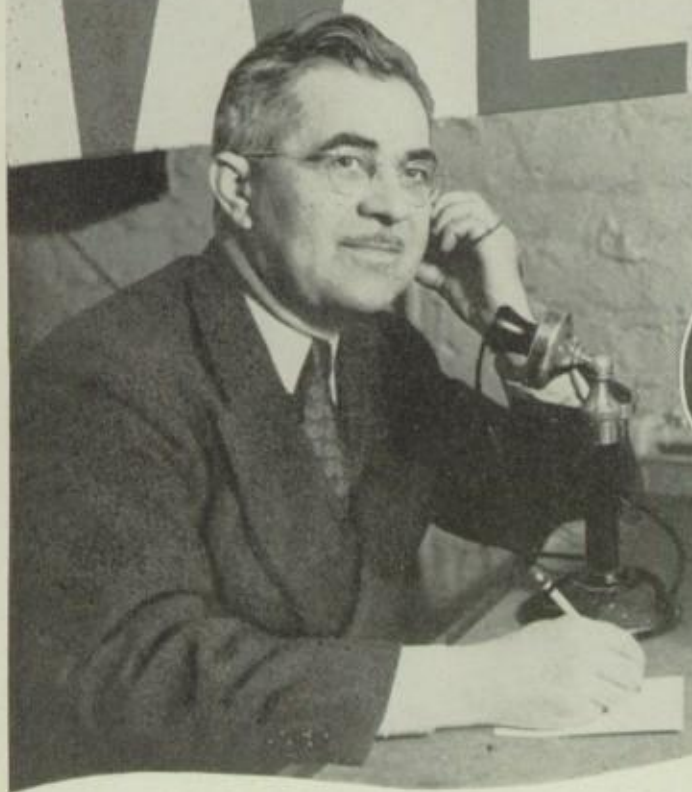

McGehee, Saskor, Cling, Jacobs, Strikol, Calahan, Bernardy, Segin, Bresnahan, Sestan, Jurich, Shore, Heyman, Nevara, Vanek, Goyer, Schoenheider, Jurich, Tressler.

Amid the dummy sheets, printers proofs, and articles strewn around the Eagle office, one is likely to find Jess Jacobs, assistant editor and Tom Houston, business manager, in conference with Joyce Schoenheider and Miles Shore, the co-literary editors, while Eileen Tressler and George McGee, girls and boys sports editors, review the sports events of the semester, and Eleanore Sestan, head typist, pounds the typewriter. Handling the art work are Mrs. Worst, art advisor, and James Abramic, art editor.

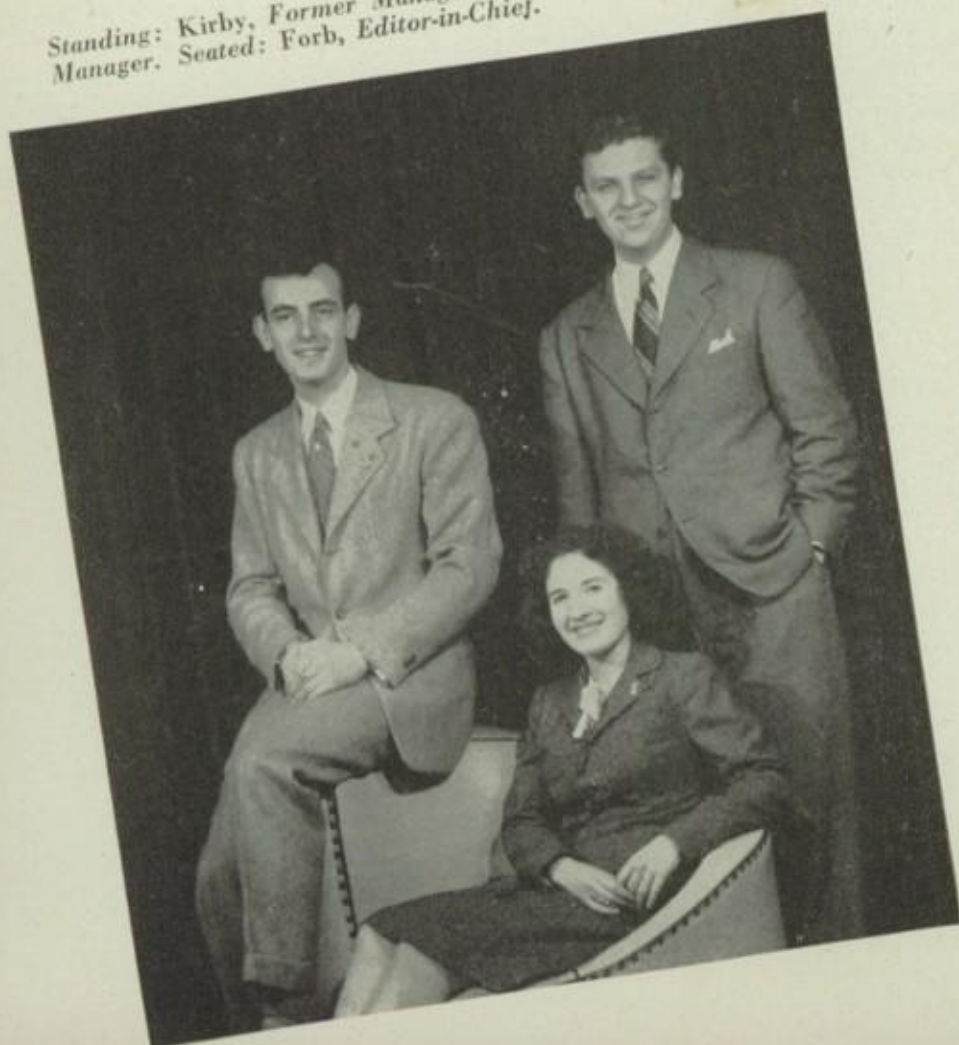

WEEKLY

Mr. Calpha, Sponsor, Michaels, Buhai, Co-Editors-in-Chief.

Standing: Kirby, Former Managing Editor; Zabicki, Business Manager. Seated: Forb, Editor-in-Chief.

At this point we submit to the need for justice to mention the work of Lindblom's second literary effort, the Weekly. Bursting forth upon the unsuspecting populace sixteen times a semester, it provides an accurate, week by week journal of student activities here at Lindblom. Heading the staff last semester were Charlotte Buhai and Felice Michaels. Seated at the Editor-in-Chief's desk this semester was Marilyn Forb. Faithful subordinates were: Managing Editor: Jim Kirby; Associate Editors: Mildred Baron, June Evans, Barbara Naft, Audrey Radtke, Joyce Sanders, Patricia Silvers, John Tihinen; Business Manager: Steve Zabicki; Advertising Manager: Eugene Christensen; Circulation Manager: Virginia Butcher; Exchange Manager: Beverly Marco; Financial Manager: Emily Kicul.

Real, Kirby, Dowmont.
Forb, Sanders, Naft.
Betz, Robinson, Tihinen.
Silvers, Keating, Baron.
Radtke, Evans, Templeton.

Journalistic Geniuses

Through cracking the proverbial whip over the lowly, insignificant staffer, and by never being satisfied with an original article, these so-called perspicacious pantologists faithfully execute the duties of editors of our weekly journal. Their efforts are not spent in vain, however, as, each week, they succeed in placing before Lindblom students an edition of the paper that ranks as one of the finest of all scholastic newspapers. Deserving much credit also, is their sponsor and advisor, Mr. Calpha, who has guided the Weekly for many unsung years.

Behold the Unheralded, The Staffer!

Upon a corps of uncountable editors, reporters, cub reporters, etc., is placed the prodigious task of each week producing a four-page edition for the student body. Our Weekly Staff, however, does not wholly dedicate itself to this preponderous work, as they periodically venture forth from their close confines to accept the challenge of the EAGLE in the annual farce, called the "EAGLE-Weekly Football Game." Last year, after being administered a thorough shellacking by the "Eagleites," and after losing the game 33-0, the Weekly Staff once again crept back into obscurity. Recent reports hold that they are recovering and are now spasmodically twitching.

Senior Boys' Council

Probably the most exclusive organization in Lindblom, the Senior Boys' Council is composed of eleven 4A's and nine 4B's. The publication of the pep book, the singing of carols for Christmas, and the inspection of school stores are among the many duties performed by the council, in addition to acting as hosts at school dances and other social events. To become a member of this distinguished organization, one must not only be approved by faculty members, but must also receive a plurality of student votes. The club is sponsored by Mr. Moore, who often entertains the councilors with his unique flute playing.

Red Jacket Girls

To be tops in the opinions of not only your teachers, but of the student body also, is quite an accomplishment. Therefore, the Senior Girl Councillors have every right to be proud of their positions. At the beginning of each semester, teachers nominate 4B girls they think are capable of being councillors. Then the girls in the 4B class vote for those who they think are worthy of these coveted positions. The candidates receiving the most votes are then accepted as members of the Senior Girls' Council.

Senior Girls' Council

Row One—Kuhl, Ballin, Hildebrand, Mueller, Bunde, Blidy.

Row One—Dzikowsky, Glick, Bergmann, Burns, Beck, Kujawa. Row Two—Berry, Englhardt, Looby, Cermak.

At the present time, there are twenty-four girls in the council, twelve 4B's and twelve 4A's. They are easily identified by their brilliant red jackets and immaculate white skirts. Their duties, which center around the Girls' Social Room, consist of the numerous small, but essential, tasks that are necessary in keeping the social room in order. In addition to this, the girls serve as hostesses at the many teas and other social functions which are held throughout the semester.

Honor Society Officers

Row One—Lindgren, President; Flynn, Secretary; Schoenheider, 2A Representa-tive; Steiner, 1A Representative. Row Two—Paluchowski, 3B Representative; Hawkinson, 2B Representative. Row Three—Pasquinelli, Treasurer; Schauer, Vice-President.

Honor Society

A popular fallacy at any school is that those who get in the Honor Society for having above average grades in all their studies are usually little Lord Fauntleroy's and stay home "beating the books" every night. And, of course, those who get the highest award, all S's, are all stodgy old fogies. This belief, however, is being changed at Lindblom. For the students are beginning to see how in nearly every case, all the students are leaders in Lindblom activities.

Honor Students

Row One—Bernardy, Golub, Runewski, Walker, Ryjacek, Kabica, Halper, Dorner, Mallek, Goger, Rahn, Capek, Berg, Benlehr, Rothgery. Row Two—Wrubel, Heyman, Rasmussen, Benline, Nowak, Kelly, Prokes, Smejkal, Melander, Obrieht, Schiffelfein, McCawley, Lake, Epalla, Vitt. Row Three—Bartkowiak, Piorkowski, Reddington, Korthaze, Justinic, Hornburg, Smolinski, Carlson, Hinkelman, Mac Neill, Grygiel, Bacharz, Reszel, Gold, Mayer, Kirchherr.

Membership in the Honor Society is gained only by students who put forth a sincere effort and achieve as their final marks a grade of E or better in their major subjects and G or better in their minors. Every semester the members' names are posted on a plaque which is displayed in the front hall. Only recently has this club become an active organization. Since it has such a large membership, officers are elected to represent the members and take care of problems which arise. The incentive for better scholastic achievement among students at Lindblom has become greater through the activities of the Honor Society.

High Ranking Scholars

Each semester an Achievement Assembly is dedicated solely to the Honor Society. It is at this time that its members receive due credit for their scholastic efforts through the presentation of Honor Society pins. Scholarship certificates are also presented to the "S" students, and the new officers are introduced to the audience. To all members, this assembly is the highlight of the semester and awards received are displayed with pride.

Los Corderitos and Los Diablitos

Los Corderitos are far from the little lambs their name indicates. On the contrary, it is just about all Lorraine Kurtz can do to enforce order and dispense with business so that the members can pay for their misdemeanors with multas or fines in the form of a song, story, poem or any original stunt they may have dreamed up. The other officers are Maryanne Allen, vice-president, Dorothy Bresnahan, secretary, and Dorthea Berg, treasurer.

Los Diablitos, with Lawrence Quas as president, Stephany Jendizio as vice-president, Adele Kwak as secretary, and Marshall Sorkin as treasurer, is one of Miss Moore's liveliest clubs. It includes some of the most original characters in Lindblom so that the meetings are always alive and full of laughs. For those who do not study Spanish the translation of their name is the little devils.

With Robert Bredin as president, Rita Saccaro as vice-president, Phyllis Nejedly as secretary and Stanley Filipecek as treasurer, Las Papatas, far from being the simpletons their name implies, have shown their sagacity on working hard to further our good neighbor relations. As a club activity they have sent representatives to the Pan-American Conference; they have studied Latin history and racial background, played their games and sung Spanish songs. The primary aim of Los Demonios Pequeños is also to further our neighborly relations with South America and increase interest in it. Under the leadership of Eileen McCarthy, Mary Lou Molnor, Charles Cricks and Eileen Wickland as officers, they have diverted themselves with songs, and games, and learned about South American Customs.

Los Lobitos and Los Vivarachos

These two Spanish Clubs, Los Lobitos and Los Vivarachos, directed by Miss Ehrenwerth, are typical of the pleasant methods used to make the study of Spanish even more attractive to the student. Clubs such as these better acquaint the student with the Spanish culture and customs, and therefore help to cement friendship between our Spanish neighbors and the United States. Los Lobitos elected Bob Lackner, president; Geraldine Holden, vice-president; Donald Segin, treasurer; and Ann Hreben, secretary. The officers of Los Vivarachos were: Louise Bernardy, president; Mary Lesondak, vice-president; Orphah Shands, secretary; and Andrew Kacmerak, treasurer.

Las Agiulas and Los Viajeros

Both the Las Agiulas and the Los Viajeros can be distinguished at first glance as Spanish clubs. The members of these groups believe in seizing every opportunity of furthering their knowledge of the Spanish people. They also desire to promote an appreciation for Spanish culture, and at meetings held every other Friday, the students sing Spanish songs, enact small plays, have quiz programs, listen to Spanish records, and enjoy a lively discussion of Pan American countries. The president of Las Agiulas was Leila Perlberg. Holding the office of president of Los Viajeros was John Kacmarek. From both a scholastic and social standpoint Las Agiulas and Los Viajeros have become integral and worthwhile members of Lindblom's already sterling array of organizations.

Toujours Gai, under the direction of Miss Anna Z. Moore, was organized to promote students' interest in France and to increase the students' opportunities to speak French. The members enjoy French plays, games, and songs. Although there is much merriment in the club, it is highly educational. Students belonging to the Library Club not only render a service to the school by helping Mrs. Blake, the librarian, and her assistants to keep the library orderly, and to serve those who want information, but they also acquire a better understanding of books and their authors, and are encouraged to read better literature. By working in the library, students may be preparing themselves for their future careers.

The Debs

The Debs Club is fast developing into an up-and-coming organization at Lindblom. Directed by Mrs. Radmacher, the Debs Club meets every other Tuesday in the Social Room. Teas, parties, fashion shows and quiz programs are some of the entertainment that highlight their gala meetings.

Sub-Debs

The junior edition of the Debs Club is the Sub-Debs, which is composed entirely of under-classmen. This club was organized mainly for social purposes and has bi-monthly meetings, at which time refreshments are served. Six officers, elected by the student members, preside at these meetings. The outstanding events of the semester are the initiation in which the new members are made to dress in an outlandish fashion and do equally outlandish stunts, and the social tea, to which Lindblom boys are invited. This organization, although newly organized, is a popular one and has a large number of enthusiastic members.

Projection Club and Light Brigade

The movie projection club, conducted by Mr. Louis Weckel, is one of the most significant clubs in Lindblom. The members of this group have helped many biology and physics students through difficult phases of the prescribed courses of study by their skillful showing of movies dealing with those subjects. Without the light brigade it is doubtful that Lindblom could put on any of its beautiful assemblies. The boys, besides taking charge of the Lantern Room and the public address system, create the colorful lighting effects that are so essential in the presentation of an interesting and informative program.

The art of beauty is stressed in Lindblom with the aid of these energetic young men and women, who, be it with a paint brush or a hammer, adding a dab of paint or an extra nail, render services to the school that are too numerous to mention. If it is appropriate scenery for a musical, or a poster to announce a football game, the project is carried on to a successful conclusion by those artistic leaders.

Mail Service

Through the aid of Lindblom's trustworthy and loyal Mail Service girls, the offices are kept running smoothly and efficiently, and teachers are relieved of a great deal of work. On the social side, the girls hold welcome and farewell teas at the beginning and end of each semester.

Among their notable achievements are: the maintenance of the servicemen's flag in the main corridor; sending a Weekly to all Lindblom boys in service; the winning of the city championship in the oratorical contest; and the I.C.C. dance. The Inter-Cabinet Council also assists in salvage paper drives and the Spring Clean Up campaign. The executive committee last semester consisted of Steve Zabicki, President; Peggy Turner, Vice President; Joe Sorshack, Secretary; and Al Reshke, Treasurer. They meet every odd week, while the whole group meets every even week to attend their numerous affairs.

L Club

When boys get together for initiations, especially initiations of outstanding athletes of a school, you might expect some rather explosive goings-on. However, at Lindblom, the "L" club initiations are conducted in gentlemanly style. Nothing worse than a few broken legs and cases of blood poisoning result. The boys spend their time between initiations thinking up new angles on how to scientifically break bones. The club, under Mr. Hollister's supervision, has been re-organized to include officers.

Row One—Baier—President, Hoblik—Vice-President, Taylor—Treasurer, Bulow—Secretary, Batdorf. Row Two—Hoblile, Cellie, Gibbs, Romanowski, Mallek, Curtis, Hornburg, Kelly, Pierzynski, Soderberg, Miss O'Connell.

Latin Clubs

The purpose of Miss O'Connell's 3rd and 4th hour Latin Clubs is to give students a better understanding of the Latin language and literature. The clubs supplement the students' education by creating in them an interest in Roman history and civilization. Such things as the Roman's habits, customs, beliefs, and religion are frequently discussed. Many games are played during the semester, such as Latin crossword puzzles and question bees concerning Roman wars, culture, and mythology.

The LD Club, or "Little Dirls" as Mr. Palmer affectionately calls its members, is comprised of Lindblom's girl athletes. The name LD has a more significant meaning than that which their illustrious honorary member has bestowed upon the group. L, which is the Roman equivalent of 1,000, stands for the 1,000 points a girl must have earned before obtaining her "L." D, the Roman letter for 500, represents the 500 points a girl must have earned before being made a member. Each semester an initiation hike is held, at which time all potential members must prove themselves worthy of membership.

Although there are many other choruses here at Lindblom, there is none more distinctive than the Boys' Chorus. From the vibrant high-pitched soprano, to the deep rich bass, the notes are rendered rich and true. The chorus is sponsored by Mrs. Hannah Rosenthal. The officers are as follows: Charles Zaruba, President; Jerry Looby, Al Dryer, co-secretaries; Don Northrup, treasurer, and Michael Krafcisin, librarian. For their excellent vocalization during the last sectional competition, they were awarded an E rating. Any young man who has a good voice would profit and enhance his school career by joining this sterling group.

Honor Winners

The girls' chorus, the pride of Lindblom, really showed the fine quality of which it is made when the girls won their seventh straight "S" rating at the annual choral competition. Lindblom is the only school in the city of Chicago that can boast this fine record. This "S" rating represents hours and hours of hard work. It is not easy to obtain the exact tone quality and acquire accurate timing. It takes practice and more practice every day fifth period in the music room, on the second floor at the south end of the building, to master these essential elements of good music. Directed and inspired by Mrs. Rosenthal, the chorus has done much to make a success of many of Lindblom's assemblies. With seven consecutive "S" ratings behind them the girls are looking forward to their eighth.

Of the many musical organizations at Lindblom, one of the most outstanding is the A Capella Choir. This group, composed of many selected voices, has brought and kept Lindblom in the foreground of high school music. It has also stirred the students with a greater appreciation of music. The Choir not only offers Lindblom students opportunity for work in vocal harmony, but it also serves as the basis by which many outsiders measure Lindblom, and indirectly, all public high school music. In its many appearances before civic bodies, at church services, and at various other programs, it has gained for Lindblom an enviable reputation.

The Madrigals, directed by Joseph Taylor, are a group of selected voices from the regular A Capella Choir. This group was organized to supply the demand for a small, very talented group. These vocalizers fill this requirement very well, fulfilling many engagements where the regular choir would be too large. Their successful performances are a result of many hours of practice. The Madrigals are not satisfied with a merely good performance, but a perfect performance, and they seek to attain this perfection with their daily meetings. The enthusiastic efforts of the Madrigal singers set many examples for other choir members to follow, and anyone may see the goal they have attained by glancing at the numerous plaques on the auditorium walls which they helped to acquire.

Musical Geniuses

Whether it is a stirring passage from Beethoven's "Fifth" or some simple melody, the concert orchestra strives for perfection. Under the direction of Mr. Lyngby, it plays an important part in the Music Festival, graduation, and in various assemblies. A student may enter the beginner's orchestra with no knowledge of the instrument he wishes to play. Here he learns the fundamentals of music and the techniques of orchestra playing. After gaining the proper facility he can enter the concert orchestra and thus become one of Lindblom's master music makers. Not only is valuable music training secured, but by being in the concert orchestra for three semesters the student earns a full point for the Golden Eagle award.

A school without music is like a school without windows. Lindblom assuredly has windows and most certainly has music. One of the foremost musical organizations is the Band led by Capt. Jay M. Sawyer. These saddle-shoe Sousa's practice five times a week and often succeed in lulling the hall guards into a gentle sleep, only to waken them again with a stirring march. After perpetual practice and hard work, mixed with dashes of humor and bright smiles, the band, ably conducted by Capt. Sawyer, entertains Lindblomites at many assemblies or possibly "pep" rallies. However, jokes and laughs are numerous, and because of the students liking for music they have a more sincere interest in their work.

Hubbard at War

The Hubbard Branch has added greatly to Lindblom's war effort. Through the endeavors of her various patriotic organizations and the entire student body, a high record has been established in the sale of bonds and stamps and the collection of waste paper and scrap metal. Students are especially proud of the stamp record for they have achieved a goal of one stamp bought weekly by all. Not even the main building has exceeded this record. Lindblom is proud of Hubbard, for the patriotism of its students well illustrates the "Spirit of Lindblom."

Every Hubbard division has a president who attends meetings of the Presidents' Council. The president is elected by the students of his division. Meetings are held every week before school. The problems of the school are brought up at assemblies and it is here they are straightened out. The theater dramatists at Hubbard are members of the Oral Club. They are instructed by Miss Merle Irwin. This is one of the largest organizations in Hubbard. They perform in frequent assemblies. The purpose of this worthwhile club is to give the student experience in appearing before an audience.

The students who wash and dry dishes, help to serve meals and collect for them, all belong to the Cafeteria Club. This is one of the best service organizations at Hubbard Branch. One of the branches of the student governing body at Hubbard is the Student Council. They meet with the Presidents' Council and plan the school's activities and report the plans to their division. Hubbard Branch, too, has an honor society, and as in the main building, an achievement assembly is held. At this assembly the students are given their honor society pins.

The Teachers' Assistants and the Reading Marathon are two groups at Hubbard that are of great value to their members. The Teachers' Assistants help the teachers and thus learn to appreciate their work more. They also receive training in office work and are taught to meet people with a smile and a greeting. The Reading Marathon develops a greater desire for reading in its members and the ability to give good book reports. They read at least ten books a semester and hold a contest to see who can read the most. Students in both groups are good examples of the intelligent all-around Hubbard students.

The members of the Office Assistants' Club are those polite girls who ask if they can serve you in Hubbard's office. The Travel Club offers pleasant recreation for those students who dream of far-away places; Kiel, Moskva, Lisboa. For students interested in every-day life in our world, the Current Events Club gives opportunity to make use of their extra time in a pleasant way. The Statistics' Club makes up lists of school statistics for the office.

Hubbard Activities

The work of the Junior Red Cross at Hubbard is of great importance. They send out the knapsack books made up of magazine articles, to service libraries. They also send representatives to the Red Cross Council. The silent sentinels or hall guards of Hubbard spend one or more periods watching the corridors speaking no words other than "got a pass?" Mr. Solomon sponsors the group and supervises their weekly meetings.

The various clubs of the Hubbard Branch of Lindblom offer many opportunities to students so that they prepare the pupils for life in the main building. The Journalism Club is the "Weekly" staff of Hubbard, an article being published about Hubbard in each issue. By belonging to the Library Club, the student enables himself to work in the library of the main building and earn credits toward the "Golden Eagle" award. The advanced Spanish students' club, "Los Angelitos," enables students to speak and write Spanish more fluently.

The Music Makers

Row One—King, Gabel, Freitag, Sappenfield, Mozzi, Walsh, DiBenedetto, Jorsch. Freshmen may be seen daily hurrying through Hubbard's halls to class, but a most interesting sight is the members of the orchestra and band. Carrying heaps of books, music, and their musical instruments, they look like a happy group of circus jugglers. Captain Sawyer, the director of Lindblom's band, and Mr. Christian Lyngby, Lindblom's orchestra leader, both go to Hubbard daily for the band and orchestra rehearsals. Lindblom looks forward to seeing these student members of those famed groups stir her audiences with the enchanting melodies that will issue forth from the orchestra pit.

Whenever the Lindblom battalion marches, it is accompanied by the color guard, which is made up of four officers, two bearers, and two guards. To qualify as a member of this detail, probably the most colorful in the unit, the cadet must know his drill thoroughly. The result is a very neat looking outfit full of smartness and precision.

The COLORS

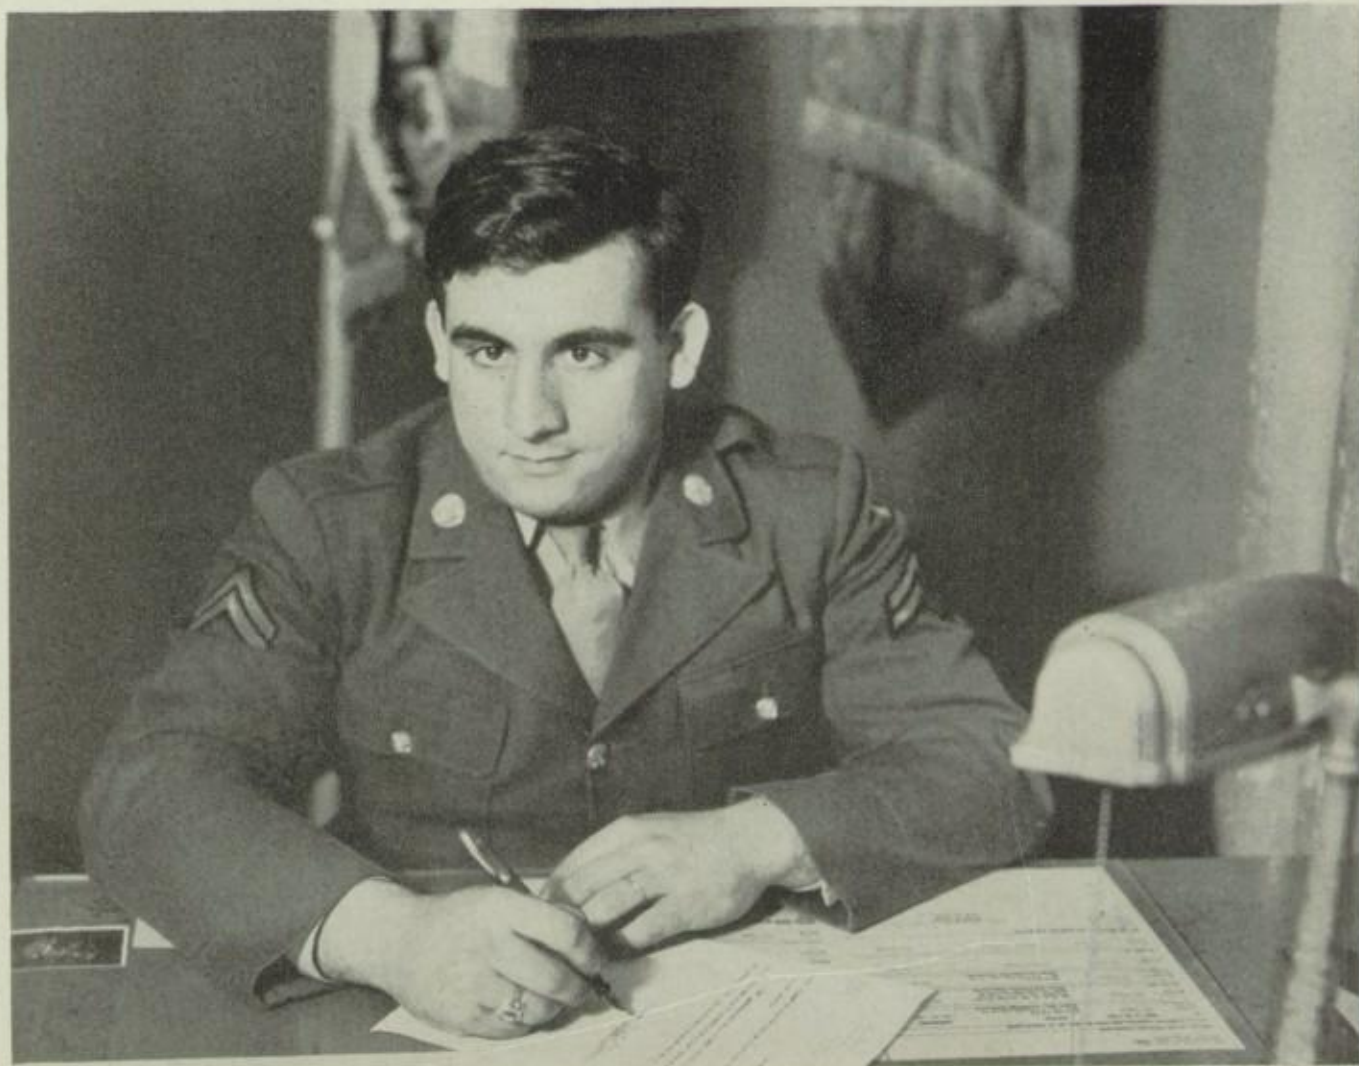

Staff: Saladin—Lieutenant-Colonel, Calahan—Major, Welcing—Captain, Dryer—Captain, Bies—First Lieutenant, Sawyer—Master Sergeant.

The staff, which issues orders to company commanders and enforces all orders, is the brains of the unit. At the head of the organization are the lieutenant-colonel and his executive officer. Next in line are the plans and training officer and the adjutant, who draw up the schedule and prepare the unit for inspections before presenting it to the battalion commander. Without this organization the unit would not be able to function.

A major factor in Lindblom's rise from obscurity to prominence in "R.O." competition has been Corporal Natale. The "corporal," who was recently made a sergeant, graduated from Tilden, Lindblom's rival, where he was a member of three champion picked platoons.

The Lads That Lead the Unit

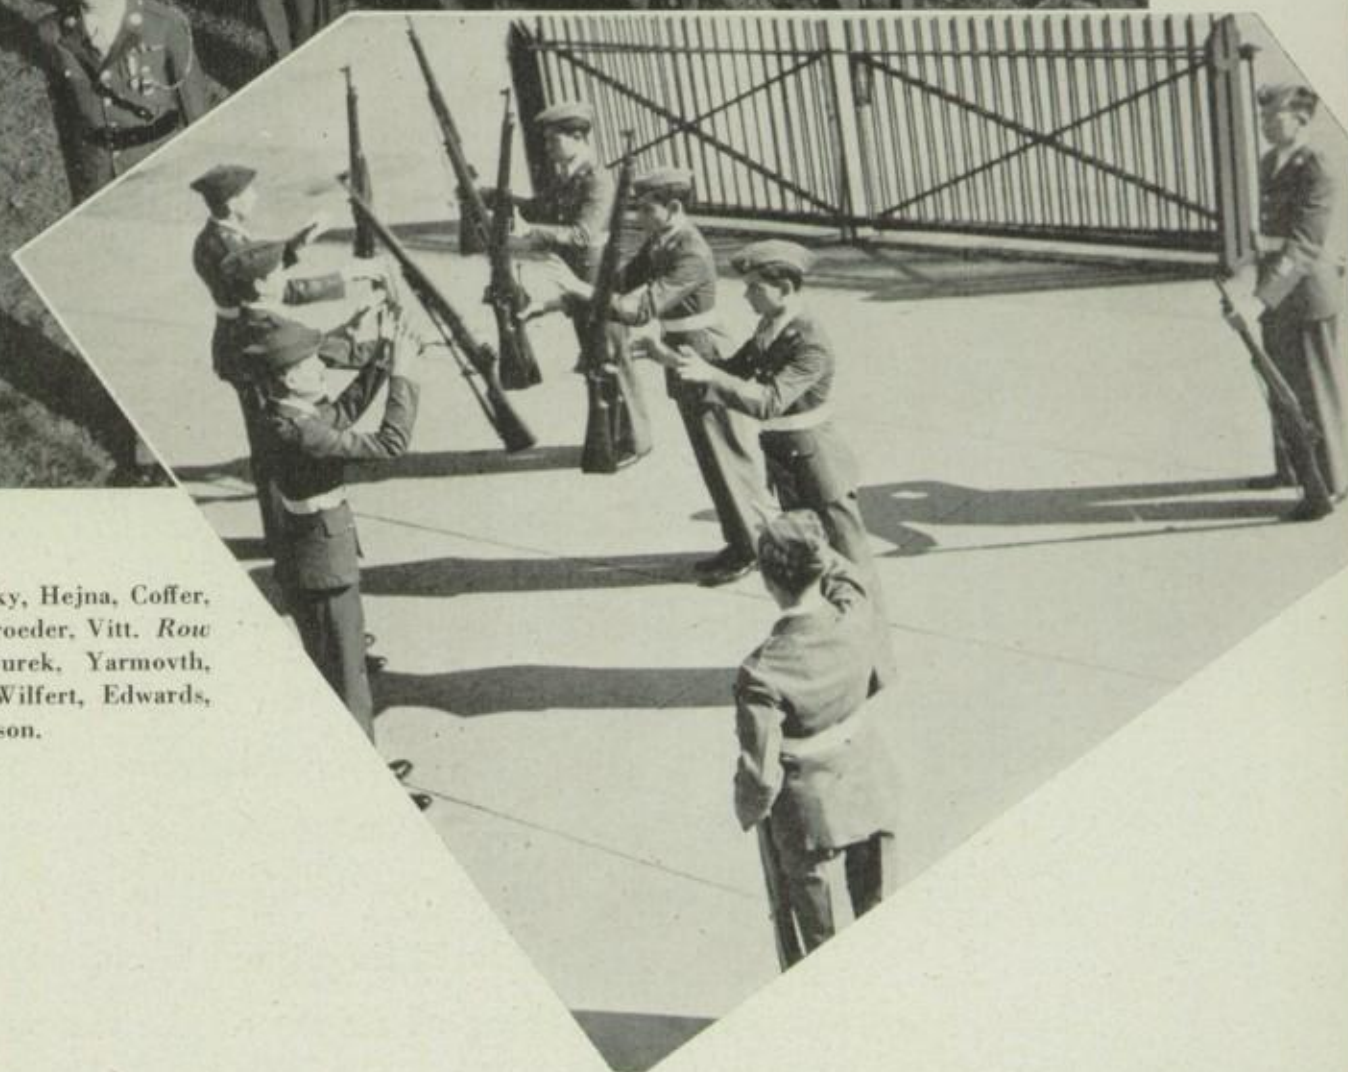

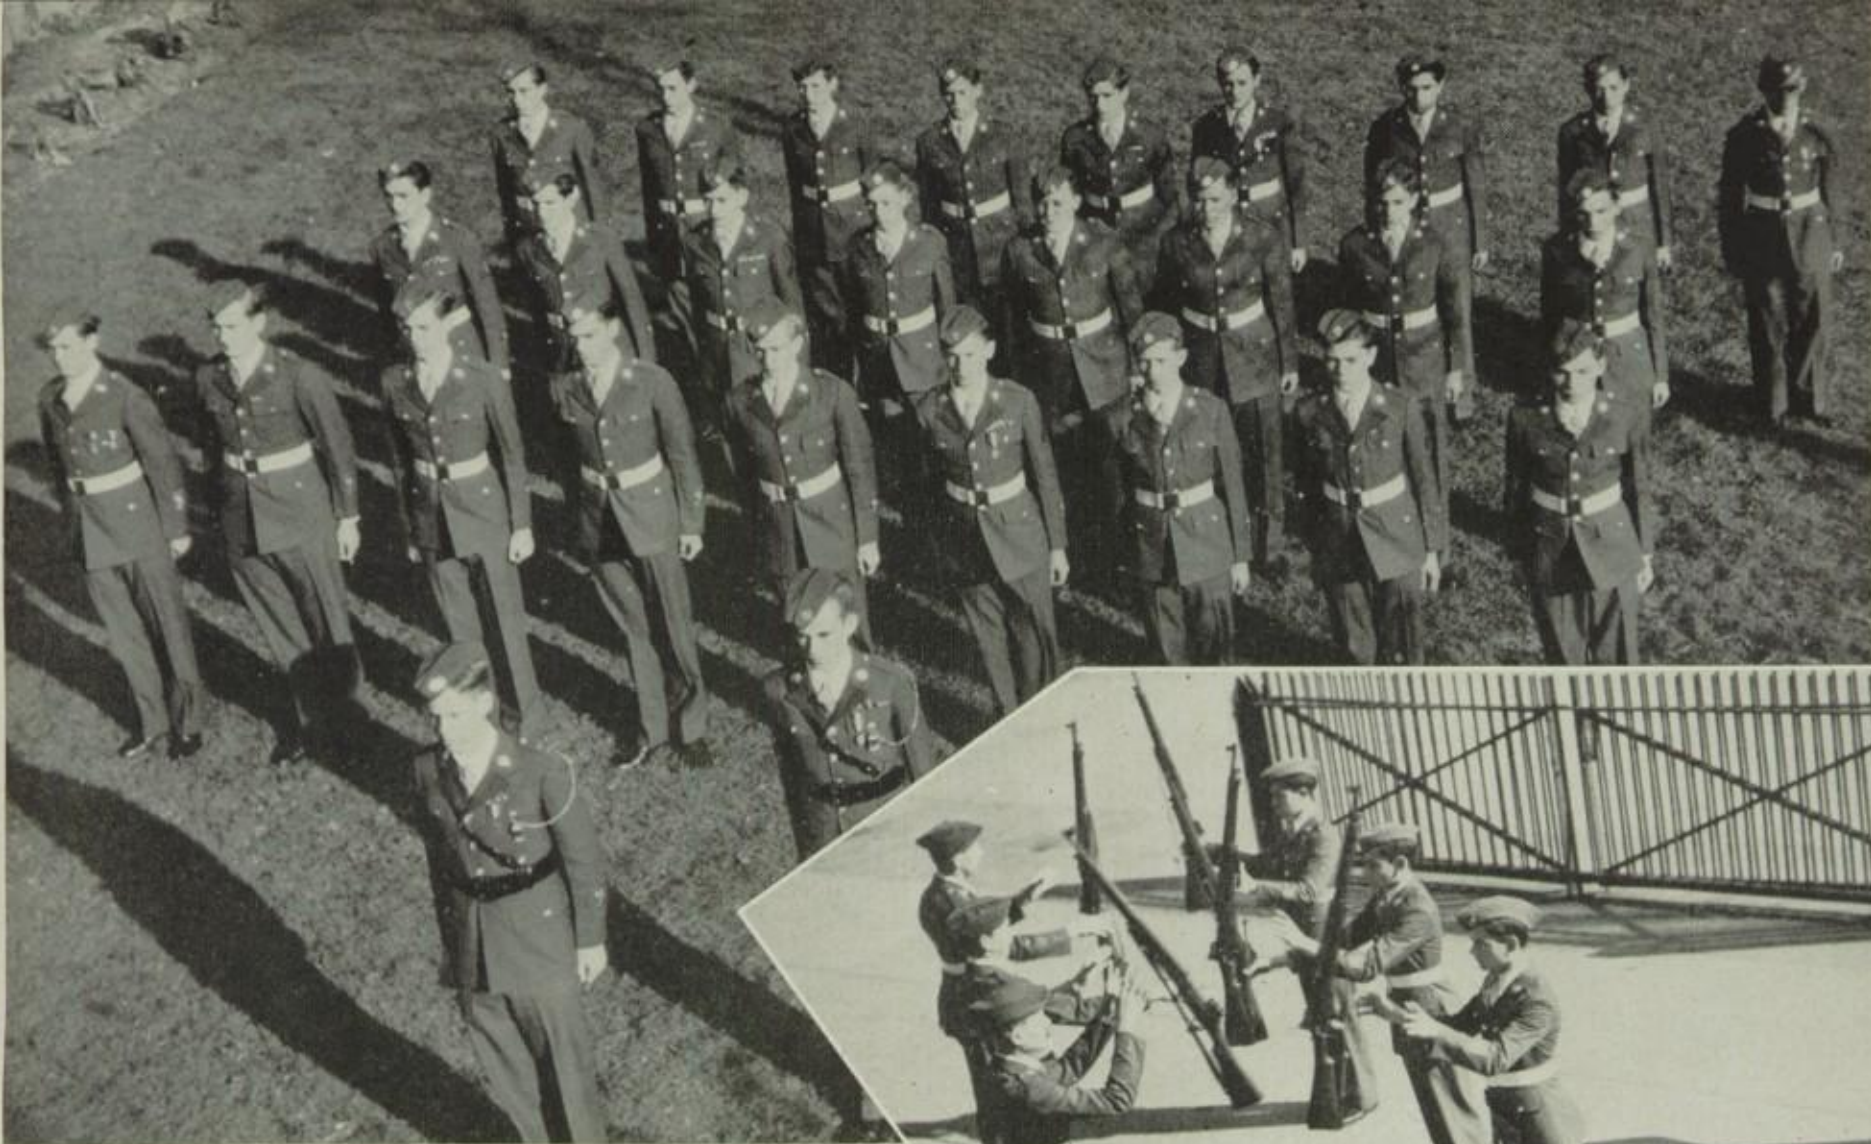

Row One—Tamosiunas, Kamba, Best, Efting, Wilfert, Soukup, Johnston, Edwards, Sawyer, Hochman, Parquette, Ray, Martin, Jurkovic, Edwards, Shuball. Row Two—Fritsch, McGee, Prkut, Grygiel, LaMarche, Jacobs, Hastings, Lindgren, Ely, Cira, Sallas, Otto, Harris, Vitt, Szczurek, Vitt. Row Three—Evers, Moody, Zint, Leise, Boncela, Larsen, Fischer, Topic, Michaels, Bacharz, Zajicek, Schroeder, Beke, Kalmanek, Coffey, Henderson, Revak.

To become an officer or non-com, the backbone of a military unit, is the aim of every recruit, since it is under them that the unit is run. To these select cadets, instruction in theory and drill is given every morning, while in the evening they take command of various details or are themselves members of such. They can be easily distinguished from others by their neatness and smartness, to say nothing of stripes on the sleeves of non-coms or disks on the shoulders of officers.

A platoon to be proud of is the one that brings a first place trophy to its school. Consisting of twenty-eight members and two commanders, the Picked Platoon is known as the "pride and joy" of the "R.O." and well might it be called, for only the best are able to join. Every morning and evening, these boys, a majority of whom will become future officers, can be seen drilling. On the day of platoon competition, each of the twenty-seven schools having an R.O.T.C. unit send one platoon to compete. After the exhibition, the winning unit is presented with the highly coveted trophy.

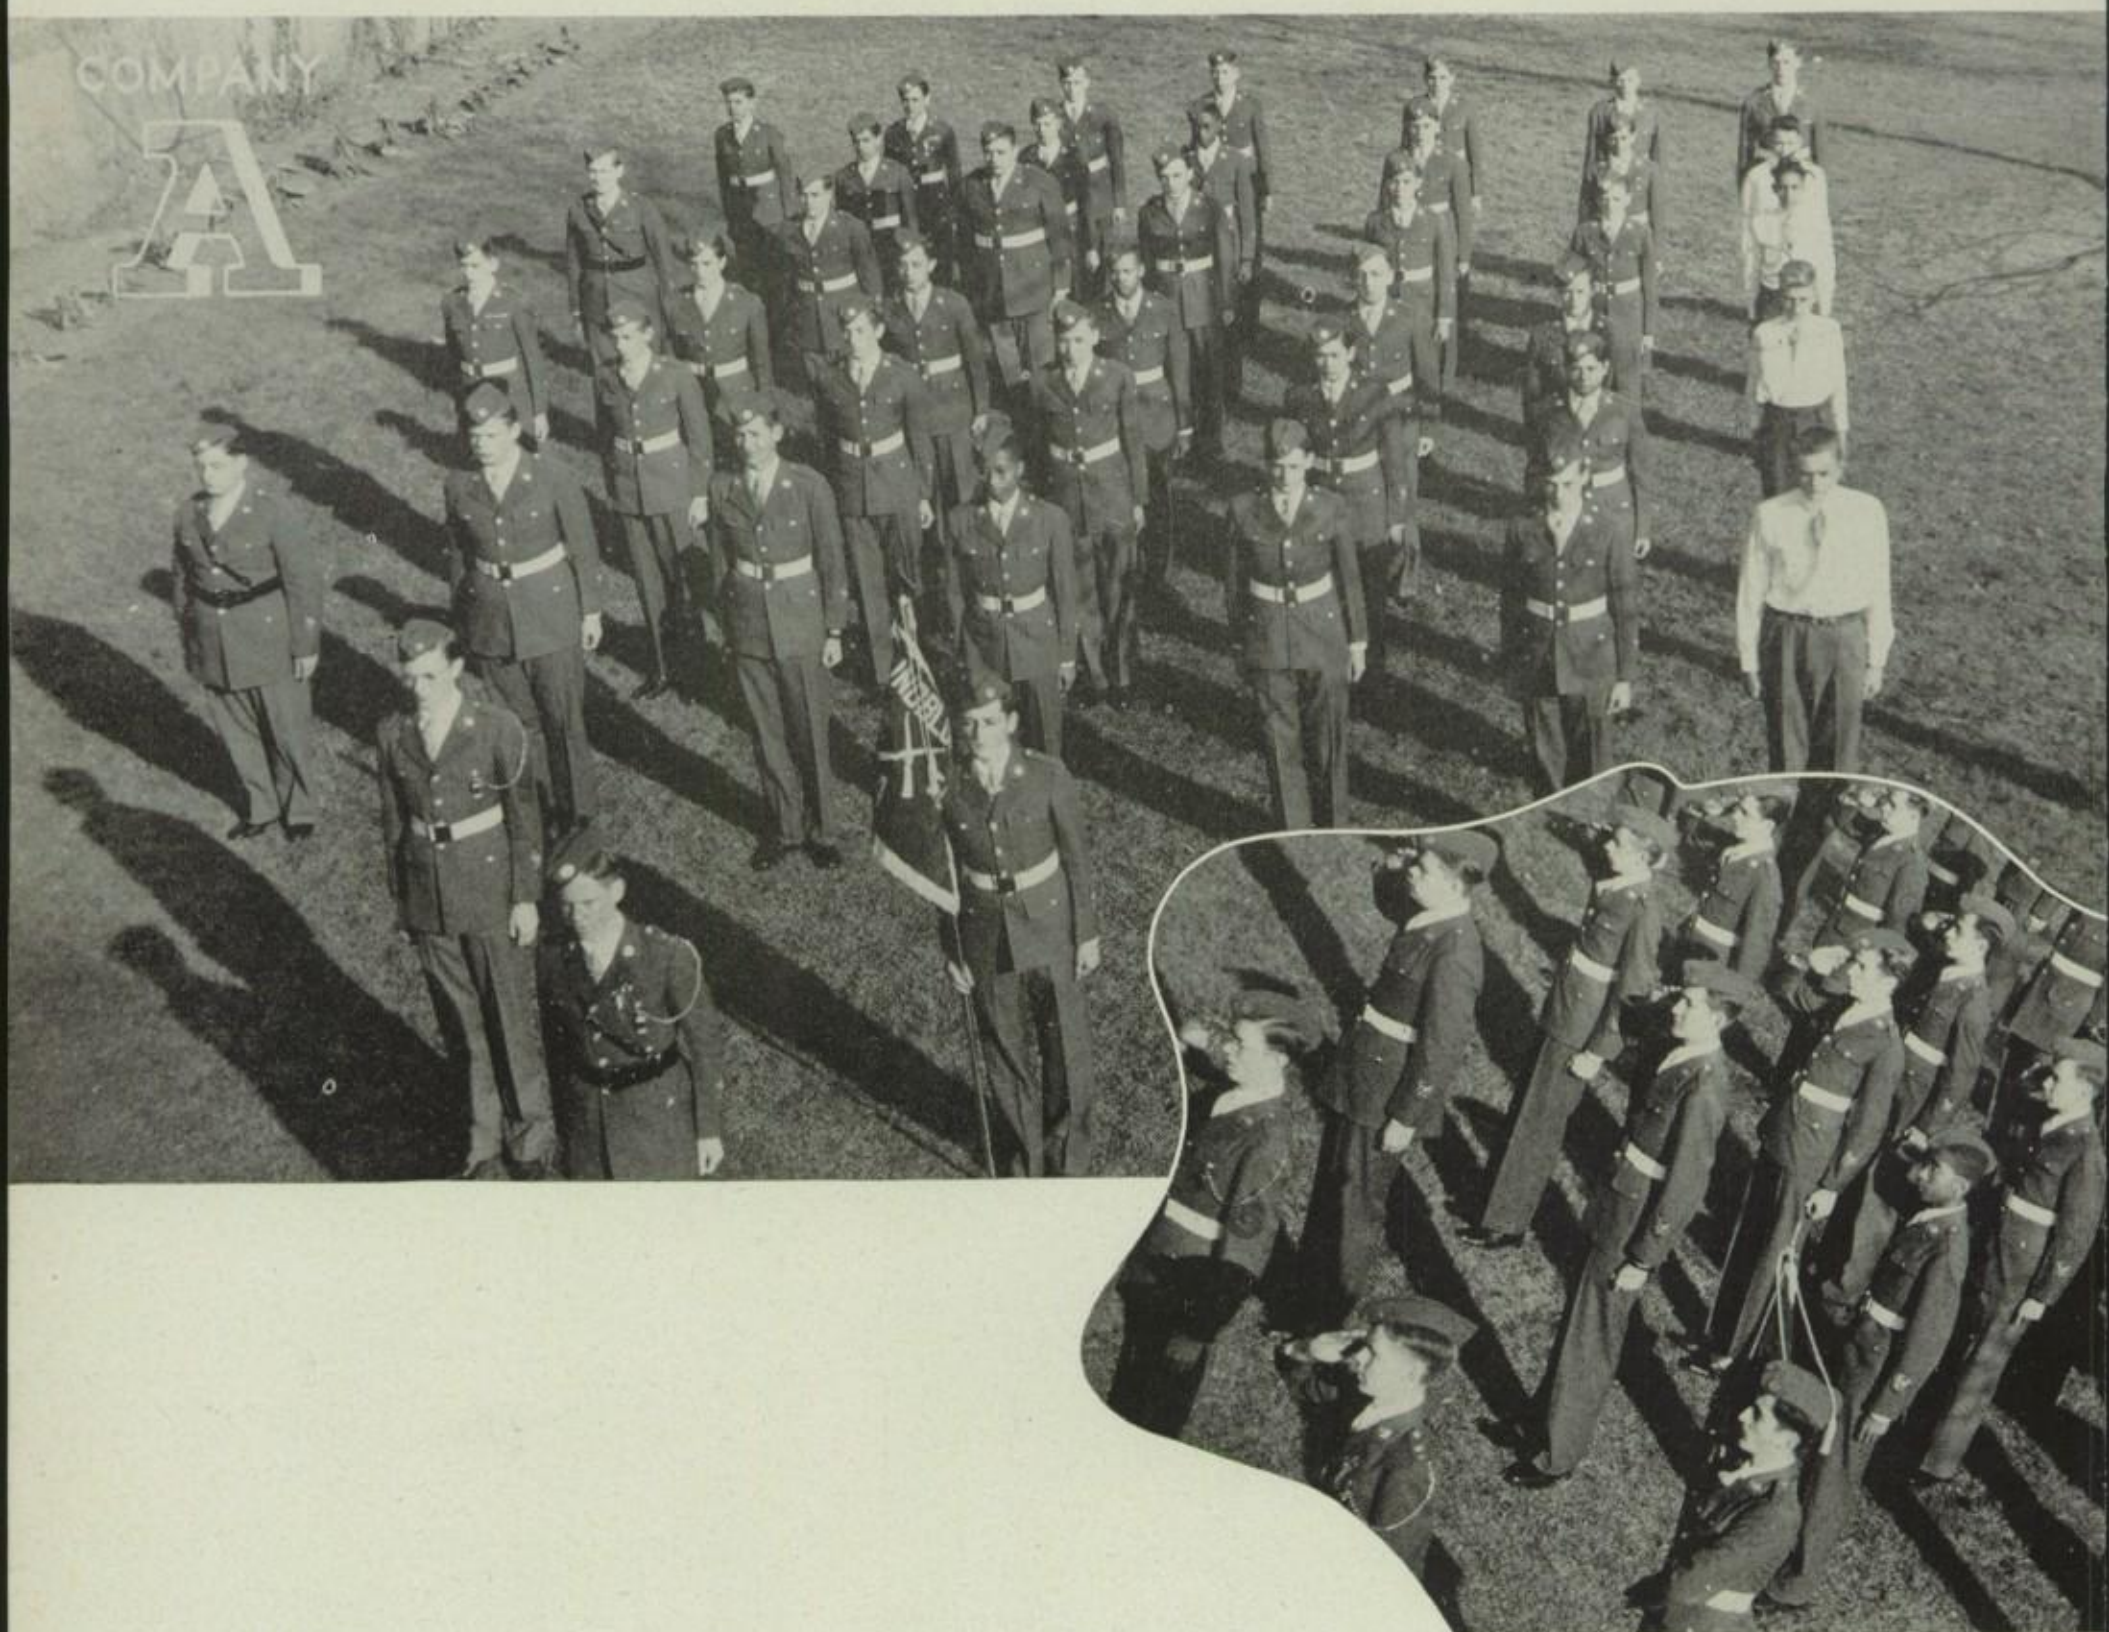

A detail, highly admired and envied by all cadets in the unit, is the Exhibition Squad. Astonishing everyone with dazzling feats, they display that precision with a rifle which comes only through hard work. All members must be clear-headed and alert. Any cadet may join, and through practice, and more practice, and more practice, mold himself into an active member.

R. O. T. C. Show

Last fall, for the first time in the history of Lindblom, a show was put on through the exclusive efforts of the R.O.T.C. In addition to watching the picked platoon and exhibition squad perform, Lindblom's civilian students had the first opportunity to view the Drum and Bugle Corps and the Awkward Squad.

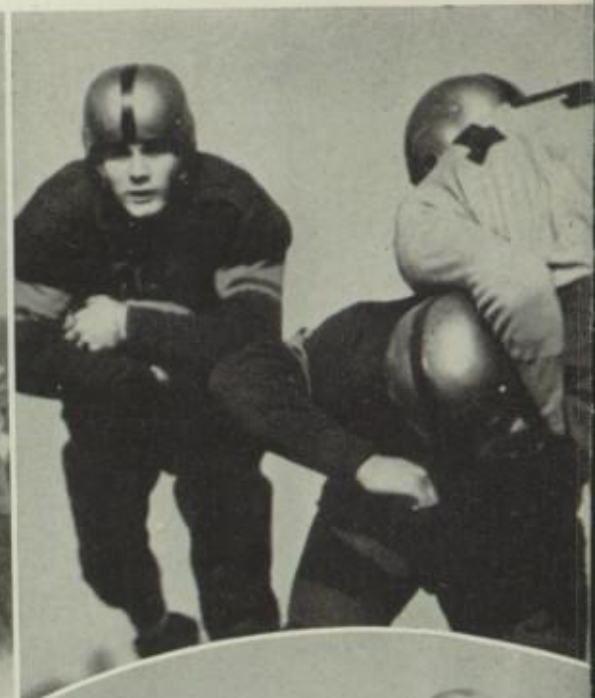

Drilling from the break of day to sundown, with the exception of class time, the Lindblom R.O.T.C. has developed into one of the finest marching units in the city. Shouts of "Guide right; cover down, swing your arms, you knucklehead," are among the many corrections made by perfection-seeking non-coms. The unit's marching ability is well illustrated by many requests for its participation in flag dedications and American Legion Armistice Day celebrations.

SPORTS

Lindblom's Pigskin Proteges

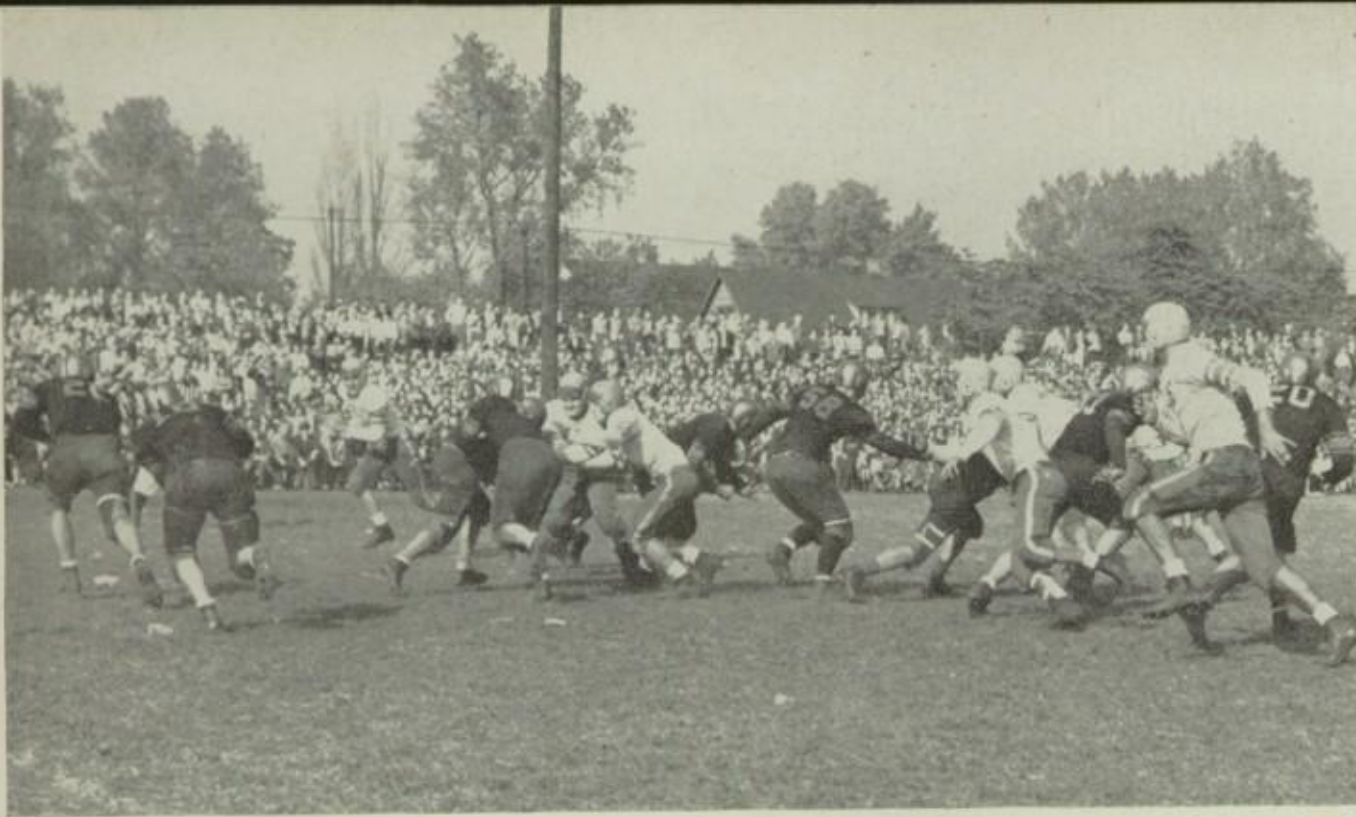

The '44 Lindblom Eagles had one of the strongest teams to represent Lindblom on the gridiron in recent years. They lost only two games, one of which was a practice with Fenger . . . 33-0. Forgetting the Fenger game, the Eagles came through and whipped the Calumet eleven, 21-12, under the arcs at Shewbridge Field. Cries of "Bring on Tilden!" were heard throughout the stands. Before a throng of cheering spectators, Lindblom tied a bewildered Tilden football eleven, 14-14. Tilden was stunned in the first quarter when shifty Ray Rizzo scored. Tilden came back strongly, making two touchdowns, and going into the fourth quarter, Tilden was leading, 14-7. The Maroons then unleashed an attack which gained considerable yardage, with Rich Pac finally going over. A hush came over the throng as "Magic Toe" Longhouser tried for the point. It was good! and Lindblomites are still cheering.

Who's Afraid of Tilden? Not Lindblom!

Last year, Lindblom's Sophomore team started the long and tedious job of rebuilding their squad under the guidance of Coach Nielson. This was his first season as coach and the squad wound up with four victories and four defeats. After a discouraging start they fought valiantly till the finish of the season in true Lindblom style. The Sophs had a strong squad which means they will help bolster the varsity this season. While on the Sophs, the boys learn the fundamentals and the importance of co-operation in building a team. The Soph team receives little attention but nevertheless plays with vigorous determination because they believe the more conscientious they are and the stronger the competition, the more experience they will receive and the more championship varsities there will be in the future.

Kelly's green and white failed to penetrate Lindblom's strong line except for one touchdown as the Eagles eliminated them 38-6 at Shewbridge field. The first quarter found Rizzo and Guiliani smashing the Kelly line time and time again. By the half, the stands were resounding with the cheers of happy Lindblomites who were seeing the Eagles at their best. Kelly's attacks were of no avail and the green and white had to kick back to Lindblom after Kelly weakened slightly in the second half and the Eagles took advantage of this opportunity by rolling over three more touchdowns, led by Barcelona. With this victory behind them, Coach Moore was confident of taking the remaining two games from Du Sable and Farragut.

The number thirteen may be unlucky to some, but it offers no obstacles to the outstanding play of Ed Yore.

Going up to heave a pass is a Lindblom back, Rizzo.

One, Two, Three, Kick!

Sorry, not while "Barce" carries the mail.

Chalk up another for Jim "Magic Toe" Longhouser.

No, he's not dancing, but following thru on a fifty-yard punt.

Mason City, Ia.	..13-25	Lindblom

The second league game found Lindblom's Eagles trouncing Englewood 48-6. The Eagles scored twice in the first quarter through the running of Guiliani and Rizzo. Englewood fought valiantly, scoring a touchdown and then Lindblom responded with five touchdowns, one on an eighty-yard scamper by "Scooter" Rizzo. The scores were as follows: Rizzo three; Guiliani, Kumingo, Pac, Feretti. Phillips clamped their jinx on Lindblom for the fourth straight year by winning over the "Maroon and Gold" 6-0. Lindblomites were in a frenzy as "Handsome" Guiliani scored a touchdown, but to Lindblom's dismay the touchdown was illegal because of clipping. The game was evenly matched until Horace Chandler, the Phillips' star, ran the ball over for a score.

Look Out, Mason City!

The running attack of Rizzo and Guiliani proved effective as they both crossed the Red and Black's goal line in the first quarter. Du Sable's second quarter strength surprisingly held the Eagle eleven scoreless, much to the Lindblom fans' dismay. Coach Moore's half-time talk apparently inspired our tired fellows, since the third quarter opened with Rizzo scoring again. McAllister registered a touchdown after a forty-yard scamper, and Babendir finished the attack with his first touchdown on a twelve-yard run.

Skidding on to victory in their final game of the season the Eagles belittled a fighting Farragut eleven 24-7 on a muddy, rain-soaked field. Farragut scored in the first quarter and the Maroons quickly tied the score again. The second half was sparked by the running of Rizzo and Barcelona, and the Eagles scored three more touchdowns. Lindblom placed second in the central section by winning this game.

With great determination, the junior basketball team joined battle with the other contenders for the title of city champions. Hard work and long hours of tedious practice, besides the regular games, seasoned a relatively green team into a potential threat to many rival teams. Although the team won notable victories, they were unable to take any championships, despite the fact that the boys played hard and made an excellent showing.

Our senior basketball team has once again brought honor to Lindblom by winning the central section championship. Led by Captain "Chet" Giermak, the regular team of Stahurski, Siegert, Ambrosia, and Baskiewicz chalked up seven victories but upset at the hands of Tilden. Another interesting fact is that the starting quintet with the exception of Baskiewicz won places among the top ten scorers of this section. The maroon and gold capably coached by Mr. Swiryn again have hopes of capturing a city championship.

“Yer Out”

Endless practice in batting, running, and fielding make up the strenuous schedule of the baseball team. They must also live up to strict training rules. Under the supervision of Coach Gentile the best in every player is amplified, and the weakness blotted out. Without this direction, the team could not have made the showing it had. Speed also is an important factor in producing a champion ball team, because without it a team cannot go far. This, however, is not all you need. To support the team a large rooting section which will build morale and urge them on to a glorious and spectacular finish is necessary. With all this in mind, the team works out for hours after school, in the gym, and on the diamond in order to come through with the championship they so desire.

With the Greatest of Ease

The muscle men of Lindblom's gymnastics team are again building a squad that promises to bring home a championship. Performing with excellence in form and precision on the various pieces of apparatus, these graceful, happy-go-lucky fellows are working towards capturing another shield to add to the many already hanging in Keeler Hall. They are confident of winning another, as they are led by Mr. Smidl, whose brilliant coaching has guided Lindblom teams to championships since 1925. So, happy hunting fellows, and here's to another city championship.

Because of the war Lindblom's coaches have been doing double work. When Mr. Topper, now Lieut. Topper of the Navy, was called into service two years ago, Mr. E. L. Moore, football coach of Lindblom, took over the track team in his place, and has been its coach ever since. Last season, about a nucleus of football players, Coach Moore built a strong team. Outstanding were Alan Babindir, who ran the 60-yard dash and came in second in the city meets, and the four-man relay team that placed well in both inter-school and all-city meets.

Sink or Swim

The manly brawn exhibited in these pictures does not belong, as might be suspected, to a body beautiful cult, but to a group of energetic boys at Lindblom known collectively as the swimming team. As theirs is the finest sport in the world, or so they say, the benefits received are numerous. The development of breathing, arm and leg muscles, in short, almost the whole body is furthered by participation in this sport. And, after all, who wouldn't like to go swimming every day as these boys do?

Curses, Foiled

Row One—Waldier, Benlehr, Benka, Kor-thaze, Meyer—Captain, Schauer, Klein, Smidl—Coach. Row Two—Demko, Spears, Kelekovich, Koch, Doerr, Stojinski, Laschober.

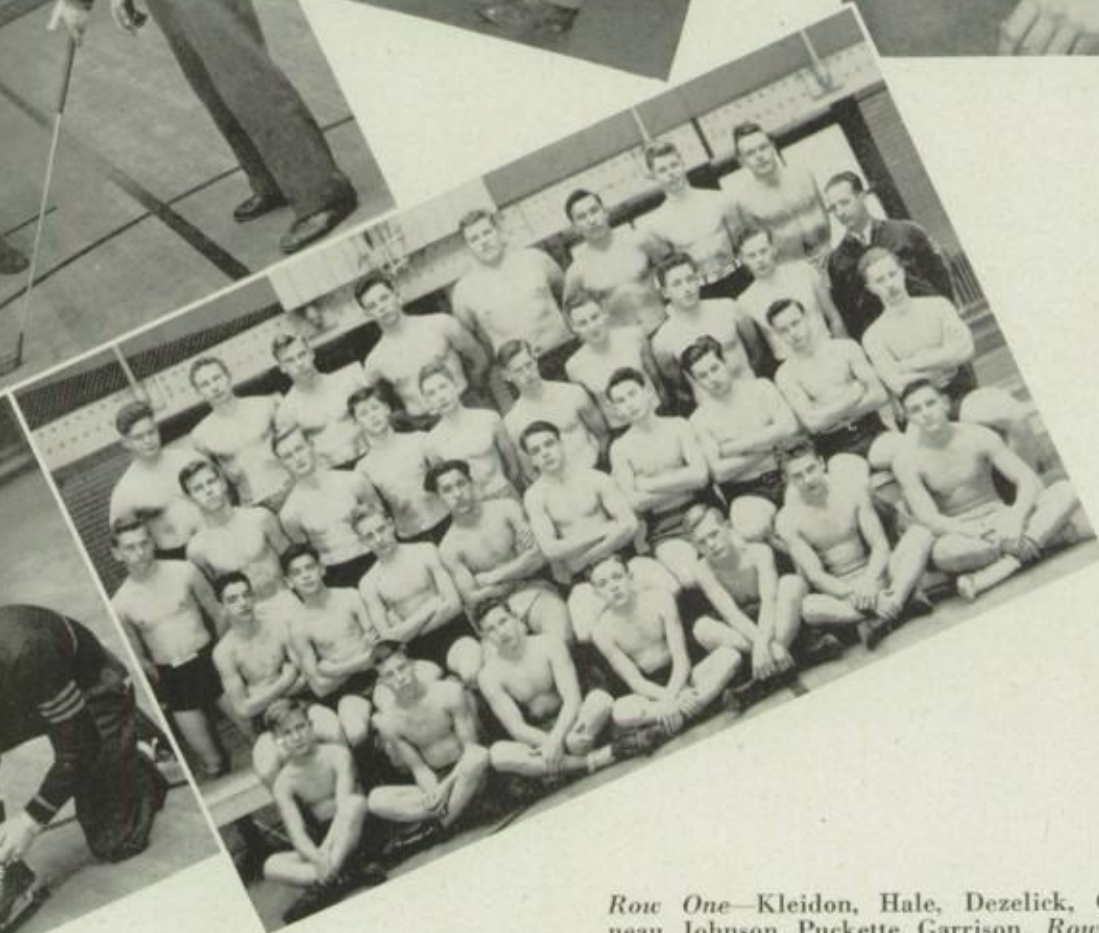

"Lunge, parry carte, parry prime." Frequently you have heard these menacing words, while in the corridor between the boys' and girls' gym. Well do not be alarmed; it is merely some of Lindblom's fencers, and not blood thirsty killers. The boys, who take up this activity, benefit in numerous ways. Fencing is definitely a good sport, in which the boys learn co-ordination of muscles and mind, and that there is always a "point" to everything.

The Happy Hoarsemen

"Zis Boom Bah, Lindblom, Lindblom, Rah Rah Rah!" Under the direction of Coach Smidl, energetic and loose jointed young men clad in school colors lead these yells at many games and rallies. All admire them, but few realize the work behind being a cheer leader. The boys' rhythm and flexibility is not a natural gift. It is acquired only after much hard practice. The results of their leading are earthquaking cheers rendered by the crowd.

Boys who work hard but receive little recognition from the school for their toil are those on such teams as these shown; the wrestling team, the ice skating and tennis squads, and the golf team. Their enjoyment of these sports is, of course, great, and they practice long hours that they may surpass in their chosen game. The benefits received are obvious. The co-ordination of muscles, joy of competition with others, and ultimately a letter are but a few of the many returns.

They've Got Everything

Each G.A.A. member dreams of becoming one of the elites of the Board and Cabinet. To obtain this position, one must excel in sports, scholarship, and leadership. In view of these demands, one can realize the dignity this group of sports enthusiasts possess as they proudly wear their hard earned blue jackets. Poise, personality, and beauty are stressed, but one of the most important attributes is posture, of which the posture contest winners are models. Their motto is "Straighten up and stand right."

Those Big Splashes

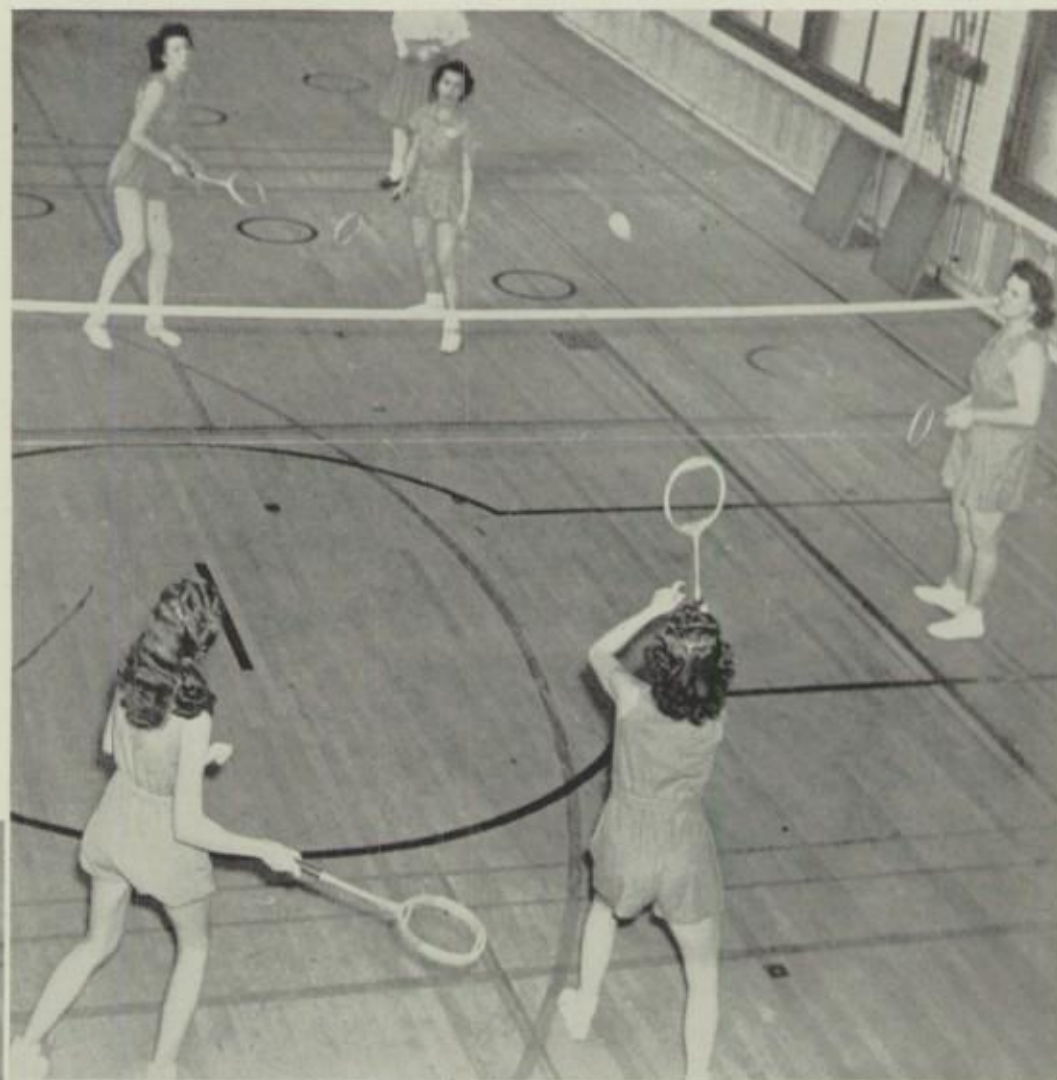

The feminine members of the Dolphin class are all excellent swimmers. They must have obtained their Life Saving certificate before being admitted as one of the elite members of the Dolphin group. The principal aim of this class is to make even the most advanced swimmers more proficient in all the different phases of swimming, and this goal can only be attained by constant drilling and practice. Many difficult water stunts, dives, and strokes are taught, and the award for achieving excellence in these is the goal of all these swimmers—the Dolphin emblem.

Grace and Poise

Badminton is one of the most popular of girls' activities. Although it seems a comparatively easy sport, it requires great skill to keep the bird in motion by the use of correct wrist movement. Girls participating in this activity are awarded twenty-five G.A.A. points toward their athletic "L".

Row One—Robinson, Wilkowski—Representative. Row Two—Padrta, Orzak, Metzl, Horton, Rolek, Soderberg. Row Three—Parilla.

"On guard; advance; lunge!" These are but a few of the commands given in the sport which helps develop grace and poise in its participants. Fencing is another of Lindblom's athletic activities in which girls may take part to obtain G.A.A. points or just for the sake of having fun.

May I Have This Dance?

Never let it be said that a Lindblom girl is a wallflower because of her inability to dance. Instruction in all forms of dancing such as waltzes and rhumbas are part of the weekly gym program. For the girl who wishes to learn the finer points of dancing, there are special classes. With expert instruction from Miss Waterman these "Modern Dance" classes strive to attain a specialized type of dance movement.

Welsh, Dawmont, Mouloukos.

Leaders and Life-Savers

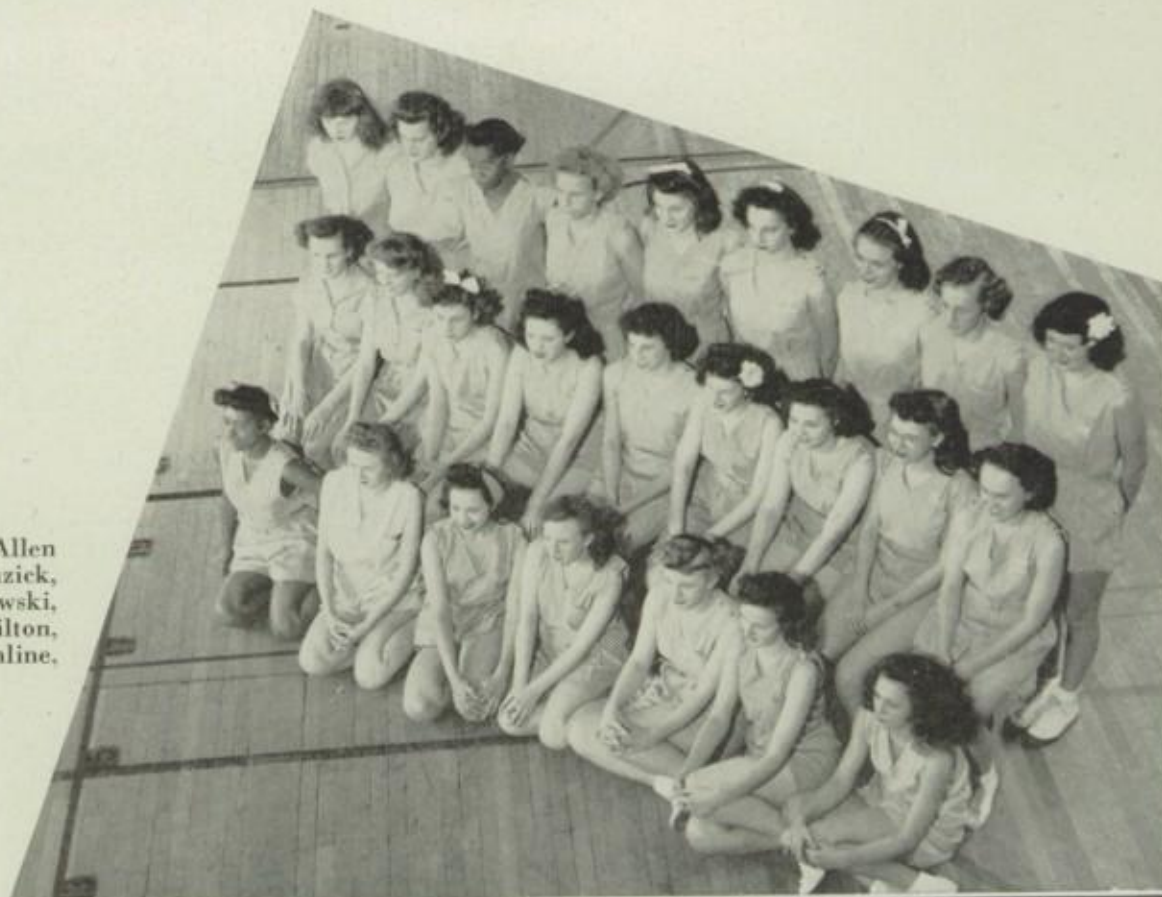

The leaders are all-around helpers, who referee games as well as help to instruct gym classes. They render a great service, and are always well liked. Saving peoples' lives is an exciting procedure, as is applying artificial respiration, and both are taught in our interesting life-saving classes.

Among the best-liked extra-curricular gym activities offered at Lindblom are the team games classes. Here are found our most excellent girl athletes. The teams compete with each other in the seasonal games, and the members of the winning team at the end of each semester are awarded bars. The most successful players of all the classes are selected to form the honor teams, and are presented with gold bars. These classes, besides being popular help to develop co-ordination, and also give points toward an "L".

Up and Over

Under the strain of wartime conditions a fresh incentive has been offered for recreation and relaxation. America has found that the health of its youth is of utmost importance and that gym classes, which do afford recreation and relaxation, are invaluable toward attaining good health. So here in these gym classes you find Lindblom's girls engaged in lively competition. Some girls may be spotted attempting to pool their talents to get the ball over the net, while another girl may be found setting up the ball for her confederate, who will attempt to serve it. They laugh at their freak plays, and scream with delight or vexation as the score varies.

Hit and Run

The everyday affairs of the student are soon forgotten as girls concentrate their energies on winning the game. Besides having fun, they learn some valuable lessons. They learn the importance of teamwork, for without the spirit of "gung ho" no enterprise is a success. They acquire the ability to make split second decisions upon which the success of the team depends. They also learn to be good winners, and more important, good losers.

Since many colleges require a two-year language sequence for entrance, Lindblom offers a complete and varied foreign language course. French, Latin, and Spanish, all popular subjects with Lindblomites, are so taught, that a student is able, not only to understand, but also to speak the language fluently.
